Social hour will begin at 11:30 a.m.

Call 497-3341 for more information.

CLASP meets April 10

CLASP (Citizens Loving All Special People) will hold its monthly meeting, Thursday, April 10, at 7:30 in Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Lynn Shores Drive at Virginia Beach Blvd.

All voting members are urged to attend. All other interested persons are also invited.

For information call Harry E. Baird, Jr., 486-3110.

HCC announces rally

The Virginia Beach Hostage Crisis Center has received approval from the National Park Service to hold an "All-America Rally" in Washington, D.C. on April 12, in front of the Lincoln Memorial. For further information, contact David C. Kelleher, director of operations at 583-3319, 9 a.m. - 1 p.m.

Beach music fest May 18-21

For the second time in its history, the 19th annual Virginia Beach Music Festival will be held May 18-21 instead of its usual mid-June dates. This change has proved successful, enabling businesses and high school bands to participate before the Memorial Day weekend. The City of Virginia Beach is expected to enjoy receipts of at least $400,000 from the event.

Dance for handicapped April 19

A dance for physically and mentally handicapped people will be held Saturday, April 19, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. The dance will be at the Bow Creek Recreation Center, 3427 Club House Road. The Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation and CLASP (Citizens Loving All Special People) will sponsor the free dance.

For information or transportation call Harry E. Baird, Jr., 486-3110 or 423-1270, Ext. 415/524.

By GREG GOLDFARB

Sun Editor

"More tourists visit Virginia Beach than any other city in Virginia," said Charles R. Jefferson, Suffolk district landscape specialist, Virginia Highway Department.

"The Lasking Road interchange is a gateway to that resort area. For this reason, the public, and the State, felt that more emphasis should be placed on the beautification of that part of the expressway."

The emphasis Jefferson is referring to, in the way of $89,000 allocated to plant and maintain 3,226 plant materials on approximately one and one-half acres of land at the Laskin Road interchange, off the Norfolk-Virginia Beach expressway.

Planting by R. W. Askey Nurseries, Inc., Suffolk, began on Feb. 13, and is expected to be completed by the end of April.

Three massive areas

Three massive planting areas are to be provided for, consisting of cultivated beds of numerous trees, bushes, and shrubs, including: 486 Japanese Snowball Biburnums; 1800 Border Forsythia; 754 Red Photinias; 90 Andorra Junipers; 56 Adams Needle Yuccas; 20 Japanese Pagoda Trees; 16 Japanese Black Pines; and four Corkscrew Willows.

The first bed, located west of Laskin Road overpass on the north side of the west bound lane, will include: Red Photinias, Border Forsythias, and Pagoda trees.

The second bed, located on the south side of the east bound lane, west of the Laskin Road interchange, will include: Pagoda Trees, Biburnums, Photinias, and Forsythias.

The third bed, located on the north side of the west bound lane, east of the Laskin Road interchange will include: Red Photinias, Yuccas, and border Forsythias.

Additional Pagoda Trees and Corkscrew Willows will be "spotted" over the landscape, Jefferson added.

$89,000 estimate

The $89,000 price tag for the greenery, is an estimate according to Jefferson.

"That is the total estimated cost," Jefferson said.

"It includes a guarantee for all the plants and trees for three years."

But, if we don't need much maintenance, and don't have to replace many plant materials, the total cost will (See 3,226 p. 3)

E. T. Rawlings, John W. Boykins, and Willie Daughtrey secure one of the trees spotted around the Laskin Road interchange.

King's Daughters, Sons

Convention set

The 83rd Annual Convention of the Virginia Branch, International Order of The King's Daughters and Sons, will convene in Virginia Beach on April 16. Mrs. Alfred R. Hunter of Richmond, Virginia Branch President, will preside.

Mrs. J. Frank Sellev of Virginia Beach is Chairman of the Convention. The theme this year convention is "Se. Se." Mr. Robert McCalley of Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, who is International Director of the Order's Young Adults Department, will be the featured speaker.

Mrs. Frederic Swink of Norfolk has been nominated to succeed Mrs. Hunter as President of Virginia Branch for 1980-82 and Mrs. Sellev has been nominated to serve as Second Vice President.

The Order was founded in 1886. Among the beneficiaries of its work are The Children's Hospital of The King's Daughters in Norfolk, Sheltering Arms Hospital in Richmond, Mary Louise Home in Roanoke and the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

Fine arts Center

Spring session beginning

By LINDA HALE

V.B. Arts Center

The spring session of classes in the visual arts starts on April 14. Thirty-two classes will be offered at all levels and in a variety of skills; and what a good way to enjoy getting a new ability.

Drawing, painting

Drawing and painting are the backbone of the program. Suzanne Stevens, who has taught at the Center since 1977, will offer Beginning and Intermediate Drawing, Drawing the Head, and Drawing in Pastel on Wednesdays.

On Thursday evening she will give Beginning and Advanced Watercolor. In May she is doing an On Location Watercolor class for four weeks. Peyton Campbell will do a Life Workshop again, but this time it will be on Tuesday mornings.

Francis O'Connor will again teach Josef Alber's Interaction of Color for four weeks, and his Beginning Oil Painting class will be Monday evenings for 8 weeks. He is also teaching Paper-making/Assemblage on Tuesday evenings. A class in Acrylic Painting for all levels will be offered by Norman Goodwin. Carol Weisberg will put the new Silkscreen room in use Monday.

Georgiann Grover's Stained Glass classes are available again on Monday evening and Wednesday morning.

In the fiber arts, Helen Brewer's On Loom Weaving for Beginners and advanced students will still be Tuesday mornings; Joan Bolling's Batik will still be Thursday evenings; and Karen Elde's class will still take place on Tuesday evenings but it is an interesting variation on her tapestry course: Miniature Textiles, in which students can choose their own method of working with fiber-weaving, plaiting, tapestry-on a small scale. Ed Charton's Framing class will meet again on Tuesday evenings.

New books recommended; on display at local schools

By JOE LOWENTHAL

Special to the Sun
New textbooks which have been recommended for adoption for use in the public schools of Virginia Beach go on display at various locations throughout the city on April 1, 1980. The only two subject areas under consideration this year are business education and industrial arts.

Displayed

The books will be on display at each of the five branches of the Virginia Beach Public Library from April 1 through the 15th. In addition, the texts will be on display at the School Administration Building at Princess Anne from April 1 until the regular School Board meeting on April 15, 1980, at 2:00 p.m. At that meeting the School Board will take action on the adoption recommendation from the Department of Instruction. (See NEW p. 4)

How the money's spent

$202 million budget

By LEE CAHILL
Staff writer

Although the proposed Virginia Beach operating budget for 1981-82 is approximately $28.1 million higher than the current budget, 50 percent of the city's property owners will be paying no more in real estate taxes and in some cases even less.

The $202.9 million budget contains a recommendation for a tax rate decrease of seven cents per $100 valuation to offset higher assessments which average an increase of 9.3 percent.

After City manager George L. Hanbury presented the budget to City Council Monday afternoon, Mayor Patrick L. Standing said he was "astounded" to see the seven cent reduction and said that Hanbury had done a good job.

The tax rate—67 cents except for the Virginia Beach Borough where it will be 66 cents—will be the lowest among Virginia municipalities except for Harrisonburg (65 cents) and Bedford (66 cents).

City water and sewer users, however, can expect bigger bills, probably by January. Rate increases will be needed to balance the Utilities Department budget and to keep the Utilities Department on a self-supporting basis, Hanbury said. A consultant's survey is under way to determine what the rates should be.

Also recommended in the survey is a two-step across the board pay raise effective July 1 which, with a revision in the pay and the classification plan on Sept. 1, will amount to a 10 percent increase. Currently the differential between steps varies between 2.7 and 5.5 percent. After Sept. 1, the differential between steps will be five percent.

Hanbury said the tax-rate reduction was made possible because the city has diversified sources of revenue with tourism still number one. He said the city received over $14 million in revenue generated by tourism last year and expects to go over $15 million this year. The opening of the Pavilion, the city's new arts and conference center, is expected to bring in $36.5 million during and "off-season."

Already the Pavilion has booked conventions bringing 121,650 delegates to Virginia Beach in fiscal 1980-81. Estimates are that the average delegate spends $100 a day and stays an average of three days. The largest convention year in the past has attracted 52,000 delegates!

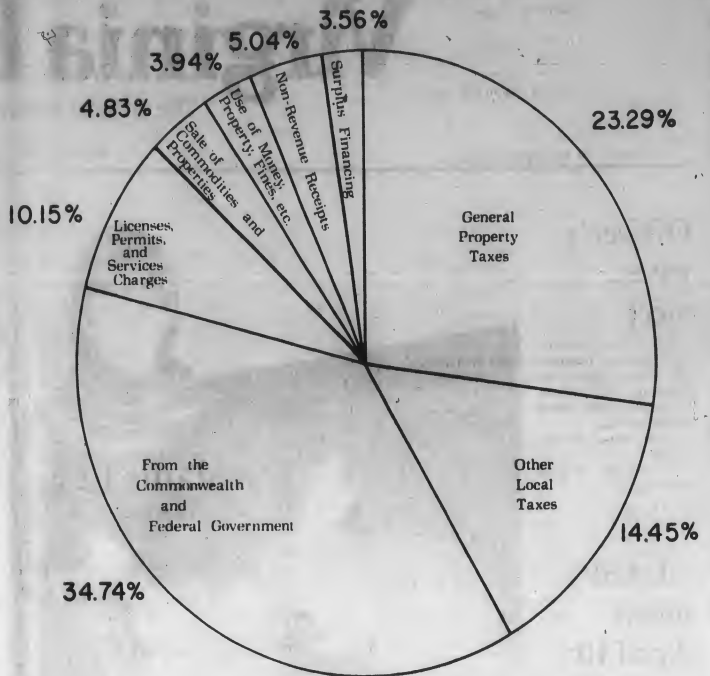

At a morning press conference, Hanbury said that at the Beach, Tourism is still number one and "we need to do everything in our power to see that it remains." He said that it was amazing that a city the size of Virginia Beach, still growing and trying to provide services, can cut the tax rate.

The rate has been reduced annually since 1975 when it was 90 cents per $100 valuation.

Hanbury said that the level of service will be maintained under the proposed budget, but that there will be no new services.

The budget is also inflated by $6.2 million which represents social security, retirement and group insurance employer costs for school teachers. The amount was formerly paid directly by the state. In the future localities will pay the costs and be reimbursed later. Without this item the budget total would be $196.7 million, a 13 percent increase over the current budget rather than the 16 percent increase with the $202.8 million figure.

The inclusion of the money in the budget also explains why the estimated budget of $85.8 million (See MAYOR p. 3)

Retirement is FAIR

Editor:

On March 8, a group of active and retired federal and postal employees met in Richmond, Va., for an initial meeting of an organization whose purpose is to oppose any effort to diminish the retirement systems of local, state, federal, postal, and non-profit organization employees. The name of that organization is FAIR of Virginia, after the national Fund for Assuring an Independent Retirement, which consists of over twenty (20) national organizations.

A final organizational meeting is to be held either on April 26 or May 3 in either Roanoke, Richmond, or the D. C. area, depending on the choice of those who desire to attend. It will be an afternoon meeting.

Those organizations desiring to attend are requested to forward the name, address, the phone number of the contact person to the undersigned at: 3 East Bayberry Court, Hampton, Virginia 23669. The requirement is that you represent a group of public or non-profit organization employees and have a sincere interest in seeing the current retirement system under which your members work survive the current challenge unscathed.

The success of keeping your retirement system whole and without blemish will depend on everyone who is employed in the public and non-profit sector. The success of FAIR is in your hands.

An Easter Prayer

God, give us eyes to see the beauty of Spring,
And to behold Your majesty in every living thing.
And may we see in lacy leaves and every budding flower
The Hand that rules the universe with gentleness and power.
And may this Easter grandeur the Spring lavishly impart
Awaken faded flowers of faith lying dormant in our hearts,
And give us ears to hear, dear God, the Springtime song of birds
With messages more meaningful than man's often empty words Telling hurried human beings who are lost in dark despair.
"Be like us and do not worry for God has you in His care."

Mayor astounded to see tax decrease - Hanbury praised for doing "good job"

represents an increase of 20.76 percent rather than 12.1 percent.

A major concern of the manager is the home-building industry while in the last ten years has provided short term benefits of new growth which has helped keep the tax rates lower. Building has all but stopped, he said, but members of the building industry and home lending institutions indicate there could be a complete turnaround by spring of 1981.

The opening of the Pavilion could not have come at a better time, Hanbury said, to fill the gap left when the building stops. This asset alone can offset 47 percent of the decrease in construction. Hanbury said that bankers expect the interest rate to go down by 1981 and builders are hoping for some control over inflation.

Another concern is the $7 million in Federal impact funds for schools included in the budget. The funds are under the greatest attack, Hanbury said, and if they are decreased, the proposed reserve of $4.8 million could be wiped out. The reserve, 2.4 percent of the budget, represents the smallest percentage of reserve ever, he said. A cut in these funds may force the city to reevaluate the budget and might even include a recommendation for higher tax rates in the middle of the year, Hanbury said.

Hanbury said that he has never included Revenue Sharing Funds in the Operating Budget—only in the Capital Budget—and has been reducing the city's dependency on Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) Funds which he said are a "narcotic."

The city, however, has continued its dependence on the impact funds which have "always been a kind of Russian Roulette" situation.

Also counted among revenues in the budget are anticipated payments from the City of Norfolk for the use of Virginia Beach's landfill as a disposal site. These should amount to over a million dollars and Hanbury is recommending a $6 per ton rate for all commercial haulers so that another $500,000 to $600,000 is anticipated from Beach haulers who have been permitted to use the landfill at no charge.

A uniform rate had to be set up, Hanbury said, to prevent outside firms from "smuggling" refuse into the land fill. Hanbury said all cities in Tidewater, except Virginia Beach, now charge commercial haulers.

In short, the budget assumes—
• A reduction in the real estate tax rate by seven cents.
• Continuation of the existing tax rates in all other categories.

• No significant decline in the present economy.
• The use of $7.2 million in unappropriated funds for 1980-81.

• Continuation or receipt of school impact funds.
• Rate of collection of revenues as anticipated.
• Agreement with the city of Norfolk on a refuse disposal contract.

• Increasing water and sewer rates.
• In addition to tourism, Hanbury credited other factors to allowing real estate tax rate reductions—
• Volunteers save the city $10 to $12 million.

New construction. While home building has slowed down, the growth of commercial construction continues.
The use of zero-based budgeting as a method of itemizing needs, services and costs, helped the city save about $13 million—$9 million out of the city budget and $4 million out of the school budget.

The 1980 General Assembly House Bill 99, a kind of state revenue sharing plan, adds $3.6 million to the budget.

Hanbury has also included $1.8 million in revenues from the sale of Rose Hall properties.

Hanbury said Public Utilities has the smallest percentage increase (about half a million dollars) in the entire budget.

The consulting firm of Buck, Siefert and Jost in Feb. 1979 reported that a rate increase would be necessary in 1980. The increase will be needed before the end of the fiscal year to make up the half to three-quarter million dollars needed to balance the Utilities budget.

The budget includes the addition of 299 new city employees bringing the total to 4,606. The largest share of the new positions, 97, are for the Pavilion which Hanbury said will be fully staffed in July.

Also included are 20 additional police officers and two precinct clerks, 30 new fire fighters and 12 new positions in Public Works, four of which are needed for the Norfolk disposal contract.

In general, Hanbury said he sees no significant decline in the local economy and that the five to seven percent of the revenue produced by new construction which will probably not be realized during the upcoming budget should be offset by tourism and the opening of the Pavilion.

With the ten percent raise recommended for employees in the budget and the merit increase for which approximately 70 percent of the employees will be eligible, most employees should be able to keep pace with the cost of living, he said.

Hanbury said that although the national economy picture did not look good, he "did not want to be a soothsayer of doom. I would rather see what the future holds."

Council agenda

April 14, 7:30 p.m. City Council work session with the School board.

April 30, 2 p.m. Public Hearing
May 12, First Reading of the budget.

May 12, Second reading of the budget.
Copies of the budget are available at all branches of the public library system.

Budget approval was timed to meet the May 15 deadline set by the state for approval of the school budget. City manager George L. Hanbury said that he also planned to release the budget so that the people would have 30 days to study the budget before the public hearing.

Munden Park

The new municipal park at Munden may be just the place for model airplane enthusiasts, according to Councilwoman Barbara Henley.

Residents of area where the plane owners plan to rendezvous are less than enthusiastic about having the motorized miniatures disturb the calm of the countryside in the southern end of the city.

Elizabeth Eley, representing the Back Bay Civic League, last week opposed the issuance of a conditional use permit for the Tidewater Radio Control Model Airplane Club to fly planes on a nine-acre tract on Princess Anne Road south of Munden Point Road in Pungo.

By a vote of 6-4 Council approved the permit, but only for a year.

Mrs. Henley recommended Monday that a few acres in Munden Park be reserved for the model airplanes.

Moving the planes from a new area to an area already reserved for recreation should satisfy the residents, some of whom have opposed the park, and would meet the airplane club's needs.

Mrs. Henley said that she had no intention of asking for the withdrawal of the permit, however, because the club may need to use it until the park site is ready.

Kings Point

The answer to the King's Point drainage ditch dilemma may lie in the city's authority to impose assessments for local improvements on the residents receiving them.

Councilman Clarence A. Holland said Monday that the city has the authority to assess all of the property owners in a neighborhood where the majority of the residents petition for improvements such as streets and drainage.

The residents in King's Point last week indicated they wanted to pipe and cover the large open ditch which runs through their property, but were not sure that they could get all 59 property owners lining the ditch to share in the cost.

Under city policy, the residents would be required to pay for the materials and the city would do the work. The city has asked the residents to pay $84,000, the 1978 estimate of the materials cost although the actual cost today would be considerably higher.

Holland said the ordinance on assessing for improvements might be used in this case. Under the ordinance the assessment on property owners may not exceed one-half the total cost.

3,226 plants to be set by late April

The City of Virginia Beach has no money involved in this project, according to Eddie Barnes, supervisor of landscape services, and predicts it may save the city money.

"We're not involved in anything that has to do with the expressway's right of way," he said, "we do mow around the expressway, although modifications to it come under the jurisdiction of the State Highway Department."

Barnes said that in addition to the aesthetic value of the plantings, they are also functional.

"Of course over 3000 blooming plants and trees will add to the beauty of the beach, but we also look at the project from a functional standpoint.

"We figure the shrubs and trees will eliminate headlight glare in some instances; and will serve as a crash barrier, especially years from now."

"Planting on the steep slopes of the interchange will also contribute to erosion control."

Jefferson noted that the State regularly uses landscaping techniques on other highways near Tidewater.

"Recently, we have landscaped highways from Newport News to Williamsburg."

"We concentrate on the curves where a vehicle may go out of control."

"Landscaping reduces mowing, and should make the city's highway maintenance chores easier."

"Each year we try to do more and more in the ways of landscaping, but this is the biggest thing we've done on the expressway yet."

"We have eventual plans, however, to make the expressway eight lanes."

1976 General Assembly

According to Jefferson, initial plans for the Laskin Road interchange beautification project were set in 1976.

"In the 1976 session of the General Assembly, they appointed a study commission to study all aspects of the Norfolk-Virginia Beach expressway," he said.

"Public hearings and meetings were conducted concerning the expressway. Some Beach residents recommended we take some measures to make the expressway more pleasing to the eye."

"Landscaping was one recommendation, and the suggestion was endorsed by the State Highway Department. Consequently, funds were approved."

"The contractor will be paid on a monthly basis, according to the work and materials used."

Fresh and saltwater fishing news

Award winning sized catfish being caught by local anglers

By ED LEWIS
Staff writer

Anglers down at the Northwest River Campgrounds had a good time this week.

On Monday I talked to Otis Nelson and he told me that not only are they catching more species of fish but the fish are also getting larger.

Otis said he had tow citation catfish brought in and several large bass that were just under citation weight.

Otis had the following break down of the weeks action for me and when reading it you might want to keep in mind that this is not all the fish that was caught down there this week but just the ones where the fisherman took time to report their catch to Otis.

If you should go down there, let Otis or myself know and I will mention your catch in my column.

Local catches

On Wednesday March 26, Junior Gray and Brian Stump of Chesapeake went out on the river for a few hours. Junior caught 8 crappie and one bass to Brian's 3 crappie, so Brian retaliated by bringing in a 11 lb. 5 oz. citation catfish. Congratulations Brian on that real fine catch.

I have fished with Junior before and I can imagine what he said.

Also on Wednesday Rowland Marshall, "The River Rat", and W. N. Dean of Chesapeake caught 15 nice crappie.

On Thursday Junior Gray and Rowland Marshall went out again and landed 17 crappie. If I know these two fishermen, they probably caught twice that many and released the smaller ones. Both men are real fine persons.

Jay Lancaster of Norfolk, showed his skill out on the river Thursday by beating 5 crappie, 2 bass and 3 pike (chain pickerel), as did P. W. Price of Chesapeake who loaded his creel with 15 nice crappie.

Billy and Ralph Spencil fished with Gerney Spivey of Portsmouth and they also managed to take 12 nice crappie home for dinner.

On Friday Mr. and Mrs. Roger Giroux of Virginia Beach caught 14 nice catfish and they had such a good time that they came back on Saturday and caught 6 more catfish and topped that off with 5 nice crappie.

History of a son was made down on the river Friday morning. Although you probably won't read about it in any history books in the near future, it did happen.

Rowland Marshall and Junior Gray have been fishing the river together for many years and finally on Friday March 28 Rowland, for the first time, out fished Junior by catching 7 crappie to Junior's 5.

Both of these men are excellent fishermen and real characters, and knowing them like I do, I would imagine Rowland is still talking about it.

Saturday March 29 proved to be a real successful day on the river. The Rev. Ivey Carter of Norfolk caught 10 bass and kept the 8 larger fish. The bass averaged around 2 lbs. apiece.

Mr. C. R. Walters of Norfolk boated 6 bass and 2 pike. Mr. Walters is one of the regulars down at the campgrounds.

Bobby Lewis and Donald Newhart of Chesapeake had one of the weeks largest catches with 20 crappie, 2 bass and a nice 5 lb. catfish.

John Burdick of Chesapeake put meat on the table with 2 nice bass and 1 pike.

Also on Saturday Mr. and Mrs. N. Maloney of Chesapeake caught 5 crappie 4 bass and 1 bass, and Jim Rittenhour caught 10 crappie and 14 bass.

Gary Yumt of Chesapeake caught the largest fish of the week when he boated a 13 lb. citation catfish. Gary was using worms (night crawlers) for bait, and deserves a big hand for that fine catch.

Nat Henson of Virginia Beach caught 4 bass the largest weight 6 lbs. and Billy Tanner of Chesapeake caught 17, keeping the 8 largest.

On Sunday Jim Rittenhour returned and caught 20 crappie and W. E. Forney of Chesapeake caught 12 catfish the largest weighing in at 6 lb.

On Monday Junior Gray and Rowland Marshall went out again and boated 13 nice crappie and 1 bass. I don't know who caught what but I am sure Junior caught the most as I would have heard about it by now.

Saltwater

With the saltwater fishing season only a few weeks away, I am sure you are anxious to hear what is caught, where it was caught, what bait was used and what was the tide condition when it was caught.

This spring and summer I will keep you up to date on all the area hot spots, covering flounder fishing at Wachapreague and Oyster, Va., black drum fishing at Cape Charles and the numerous varieties of fish that are pulled from the surf on the North Carolina Outer Banks. I will have up to date reports on the offshore charter boats and also what is going on with the area piers.

I will publish an up to date tide table for the Nags Head and Hatteras Island area as well as the Chesapeake Bay. I will give my first hand reports as I catch fish or go I trying as well as tips on fishing techniques or bait.

that I have found to be successful or ones that other anglers have sent in.

If you catch some fish or have some good tips you would like to share with us, please send them in. I am sure other readers will find them interesting, as well as I will.

Remember, safe boating is common sense, courtesy, and strict compliance with safety rules.

Arts center shows double feature

During the month of April, the Virginia Beach Arts Center will show a "double feature"—a national wine art touring exhibition and a small group of sculptures by a remarkable Tidewater man.

Five Hundred Years of Wine in the Arts is a selection from The Christian Brothers Collection of wine-related artworks. Collected over the past half-century and shown in museums throughout the United States, the collection aroused such a lot of interest that a permanent home was found for it in 1974—the Wine Museum of San Francisco, on Fisherman's Warf.

In the smaller galleries, the attraction is the sculpture work of Larry Mednick, a Tidewater resident who leads three different lives. He is a member of the noted Feldman String Quartet, President of Globe Ironworks, and a sculptor in metal. Several of his pieces are related to musical imagery—Variations on a Theme.

The two exhibitions are open to the public through April at no charge. The hours are 11 weekdays and Saturdays.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED TAX DECREASE

The City Manager of the City of Virginia Beach has proposed to City Council to reduce the tax rate by 9.5 percent from 74 cents to 67 cents per $100. This will more than offset the average increase in general reassessments of 9.3 percent and result in a decrease in taxes for over 60 percent to the assessed parcels.

however, if City Council does not adopt this proposal there is hereby given a:

NOTICE OF TAX INCREASE

(Published in accordance with Section 58-785.1 of the State Code)

The City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, proposes to increase property tax levies by 9.3 percent. Individual property taxes may however increase at a percentage greater than or less than the above percentage.

There will be a public hearing on the budget on Wednesday, April 30, 1980, at 2:00 p.m. and a public hearing on the assessments on Monday May 5, 1980, at 2:00 p.m.

New books

ional Services. Should the books be adopted, they will go into usage next fall and remain in use at least through June 30, 1986.

The books under consideration were proposed by business education and industrial arts curriculum committees, after a thorough review of each text by teachers in these subject areas throughout the school division. The curriculum committees, comprised of parents, teachers, students, and school administrators, meet on a regular basis during the school year. Procedures

Procedures set by the State Board of Education for adoption of textbooks have been followed in the selection of the recommended texts. In each case, the Virginia Beach Public Schools Department of Instructional Services has recommended the texts to the School Board for adoption. During the six-year adoption period, the texts are routinely reviewed and evaluated often.

mittee at the College and is under the auspices of the Leventritt Foundation.

Beach advertisers return

Russell J. Redmond, President and Raynor E. Rice, Vice President of Redmond, Amundson & Rice Advertising Agency, Inc., Va. Beach, have just returned from the management conference of the National Advertising Agency Network, the country's strongest network of independently owned advertising agencies.

The conference was held in Maui, Hawaii March 16-21. Theme for this year's conference was Professionalism—The Key to Survival in the 80's. Both Redmond and Rice were speakers at the meeting.

Redmond, Amundson & Rice Advertising Agency, Inc. is Tidewater's only NAAN representative.

Students teach students

Three sixth graders at Seatack Elementary School recently taught school for a day. In conjunction with Youth Art Month, the sixth graders "Planned their lesson plans from the objectives to procedures and motivation," said kindergarten teacher Kathy Land. "The sixth graders volunteered, were screened, and then selected," she continued. Seatack teacher Sara Lou McRee added, "The students have been very responsible in their duties as teachers. It has been a great experience for them."

Nothing compares to benefits offered by social security

What kind of personal financial security plan would you need to replace the protection you now have under social security? Such thinking is pure speculation since social security coverage is mandatory for most people—it generally comes with the job. For those who feel that they could get a better deal somewhere else, however, the question presents an opportunity for an illustrative column.

Not the same

The first thing one would find is that there is no comparable package of benefits and protection available for the same price. People would have to match social security's retirement protection and its survivors and disability insurance protection. In addition, social security provides health insurance for people 65 or older, or with prolonged disabilities, or with permanent kidney failure. Each financial security plan would vary greatly, depending on age, marital status, family size, lifestyle, and so forth. But it would need to have the following characteristics to match social security.

Inflation

The benefits would need to have some protection against inflation. Social security benefits are just about inflation-proof. Initial benefits are figured to take account of increases in wage levels over your working life. Thereafter, benefits increase automatically with rises in the cost of living. The protection would have to follow you from job to job, including any career changes. This may be no problem with most individual insurance plans or personal investments, but is a consideration with most private pension plans.

The benefits would have to be tax-free. Social security benefits are not subject to Federal income tax, while income from private plans generally is. Your private financial security plan would need to provide lifetime payments at retirement to match those provided by social security. Retirement benefits under social security can start as early as age 62. At a time when people are living longer, retirement income of indefinite duration is important.

Not practical

In short, the idea of replacing social security with something else is simply not practical for most people, even if it were permissible. Social security is a base of income protection. By supplementing this protection with private pensions, insurance, and savings, the average family is able to build a plan of financial security that will help meet their particular needs.

It may be of interest to note that in the three cities served by the Norfolk Social Security office the following monthly social security payments were being made at the end of December 1978. In Virginia Beach 16,686 persons received $3,768,482 monthly. In Chesapeake 11,941 persons received $2,451,190 monthly and in Norfolk 33,222 persons received $7,134,524.

The Norfolk Social Security office is located in the Federal Building at 200 Granby Mall - Room 600. The phone number is 441-3401.

Eastwood D. Herbert, Trustee, and Walter E. Smith and Eleanor E. Smith, and their heirs, successors, devisees, assigns and surviving consort, if any, and Noteholders or Holders, referred to below as person or persons unknown, and Person or Persons Unknown.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

THIS DAY, came the Petitioners, Viking Construction Corporation and Sweetbriar Development Corporation, Virginia Corporations and upon the Affidavit of one of the officers of Viking Construction Corporation and the Petition Previously filed herein, and

IT APPEARING to the Court that the Petitioners, Viking Construction Corporation and Sweetbriar Development Corporation are the owners of record of certain real property located in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, known as Parcel E and F, as shown on the plat entitled "Plat of Property of Lynn Construction Company", which said plat is dated October 11, 1963, and recorded in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, in Map Book 59 at page 48; Parcel E and F appear to be part of the same property conveyed to George T. McLean and William E. Witt, by deed of Walter E. and Eleanor E. Smith, dated May 16, 1960, by instrument recorded in the aforesaid Clerk's Office in Deed Book 635 at page 94; the said George T. McLean and William E. Witt having granted a certain deed of trust to Eastwood D. Herbert as trustee by instrument dated May 16, 1960, and recorded in the aforesaid Clerk's Office in Deed Book 635 at page 97, securing a certain promissory note payable to the order of Walter E. and Eleanor E. Smith, in the original principal sum of $35,000.00; that due diligence has been used by the Petitioners to attempt to locate the said Walter E. and Eleanor E. Smith, without success, and that there may be heirs, devisees, assigns or successors in interest to Walter E. and Eleanor E. Smith, as well as persons who are the holders of the aforesaid promissory note secured by the aforesaid deed of trust as subsequence transferees or assignees thereof; and that the identity of such persons is unknown to the Petitioners, and

IT FURTHER APPEARING, that the object of the Petition filed herein and this cause is to obtain a release by this Court of that encumbrance and deed of trust which exists of record on the aforesaid real property by virtue of that certain deed of trust granted by George T. McLean and William E. Witt, to Eastwood D. Herbert, Trustee, by instrument dated May 16, 1960, and recorded in the aforesaid Clerk's Office in Deed Book 635 at page 97, securing a certain promissory note in the original principal sum of $35,000.00, payable to the order of Walter E. and Eleanor E. Smith, which said release is requested upon the Petitioner's believe that the aforesaid promissory note has been paid in full and that the security interest in the aforesaid real property by the holders thereof should be extinguished. It is therefore, ADJUDGED, ORDERED AND DECREED that if any of the above-named defendants, including person or persons unknown and the transferees, if any, of that certain promissory note referenced above, desire to assert any objection or defense to the release sought in this cause, or to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear and determine this cause, he shall file his answer or a responsive pleading, specifying his interest therein, and the grounds for any objection or defense, or to the jurisdiction of this Court to hear and determine the case, on or before the 7th day of May, 1980, and it is further ORDERED that a copy of the Order shall be published in the Virginia Beach Sun, once a week for four successive weeks, and posted at the front door of this Courthouse in accordance with Section 8.01-317 of the Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended.

Aerobic dancing

Exercise on rainy days

By GREG GOLDFARB
Sun Editor

"Because of the rain in Virginia Beach, joggers can't jog all year," said local dance instructor Barbie Hemberger.

"And other sports, like racquetball and tennis, need to be played outdoors, or in expensive clubs.

"Aerobic dancing offers local residents year round exercise, without having to pay everytime they want to workout."

300 local dancers

Hemberger, a Texas native and two-year Beach resident, said there are 300 aerobic dancers in Virginia Beach, including two men.

"Students under 16 years of age need their parents supervision at classes," Hemberger said. "But in general, there are about 300 aerobic dancers at the Beach."

"And an interesting note is, that two of them are men, which goes to show that exercising and dancing are not exclusively for women, but is also a good way for men to keep in shape."

Schedules

She said classes are scheduled at different times on different days to allow local residents many opportunities to fit aerobic dancing into their schedules.

"We recently just began a 12 week course, and have a seven week course planned for May 5."

"We do it this way so that students can fit our classes into their daily routines."

More oxygen

Hemberger explained that the word aerobic means with oxygen, and that aerobic dancing helps the body absorb more of it.

"Aerobic exercises are those that cause your body to demand increased amounts of oxygen over an extended period of time," she said.

"In aerobic dancing, your heart and lungs work harder than normal and your cardiovascular system becomes stronger.

"The result is abundant energy. As on student once told me, 'I have more energy, more endurance, and my life is more of a joy because of aerobic dancing.'"

Local resident

Hemberger attended college at Auburn University; is married to a Navy pilot.

She and her husband have no children; attend the First Assembly of God Church; and reside in the Trant Berkshire section of Virginia Beach.

"Oliver" slated

Staged in 1966

Frank Cox High School will present the musical play "Oliver," beginning Wednesday, April 23 and running until Saturday, April 26.

The curtain will rise at 7:30 p.m.

The show will be directed by James Garrett, drama instructor; it's musical director is William Boyll, choral music director.

"Oliver" was first performed at Cox in 1966, according to Garrett, and was the first non-professional performance of the play in the country.

"This is the 17th musical I've directed here at Cox," Garrett said.

"But I remember the first time we did Oliver. It was in 1966. When we mailed away for the rights to do the show, we were informed that our production would be the first non-professional production of the musical in the country.

At Science Fair

Nine Beach students win

Nine Virginia Beach students were among the winners in the 29th annual Tidewater Science Fair, recently held in Hampton at Phoebus High School.

The fair was sponsored by the Tidewater section of the Virginia Manufacturers Association and Hampton Public Schools.

In the senior high school biology category, Christine Milbocker of Kempville and Susan Garrison of Kellam took second place honors, and Matthew Galumbeck of First Colonial was awarded an honorable mention.

Michael Milbocker of Kempville and Vicki Scheer of Kellam both won an honorable mention in the senior high physics category.

In the junior high behavioral and social science category, Victoria

Rominger of Lynnhaven took second place, and Helene Whitley of Brandon won an honorable mention.

In the junior high school chemistry category, Bradley Webb, also of Lynnhaven, won third place and Amy Phares of Bayside won an honorable mention.

In addition, Kempville High's Michael Milbocker has been named a winner of the annual Bausch & Lomb Science Award. The award, a bronze medal, is given each year to winners at more than 8,600 participating schools throughout the United States.

As a winner, Milbocker is eligible to compete for one of several four-year scholarships at the University of Rochester given by Bausch & Lomb.

Beach residents learn

Local BBB office offers arbitration

Most Complaints by Virginia Beach consumers against businesses are resolved soon after they are made, either by an agreement between the two parties or through informal advice from someone else. For disputes that can not be settled this way, your Better Business Bureau office offers arbitration as an alternative to a trip to court.

Arbitration is an old idea that was applied by Better Business Bureaus to consumer-business disagreements in the early 1970's, and over 100 local Bureaus throughout the country currently offer the service. In arbitration, the disputants argue their case before an impartial arbitrator—a third party volunteer from the community—after agreeing in advance to decide by the arbitrator's decision.

Court Action

In some respects, going to arbitration is like going to court, and indeed in all states most arbitration awards can be enforced in the courts.

But there are important differences. Both parties must agree in advance to arbitration—one of them cannot require the other to take part.

There is no filing fee for the consumer; arbitration is a free service.

Proceedings before an arbitrator are less formal and speedier than court action, and neither side is required to have legal representation.

A Bureau will arrange arbitration only when the dispute can't be resolved through mediation, when criminal charges aren't involved, when the claimed damages are limited to the value of the product or service involved in the dispute, and when the law doesn't prohibit arbitration.

Arbitration may be suggested by a BBB after it has tried unsuccessfully to arrange a settlement by the parties, or the parties may request it. To start arbitration, the BBB draws up and the parties sign an arbitration agreement in which the issues in dispute are listed and the parties commit themselves to be bound by an arbitrator's decision.

Informal but

Orderly

The next step is to choose an arbitrator from a pool of a community volunteers assembled by the BBB. In most states, a single arbitrator handles the case if both parties can agree to one. If they can't agree, each party chooses one arbitrator and the two arbitrators choose a third, who becomes chairman of the three-member panel.

All arbitrators must be impartial.

If the dispute involves a product, a repair job or the like, the arbitrator or either party may want an inspection, and this is done prior to a hearing.

The arbitrator may want a testing laboratory to analyze an article in dispute, or an independent expert to make an examination. If so, the BBB arranges for such services.

Bureaus also provide facilities and services for hearings and record keeping. If either party wants to be represented in arbitration by a lawyer or someone else, he or she (See BUSINESS P. 7)

Maintains reputation

Plaza Junior High hosts Shakespeare production

"Will Power," a Virginia Museum Theatre production designed to demonstrate the reasons for the strength of Shakespeare's reputation, begins a two-week tour of Virginia schools and colleges Monday (April 7).

The first performance was recently at Bayside High School. Another performance will be held on Friday, April 18 at 2:45 p.m. at Plaza Junior High School.

"Shakespeare is relevant, entertaining and a sensational," says VMT production manager Terry

Burgler, who is directing "Will Power."

Demand growing

"The demand for a VMT tour was growing, so we have put together an hour-long program which succeeds, in illustrating that Shakespeare's reputation as a popular playwright is more than justified," Burgler says.

VMT's "Will Power" venture marks the first time in 13 years that the Theatre has toured a professional production, but it fulfills a promise articulated by Tom Mark us director Tom Mark us made two years ago when he came to VMT.

"Part of the mandate from the Virginia General Assembly to the Virginia Museum directs us to spread education in the arts throughout the Commonwealth, and this is an excellent means of doing that," Markus says.

The Theatre, although a division of the state-supported Virginia Museum, receives no direct state funding, and the "Will Power" tour was financed in part by grants from the Museum's state services division and the Virginia Commission for the Arts.

Cast members

Jan van der Swaagh, Barbara Bratt and Allen

Fitzpatrick are featured in the production. Van der Swaagh and Miss Bratt, who are husband and wife in real life, were both featured in VMT's recent main-stage production of Shakespeare's "As You Like It," for which van der Swaagh also directed the critically-acclaimed fight scenes.

Fitzpatrick is a singer, dancer, and stage-combat specialist whose most recent appearance was as Curly in "Oklahoma" in Washington, D.C.

"Will Power" includes several full-length scenes, plus collage sequences based on thematic approaches to Shakespeare's works.

The most popular of Shakespeare's plays are represented in the production including "Romeo and Juliet," "Julius Caesar," "Othello" and "The Merchant of Venice."

The script focuses on contemporary issues such as parent-child relationships, love and lovers, the supernatural, race relations, and it includes some real crowdpleasers, like songs and a complete combat-scene with theatrical swordplay," Burgler says.

The script was edited and compiled by Markus, Burgler and the VMT staff. Sets and costumes were designed by Charles and Bronwyn Caldwell.

Virginia schools and Museum chapters and affiliates were quick to book the tour fully, Markus says. "We hope this means a bright future for the continuance of innovative and exciting touring."

Demo's meet

The Second Congressional District Democratic Convention for the election of delegates and alternates to the National Convention, for the election of members of the Democratic State Central Committee, and for such other matters as may properly come before the convention will be held at Noon on Saturday, April 12, at Lake Taylor High School, Norfolk.

Prayer

I needed the quiet so He drew me aside.
Into the shadows where we could confide.
Away from the bustle where all day long
I hurried and worried when active and strong.

I needed the quiet tho at first I rebelled
But gently, so gently, my cross He upheld
And whispered so sweetly of spiritual things
The weakened in body, my spirit took wings
To heights never dreamed of when active and gay.
He loved me so greatly He drew me away.

I needed the quiet. No prison my bed,
But a beautiful valley of blessings instead
A place to grow richer in Jesus to hide.
I needed the quiet so He drew me aside.

Gifted students chosen

A total of 23 Virginia Beach high school students have been chosen by a selection committee to attend the Governor's School for the Gifted this summer.

They are among the 420 rising juniors and seniors statewide named by Governor John Dalton to attend a four-week enrichment course at either Mary Washington, Mary Baldwin, or Randolph-Macon Women's College.

Students across Virginia are nominated by teachers and administrative personnel at their individual schools, based on their academic records and related school activities. Each high school is allowed a varying number of nominees depending on enrollment.

The nominees must write two essays—one on the reasons they would like to attend the summer session, and the other on a topic assigned to all the nominees. In addition, the final selection committee considers the letters of recommendation from the home schools.

College campus

The students live on the college campus for the four-week period and attend classes both morning and afternoon. During the evening hours, they participate in seminars and talent shows, or attend lectures by prominent speakers.

The morning classes are devoted to an in-depth study of a major topic under consideration by the group, while afternoon classes are devoted to a secondary project in the arts or sciences. The classes are taught by college instructors, and the State of Virginia pays the expenses for all 420 students selected.

The Governor's School for the Gifted, is now in its eighth year.

It is considered to be a highly concentrated enrichment course offered without the pressures of grades.

Council accused of cover-up

By LEE CAHILL

Sun staff writer

Accusations and denials of cover-up attempts by Virginia Beach City Council erupted in a close-to-two hour scenario during a Council work session Monday afternoon.

At stake were the city's $2.5 million advertising contract, the process by which the advertising firm handling the advertising is chosen, and the reputations of two city officials.

Through it all, members of the Advertising Selection Committee, a panel composed of lay persons and city officials, remained firm in their selection of the Richmond-based Martin Agency to handle the city's contract.

City manager George L. Hanbury said that he would sign the contract with the agency unless Council directed him otherwise. The Council did not do that.

Even Councilman Reid Ervin, who had originally proposed that more consideration be given to a local firm, said that he would not change agencies at this time, just as the city was approaching the summer tourist season, but suggested that in the future the contract be considered in mid or late fall. The Martin Agency has been handling the advertising for five and a half years.

David Martin, president of the agency, during a presentation of the company's capabilities later, said that most of the budget will be used for advertising and of the $155,000 which will go to the agency, $85,000 will be used for the payroll for the Virginia Beach campaign.

Martin said the company has a $110,000 to $120,000 payroll at its Beach office. The company employs 50 persons, and one-third of its $50 million annual business deals with travel.

Monday's controversy in the public Council Chambers was the outgrowth of remarks made during an executive session of Council last Monday and subsequent interchanges between Council members, and the appearance of a full-page ad in a Sunday newspaper placed by a Virginia Beach Advertising firm which had sought the city contract.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing started the discussion by reporting on a letter from Councilman Reid Ervin to Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf charging that Council had endorsed "some cover-up" during the executive session.

Mrs. Oberndorf, who is running for re-election to Council, had indicated to Mayor Standing that she wanted to speak, Standing said, but before she had the opportunity to speak, Ervin got up and left.

Ervin said that every council member was entitled to his own opinion. He read the letter he sent to Mrs.

Oberndorf which stated that he was "distressed to learn from two members of Council that you took the opportunity in my absence to launch an attack on me."

The letter further stated her remarks were not proper and may be a violation of the Freedom of Information Act.

Mrs. Oberndorf said that before she began to talk, the conversation had been directed toward awarding the advertising contract to the Martin Agency and an article on James Ricketts, a member of the committee and tourist development coordinator for the city's economic development department. The Ricketts article charged that the city employee had been a guest of an official of the Martin firm at the company's condominium in Wintergreen, a ski resort.

Mrs. Oberndorf had discussed what she was going to say with city attorney Dale Bimson because she had "no desire to violate the freedom of information act," she said. Bimson concurred that she had.

She added that she thought Ervin a man of great intellect. She said that her concern was over distrust of the staff and in finding out who appointed the committee. "At no time did I impugn the character, intelligence and integrity of Ervin."

She said her concern was that when people make accusations about anyone, they should do so face to face and support charges with sworn testimony "so people will not live in a limbo without their character being cleared." If Ricketts is guilty of anything, it should be proved.

She said she received the Ervin letter on April 1 to learn that three members of Council would implicate me in violations of the Freedom of Information Act. Even bureaucrats should have a hearing," she said. "I do not want to do anything wrong, evil or cover-up...If I am guilty of anything I am guilty of wanting this group to function on an adult level."

Mrs. Oberndorf then referred to the ad as "yesterday's fiasco." The ad listed the telephone numbers of Council members and urged citizens to call to complain about hiring a Richmond rather than a Virginia Beach firm to handle the advertising.

Several Council members later said they had received calls throughout the day.

Ervin sent the letter, he said, because when he had called Mrs. Oberndorf earlier, he realized it was a high holy day and thought it would be inconsiderate to call again. He persisted that neglected giving local businessmen a chance to do business.

He said he asked for verification of the charges against Ricketts. He said that two advertising firms object, there may have been a third. "What you're criticizing me for is considering two firms....I'm being blamed for the Ricketts affair." He said that at least three Council members knew about the Ricketts affair before he did and that he had lodged his complaint about the adver-

Kempville

Both First Colonial and Kempville top the Virginia Beach list with five students from each school selected to participate in the program. From First Colonial, the students are Susan M. Bischof, Scott W. Fancher, Jennifer C. Lasko, Jody Norris, and Deborah R. Taylor.

From Kempville, the students are Michael B. West, Jeffrey M. Johnson, Christine Miller, Kimberly M. Moore, and Susan M. Dillman.

Cox High School will send four students. They are Greg Teller, Karla Lacore, Kirsten Fredrickson, and Billy Carbaugh.

Bayside and Princess Anne High Schools each will send three. From Bayside, the students are Lynn Pratts, Sharon Toncray, and Katrina Eike. From Princess Anne, they are Julia Gaffney, Valerie Willson, and Jane Lynch. Robert Rice, also of Princess Anne, has been named as an alternate.

Windsor Oaks principal flagged

Windsor Oaks Elementary principal Tony Mencini has received a U.S. flag for his student's participation in the Mary Barraco Savings Bond program. Making the donation were Shirley Humphrey (right) and Mrs. Millie Wood, members of the Ladies Auxiliary, V.F.W. Post #392, Virginia Beach.

The ladies auxiliary group also presented the school with a certificate plus a picture of all the students who participated in the program.

The school's savings bond program was sponsored by the Windsor Oaks P.T.A. and was operated this year by chairman Mrs. Donna Uccardi.

The American flag given to the school was flown over the nation's (See WINDSOR p. 7)

Windsor Woods Elementary School's Career Day

Windsor Woods Elementary school staff and teachers provided a little help recently to the perennial question of youngsters, "What do I want to be when I grow up?"

Career day
The Virginia Beach elementary school held a Career Day for its students, ranging from first grade to seventh grade, and invited local businesses and organizations to participate.

The Career Day was held recently in the school's cafeteria. Twenty different vocations were represented.
Students were able to move from table to table to talk with a policeman, fireman, pilot, minister, musician, mailman, nurse, an animal trainer, bank teller, beautician, secretary, CPR specialist, dietitian, lawyer, power lineman, U. S. Marines, and four students from the Virginia Beach Vocational-Technical school.

"Cherry picker"
Dr. Buletine Karlen, principal of Windsor Woods, said the students enjoyed their exposure to the various careers, especially the demonstration of VEPCO's "cherry picker", a powered bucket on a truck-mounted crane.

Local people
Those persons participating in the Career Day were Mrs. Eloisa Campbell, Virginia Beach Boulevard Beauty Academy; Bobbi Lloyd, Animal Jungle of Pembroke; Mrs. Beth Stanley, school secretary; Mrs. Caren Frigge, school dietitian; Mrs.

Carol Flach, school nurse; Frank Martin, bank teller; David Hay, lawyer; Tom O'Reilly, policeman and Al Lawson, Norfolk fireman.
Lt. Robert D'Antonio, Navy Pilot; Rev. William Austin, minister of Virginia Beach Christian Church; E. B. Brown and Gene Wallace, VEPCO;

William Nixon, mailman; Ernest Olds, school band director; Sgt. Glenn Beares and LCpl. Dan Cawray, U. S. Marine Corps; and Albert Ellis, respiratory specialist with Bay Side Hospital.
The Vo-Tech students participating were Tom Taylor, carpentry; Donna Meeks, data processing;

George Mann, horticulture; and Russell Malone, bricklaying.

"Bee Gee" the Macaw doesn't mind getting strokes from the older students at Windsor Woods Elementary during the school's Career Day. But his owner, Bobbi Lloyd of Animal Jungle of Pembroke, said "Bee Gee" was not as tolerant of the younger students and ruffled his feathers a bit when they tried to pet him. Ms. Lloyd soothed Bee Gee with a few sips of Mr. Pibb between visits from the students.

Sergeant Glenn Beares (center) and Lance Corporal Dan Cawray responded to questions about the U. S. Marine Corps and the military at Career Day, held recently at Windsor Woods Elementary. The two are assigned to Marine Aircraft Group 46, stationed at the Norfolk Naval Air Station, and represented military professions at the Career Day.

Client committee meets
The Client Involvement Committee will meet on Tuesday, April 15 at 10 a.m. at the Virginia Beach Social Services Department, 3432 Virginia Beach, Boulevard.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED TAX DECREASE

The City Manager of the City of Virginia Beach has proposed to City Council to reduce the tax rate by 9.5 percent from 74 cents to 67 cents per $100. This will more than offset the average increase in general reassessments of 9.3 percent and result in a decrease in taxes for over 60 percent to the assessed parcels.

however, if City Council does not adopt this proposal there is hereby given a:

NOTICE OF TAX INCREASE

(Published in accordance with Section 58-785.1 of the State Code)

The City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, proposes to increase property tax levies by 9.3 percent. Individual property taxes may however increase at a percentage greater than or less than the above percentage.

There will be a public hearing on the budget on Wednesday, April 30, 1980, at 2:00 p.m. and a public hearing on the assessments on Monday May 5, 1980, at 2:00 p.m.

The Reverend William Austin, minister of the Virginia Beach Christian Church, tells Windsor Woods Elementary students that a minister does much more than preaching a Sunday sermon.

Beach skiers learn

Still snow in West Virginia

Virginia Beach skiers have learned that even with less than average snowfall in the East this winter, Snowshoe, West Virginia, will be skiing well into Easter and beyond with up to 85 inches of snow on the slopes.

With 170 inches of natural snowfall (somewhat less than normal) continued cold temperatures have allowed the West Virginia resort to make over 10 feet of additional machine made snow.

When most of the eastern areas are closing early Snowshoe with its 4848 foot elevation and cold temperatures has maintained one of the largest snow bases in the east, for a major part of the season.

Early season skiing began in November and will continue into April giving the skiers 140 days to enjoy their sport. Even in April, temperatures still drop down below freezing and 2 inches of snow fell on the last day of March.

Special events

Special events have been planned for the Easter holiday weekend. Mountain entertainment featuring "Night Sky", a modern mountain music trio, is scheduled nightly. Along with egg hunts, there will be the first annual "Bunny Challenge", a race for skiers under 12 years.

The special significance of the religious holiday will be celebrated with a Sunday sunrise service followed by an Easter buffet.

Snowshoe continues its "Almost Heaven" ski season with special pricing of discounts of 50 percent on lodging and skiing. "Almost Heaven" season has been especially popular with the new skier who has always wanted to try the sport. The warmer temperatures and forgiving snow is also inviting.

Beach anglers learn

Surf fishing picking up

By ED LEWIS

For all you Chesapeake and Virginia Beach surf fishermen, who have been anxiously awaiting the arrival of the big blues, my best advice is to head south to the Outer Banks.

On Monday, April 7, large schools of blues appeared in the surf at South Nags Head and Rodanthe. Rod Pierce of the Hatteras Island Fishing Pier told me that the blues started biting at 7:15 in the morning and didn't slack off until 4:15 p.m.

Once they did, the croakers picked up the tempo, and they weighed in at over three pounds.

Rod told me that the blues weighed anywhere from 8 to 20 lbs.

David Brown, who works at the pier, landed himself a 20 lb. citation blue.

Blues hitting

Rod said that the blues were hitting anything you put in the water and that David's citation was caught while he was fishing for croaker with shrimp on a bottom rig.

I personally would suggest a fireball rig with cut bait or a hopkins lure. Those blues can get pretty vicious for a bottom rig.

I also was able to get in touch with Damen Tatum, of Tatum's Bait and Tackle Shop at Nags Head. He told me that this was the first real action of the season and it really looked good.

He said that some of his friends, who were commercial fisherman, had been catching some spot and grey trout in their nets. That's in addition to the blues and croakers that were being caught by the surf fishermen.

So maybe it won't be too long before we'll have some action in that area also.

If you plan to go to the Hatteras Island area, and you drive a four wheel drive vehicle, be sure to obey the signs that regulate what sections of the beach are closed to traffic.

Last year on my first trip I got a ticket for just turning around on a closed section of the beach. I had no intention of breaking the law, but it cost me $50.00 anyway.

So obey the signs to the letter.

Freshwaters A-1

On the freshwater scene, things are still looking good. Otis Nelson had the following fishing report for me from the Northwest River Campgrounds, and the action is improving.

On Tuesday, April 1, Jim Allen and Jeff Steward of Chesapeake caught one bass, one perch, three bream, one warmouth bass and eight crappie. The largest crappie weighed in at 1 lb. which is a nice size crappie.

On Wednesday, Junior Grey boated 15 crappie and the Rev. Ivey Carter (See BASS p. 7)

chance to perform. "This is the second major theatrical production of the year, and we've had good community support. This is important because all our shows must be self supporting."

The play "Oliver" is loosely based on Charles Dickens' book, "Oliver Twist."

Winners announced

Virginia Beach Ocean Fun Horse Show reviewed

By GREG GOLDFARB
Sun Editor

Eleven Virginia Beach equestrians received awards last weekend at the second annual Virginia Beach Ocean Fun Horses Show.

The show was held on the grounds at Camp Pendleton, and sponsored by the Virginia Beach Horse Association, 3 years old, with 120 members.

Cystic Fibrosis

Proceeds from the show, approximately $2,000, will be donated to Cystic Fibrosis, a childhood disease, inherited in nature, characterized by the functional failure of the glands that secrete mucus and digestive ferments.

The show lasted for four days, with 450 entries, (some coming from as far away as Illinois,) with 450 entries, competing in one or more of the show's 30 divisions.

Winners were awarded "coolers," or horse blankets. They were also given trophies and ribbons.

11 local winners

Horse show secretary, Mrs. Henry V. DiNunzio, Jr., said that for 11 Beach horses to win awards, or approximately one-sixth of the 63 total winners, is very good.

"For one-sixth of the winners to be from Virginia Beach is excellent," DiNunzio said.

"Especially if you consider that some of the horses here will eventually become 'best of the year' horse winners in later competition."

"Also, we had horses from as far away as Illinois, and St. Louis competing; so the competition was rough."

Show director, Carol Webb, said horse shows are held for various reasons.

"Of course we all like the shows so we can congratulate each other on how good our horses look," she said jokingly.

"But, really, many people compete in the shows for money. It is their full-time job."

"And it's always such a nice affair to get the family outdoors to watch the beauty and grace of the handsome horses."

Braided manes, such as this one on "Inevitable," owned by Virginia Beach resident Meg Escalante, was a common sight among the horses, some of which will go on to be "Best of the Year."

Pinky Hipp, riding her Bay Black Mare "Irish" had little difficulty handling this particular jump.

Virginia Beach resident Mary Cary Baldwin gives "Centerfold" some last minute attention. The horse is kept at Plain Bay Farms, and owned by Katie Monohan.

Even the horses get hungry, but they eat grass and hay. People at the show were eating hot dogs and drinking coke and beer.

Mayor thanks Creative Displays

Virginia Beach Mayor Patrick L. Standing recently presented Creative Displays sales manager Sandi Liner with a resolution from the City Council for Creatives contribution of 25 billboards throughout Tidewater urging people to "Stand up and be Counted" in the 1980 census.

According to Liner the reason Creatives contributed the posters rests in the fact that "The census will effect all members of the community for years to come, not just the government but individuals and businesses."

Day of service

Rotary helps residents

By JOHN FAHEY

Working to "Let Service Light the Way," members of Rotary International in honor of Rotary's world-wide 75th anniversary have dedicated the extra day during this leap year to service to the community.

Recently under the coordination of Rotarians Hugh C. Barton and John R. Griffin members of the Virginia Beach Rotary Club contributed their extra days of service by assisting non-profit Virginia Beach community activities.

Some members gave their time and energies to assist the Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department's and Library's Annual Clothline Art Show, held at Pembroke Mall.

Several Rotarians painted the interior of the Girl's Home on Virginia Beach Boulevard, while others worked on the grounds of the United Way Family Center.

Robert W. Berry, Jr., President of the Virginia Beach Rotary Club, expressed his pride in the efforts of the membership at a recent meeting. "I know of no better way to celebrate this milestone in Rotary history than that shown by our members in dedicating an extra day in this anniversary year to service to such worthy causes in our city."

Such dedication to service is the essence of the true spirit of Rotary."

Rotary member Hugh C. Barton paints a kitchen in a local resident's home.

tising selection process before Ricketts came up.

In the affair involving Oral Lambert, he said, he maintained that the city used a double standard in administering an ordinance. "Anyone who fairly judges will have to say a double standard was involved. Public Works Director Oral Lambert had sought a variance to subdivide the property on which his home is located into two lots, one a flag lot. The matter was approved administratively while similar requests, Ervin has said, must be brought before Council.

Mrs. Oberndorf's asked that charges against city employees be substantiated before their characters were damaged.

"Muckraking is not my style," Ervin said, but when a citizen lodges a complaint my oath of office tells me to pursue the question.

Ervin several weeks ago questioned the selection process and suggested a Council member be appointed to the Committee. Council approved including the Council member.

Ervin Monday pointed out that in 1973 when the initial committee was picked two members of Council served but over the years they apparently were dropped. The committee's selection is by Hanbury with the assistance of James DeBellis, director of Economic Development.

Ervin pointed out that the procedure involves $2.5 million over which Council has no control. (Councilman George R.) Ferrell and (former City Councilman Charles V. Gardner were put on the committee for that very reason.... I did not dig this thing up."

Councilman John A. Baum said that "nobody would handle the personnel the way you're handling city personnel." He said the morale of the citizens was at stake.

Ervin retorted that "When it suits you you're quick to condemn anybody. Hanbury had a chance to respond. The response was less than satisfactory."

Mrs. Oberndorf said she did not endorse a double standard, but she maintained that Ricketts was never given an opportunity to explain.

She read a letter from Ricketts explaining the ski trip which was in February 1978 although the newspaper reporting the story had originally reported it was last year.

A member of the firm, Bob Evans, is a close friend of the family, Ricketts said, and that when Ricketts accepted an invitation to Wintergreen for his family he assumed it was to the Evans condominium. When he learned that he was to stay at the Agency cottage, he paid all costs, he said. He said he went to Wintergreen to give his eight-year-old son a chance to ski with the Evans children whom he knew.

"We're not trying to cover up for anybody," Mrs.

Oberndorf said the city has "a lot of city volunteers and people elected to office who want to serve." Since Watergate, she said, immediately, everyone is suspect. "I'm not a pollyanna but I do not believe everybody is evil."

She said 100 people called her Sunday after the ad appeared. She pointed out that she had to depend on a telephone answering device because she did not have an office, a secretary or a maid. Ervin had said that answering devices turn him off.

She said that she didn't think Council members should be expected to buy an ad to state their position (one caller had suggested as much) everytime someone brings something up.

"We need to open the wound and let the pus run out," she said.

Councilman Barbara Henley said she was "greatly concerned when I received a letter saying I was content to allow a cover-up. She added further that Ricketts had abstained from voting for the ad agency and said that her Easter holiday had been "desecrated" by the calls she received on Sunday. She said that as soon as she talked with the people, however, they began to have doubts about the cover-up charges.

Ervin said that Mrs. Oberndorf was doing Ricketts no favor by reading his letter. He said that one point made in the Sunday ad was that "we should not become that close to anyone we do business with."

Councilman Clarence A. Holland said that he did not appreciate having reports in the press of things that come up during executive sessions.

Hanbury said that the Davis and Phillips Advertising firm of Virginia Beach made a good presentation but that the survey capabilities of the Martin Agency were better. Jerome Davis, of the Virginia Beach agency inserted the controversial ad in the newspaper.

He said that at least 85 percent of the money will be spent outside of Virginia Beach "in the areas we want to hit. I think the committee made an adequate decision."

Skip Hendrix, a member of the committee and manager of the Schooner Motel, said the committee was pleased with its election of Martin Agency. He said the committee did an objective professional evaluation.

He said that 17 firms from North Miami Beach to Annapolis Md. bid for the contract, but that in the preliminary phase most of the agencies, including two Virginia Beach firms were screened out on the basis of submitted data.

The two local firms were later permitted to make presentations on the direction of City Council.

Bass are hitting

On the same day, Jack Burdick and Richard Garvin of Chesapeake landed seven bass and one pike. The bass averaged 2 lbs. and the lone pike weighed in at 3 1/2 lbs.

3 large catches

Skip Inskeep and Wally Myers, both of Virginia Beach, showed their skill on the river by boating seven nice bass and one pike, as did A. L. Ward of Chesapeake who managed to pull 10 crappie and one white perch from the river.

"The River Rat," Rowland Marshall, showed his talent and good luck by boating 20 crappie and two pike. Rowland goes fishing nearly every other day, and he always catches fish. Between him and Junior Grey, I am surprised there are any fish left in the river.

April 2 also proved successful for M. N. Pate and R. Alexander. These two anglers probably caught the largest variety of fish this week with their catch of two bass, eight crappie, five bream, two perch and one pike.

On April 3, Rowland Marshall, "River Rat," and W. N. Dean loaded up with 30 nice crappie. I bet Junior Grey wishes he had gone on that day because he doesn't want "The River Rat" to get anything up on him.

On Friday, Frenchy Grioux of Virginia Beach boated a 7/4 lb. catfish and a 2 1/2 lb. pike (chain pickerel).

On Saturday Johnny and Ricky Smith of Chesapeake caught 26 crappie and C. R. Walters landed six bass and three crappie. The bass averaged 2 lbs. apiece.

Wow, some bass!

Billy Tanner and Jack Burdick of Chesapeake, also tried their luck on Saturday. Though they didn't set the world on fire with quantity, they sure made up for it on size.

They caught a total of five bass. Billy had one that went 5 lbs. 1 oz., and Jack had two bass that went 6 1/2 lbs. each...three real nice fish!

On the same day, Slim Mizel of Chesapeake, caught 23 crappie. That is a nice day's fishing for one angler. Slim also ranks high among the more successful fisherman on the North West River.

Bobby Lewis and Dan Newhart loaded their creel with 26 crappie, one bass and one white perch. Johnny and Butch Hartman of Chesapeake, caught their limit of 16 bass. Johnny and Butch were fishing with shiners for bait.

A. L. Ward and Danny Braunberger of Chesapeake caught four bass, four pike and two crappie.

Larry and Walter Garland caught one catfish (5 lbs.), three pike, four crappie and two bass.

W. M. Barnes took his son, Jade, fishing on Sunday and the anglers boated eight crappie, one bass, one pike and four bream.

As you can see, the Northwest River is not only producing larger fish but quite a variety. It sounds like it could provide some real interesting fishing for those who want to give it a try.

Good citizenship

Smith honored by D.A.R.

The National Society Sons of the American Revolution has awarded its Silver Good Citizenship Medal to Margaret Moore Bonner Smith.

She was cited for "Recognition of notable services in behalf of our American principles," a spokeswoman said.

Dr. Howard L. Hamilton, State President of the Virginia Society, Sons of the American Revolution presented the award to Mrs. Clarence J. Smith, Jr.

Mrs. Smith is the Regent of Princess Anne

County Chapter DAR, District 1 director for the Virginia state DAR and has been the Senior State President of the Children of the American Revolution for the past four years.

Mrs. Smith reorganized the Cavalier Society C.A.R. in Virginia Beach.

Mrs. Smith is from Elizabeth City, North Carolina. She graduated from Salem College and now teaches third grade at Alantone Elementary. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have three children skip, Curt and Bonner.

Business

The hearing, at which each party's claims are presented orally to the arbitrator, may be skipped if each party agrees that written arguments and evidence will be sufficient. Without such an agreement, the arbitrator conducts a hearing. Each party then presents his or her case, including evidence or witnesses if desired, and is allowed to question the other party and their witnesses.

The proceedings are informal but orderly, and all parties and witnesses are sworn to tell the truth.

The arbitrator judges whether evidence is relevant to the dispute and may reject it if it is not. Additional evidence may be requested from either party if the arbitrator feels that it is necessary for a decision.

Reducing workload

The arbitrator decides on an award within ten days of the end of the hearings. The award may be entirely in favor of one of the parties or it may be partly in favor of each. It can involve any remedy within the scope of the original arbitration agreement that is allowable under state laws.

If arbitration is by a three-member panel, the majority prevails. The award is binding on both parties under the arbitration agreement. Results, like the hearings, are confidential.

For consumers, BBB arbitration represents an informal, no-cost way to complain to an impartial "judge" who has the power to remedy the problem. The process is convenient and cost-saving for businesses, too, and many of them commit themselves in advance to arbitration of customer complaints that can't be resolved otherwise.

And, arbitration doesn't lock the parties in combat. They are free to resolve their dispute by themselves up until the announcement of an award, and if they do this, arbitration proceedings are dropped.

Courts and lawyers sometimes refer private marketplace disputes to BBB arbitration programs. The Better Business Bureau believes that an expanding national consumer arbitration program could help to reduce the workload on the court system.

Advertising Selection Committee make-up

By LEE CAHILL

Sun staff writer

The Advertising Selection Committee is composed of six lay persons, each with one vote and six Virginia Beach city staff members who have a combined vote of three.

The hotel-restaurant community is represented by four members—Skip Hendrix, president, who is president of the Innkeepers Association and manager of the Schooner Motel; Mike Savvides, past president of the State Restaurant Association, president of the Virginia Beach Restaurant Association, and owner-operator of Ramada Inn and the Black Angus Restaurant; Bob Herman, owner and manager of the Light-house Restaurant, and W. C. Egan, past president of the Innkeepers and owner-operator of the Dunes Motor Inn.

The community business interests are represented by Dan L. Kensil, personnel administrator for Stihl, Inc. and Clenton W. Shanks, president of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce and manager of the Virginia Beach Office of Veeco.

Of the administrative staff, city manager George L. Hanbury and James DeBellis, Economic Development director, each have one vote, and the ninth vote is made up of one-fourth vote each of four Economic Development staff members—James Ricketts, tourism coordinator; Hugh Barton, convention bureau manager; Harold Gallup Jr., industrial coordinator, and Mrs. V. C. Venable, administrative assistant.

The voting on the advertising agency was not revealed, but DeBellis said that because of Ricketts' long-standing friendship with a member of the Martin agency, he abstained from the voting process.

Viking Construction Corporation, A Virginia Corporation, and Sweetbriar Development Corporation, A Virginia Corporation, Plaintiffs, vs.

Eastwood D. Herbert, Trustee, and Walter E. Smith and Eleanor E. Smith, and their heirs, successors, devisees, assigns and surviving consort, if any, and Noteholders or Holders, referred to below as person or persons unknown, and Person or Persons Unknown.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

THIS DAY, came the Petitioners, Viking Construction Corporation and Sweetbriar Development Corporation, Virginia Corporations and upon the Affidavit of one of the officers of Viking Construction Corporation and the Petition Previously filed herein, and

IT APPEARING to the Court that the Petitioners, Viking Construction Corporation and Sweetbriar Development Corporation are the owners of record of certain real property located in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, known as Parcels E and F, as shown on the plat entitled "Plat of Property of Lynn Construction Company", which said plat is dated October 11, 1963, and recorded in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, in Map Book 59 at page 48; Parcels E and F appear to be part of the same property conveyed to George T. McLean and William E. Witt, by deed of Walter E. Smith, and Eleanor E. Smith, dated May 16, 1960, by instrument recorded in the aforesaid Clerk's Office in Deed Book 635 at page 94; the said George T. McLean and William E. Witt having granted a certain deed of trust to Eastwood D. Herbert as trustee by instrument dated May 16, 1960, and recorded in the aforesaid Clerk's Office in Deed Book 635 at page 97, securing a certain promissory note payable to the order of Walter E. Smith, and Eleanor E. Smith, in the original principal sum of $35,000.00; that due diligence has been used by the Petitioners to attempt to locate the said Walter E. Smith, and Eleanor E. Smith, without success, and that there may be heirs, devisees, assigns or successors in interest to Walter E. or Eleanor E. Smith, as well as persons who are the holders of the aforesaid promissory note secured by the aforesaid deed of trust as subsequent transferees or assignees thereof; and that the identity of such persons is unknown to the Petitioners, and believe that the aforesaid promissory note has been paid in full and that the security interest in the aforesaid real property by the holders thereof should be extinguished. It is therefore, "ADJUDGED, ORDERED AND DECREED" that if any of the above-named defendants, including person or persons unknown and the transferees, if any, of that certain promissory note referenced above, desire to assert any objection or defense to the release sought in this cause, or to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear and determine this cause, he shall file his answer or a responsive pleading, specifying his interest therein, and the grounds for any objection or defense, or to the jurisdiction of this Court to hear and determine the case, on or before the 7th day of May, 1980, and it is further ORDERED that, a copy of the Order shall be published in the Virginia Beach Sun, once a week for four successive weeks, and posted at the front door of this Court in accordance with Section 8.01-317 of the Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended.

I ask for this: Thomas M. Haskins, p.p. A copy-Tes: J. Curtis Fruit, Clerk Phyllis N. Styron, D.C. 3432 Va. Beach Blvd. Va. Beach, Va. 23452 4/4/16 VB

Kellam students win V.P.W. writing contest

Steve Walls and Jill Epstein, journalism students and seniors at Kellam High School, won second place awards in the recent Virginia Press Women's high school student writing contest for Tidewater senior high students.

Walls' article, "Diagnostic tests in English, math, social studies given," garnered second place in the news category. Epstein's article, "Visiting post captives audience," placed second in the features category.

Both students, who write for the Kellam High newspaper, Roundtable, received certificates for their efforts from the V.P.W. district director Cyndi Young.

In a letter to Mrs. Flo Blankenship, journalism sponsor at Kellam, Young calls her group's first writing contest a "Complete success." "The judges were highly complimentary of the quality of writing and the variety of topics," Young said.

Behind the scenes during the making of Stihl's new safety film. Only "Jake" the chain saw operator will appear in this section of footage.

Stihl makes new safety film

By SUSIE MEYST
Special to the Sun

As sales of chain saws increase in Virginia Beach, local newspapers are running headlines such as: "Chain Saws are a Danger," "Chain Saw Peril," "Chain Saw Accidents Increase," and "Chain Saw Mishap Classic."

While the titles are hard-hitting, one must read further than the bold headlines. In every article, there is information which either directly or indirectly points to user error or carelessness.

In one case, a state legislator in Pennsylvania nearly lost a toe when he was holding a log with his foot clad only in sneakers. The saw became wedged in the wood and he tried to muscle it out with the engine still running. Result: Another needless accident.

Stihl, the world's largest manufacturer of chain saws, has addressed this problem by the recent completion of a brand new film on chain saw safety. While a chain saw, like any machine, can be dangerous if used incorrectly, Stihl has taken a very positive, educational viewpoint to further aid the new chain saw owner.

Any chain saw owner can understand and benefit from this filmed message entitled, "Chain Saws and Common Sense—A Guide for People with Both."

An owner's manual is packed with every Stihl saw sold. To further instruct and help the new saw owner, Stihl's new ten-minute film is available to Stihl dealers nationwide in Fairchild cassettes and 16mm reels.

Interested?

When a customer is interested in purchasing a Stihl chain saw, the dealer can show him the film, an easy step-by-step demonstration on the proper fueling of a chain saw, starting the chain saw, how to carry a chain saw while walking up hill or down, the safe and proper way to fell a tree, safe procedures for limbing and bucking and choosing the right clothing to wear while operating a chain saw.

Designed to primarily educate the consumer, the film deals with a husband and wife who are not professional woodcutters, but occasional chain saw users cutting wood for fireplace use or clearing small trees on their property. A neighbor, Jake, is the "chain saw expert" and the one who instructs the young couple on proper chain saw usage. As they learn safe techniques, so does the viewer.

As noted by Don Kyle, executive vice-president of Stihl Incorporated, "The chain saw can be a helpful machine, but like any piece of machinery, it has to be treated with care and respect. A project like this film is expensive, but we feel that owners need to be shown the basics in good operating procedures. If this film helps avoid one accident, it will be well worth the money."

Distribution

According to Jack Guthrie, manager of Marketing Services for Stihl, this film is currently ready for wide distribution. "We at Stihl are extremely anxious to help the user practice good safety habits when using a chain saw," says Guthrie.

With this film in distribution at Stihl servicing dealers around the country, it is Stihl Incorporated's intention to make an effort to educate every new Stihl chain saw owner in the belief that, with correct usage, his name need not appear under one of those bold headlines.

Stihl's safety film has been adapted to a Fairchild unit to be used throughout the dealer network numbering over 8,000. It is also available in 16mm film for use in a wide range of areas, including clubs, organizations, high school vocational classes and television.

If your company or organization would like a copy of this film, just write to Mr. Jack Guthrie, manager of Marketing Services, Stihl Incorporated, Oceana West Industrial Park, 536 Viking Drive, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23452.

"Sailor of the Year"-Herrington

By K. M. OFFINK
Special to the Sun

The Fleet Reserve Association, Branch 166, presented Fleet Combat Training Center, Atlantic, Sailor of the Year OSI Charles K. Herrington with a trophy in honor of his outstanding efforts in 1979 on 17 March 1980.

The trophy, which will be kept by the command, is the first to be presented by the Fleet Reserve Association to a Fleet Combat Sailor of the Year. In February, the Fleet Reserve Association presented a similar trophy, also the first of its kind, to the Sailor of the Year at Oceana Naval Air Station.

The Association consists of active duty and retired personnel from all the Armed Forces, and has a local membership of about 3,000. They plan to add the names of future Sailors of the Year to the trophies in recognition of the support given the Association by both Fleet Combat Training Center and Oceana personnel. Also given to OSI Herrington by the Association were a plaque and a $100 savings bond.

In his nomination for Sailor of the Year, Petty Officer Herrington was cited for his outstanding technical abilities, which have earned him recognition throughout his service in the Navy. He has often been selected over more senior petty officers (See HERRINGTON p. 7)

Scottish festival set

About 5,000 Scotsmen, would-be Scotsmen, and Virginia Beach residents are expected to attend the Second Annual Tidewater Scottish Festival to be held May 10-11 at the Holiday Trav-L-Park in Virginia Beach.

About half of the participants are expected to come from outside the Tidewater area.

This year's event, which has grown into a two-day affair, will honor the Clan McDonald and its many kindred branches.

Activities

Added to the 1980 schedule of activities will be bagpipe competitions. There will also be competition in the traditional Scottish dances, such as the Sailor's Hornpipe, Irish Jig and the flings. The piping will be judged by Roddy McDonald of Delaware; the dances by Jeanne Roberts of Michigan.

For persons wishing to trace their clan affiliation there will be a research booth on the festival grounds. For those who are inspired by the continuous Scottish folk music there will be country dancing (from which the American square dance was derived).

Browsers will enjoy the wares of merchants from all over the country who will display such items as Scottish records, fabrics and jewelry. There will also be available traditional Scottish foods, such as meat pies and Forfar Brides, a meat-and-vegetable pastry once favored by the coal miners, and crafts of raw wool spun on a wheel and woven on a loom.

"Everything has been planned to take us back to our grass roots," said Mrs. Eleanor Unger, vice president of the festival group, a body presently made up of about 40 volunteers. "But we are growing all the time," she said.

Also of great interest will be the Scottish games for the adults and the novelty races for the young children.

Caber toss

The games will include such colorful events as the caber toss and the sheaf toss, which is comparable to balancing and tossing a stripped pin tree, and throwing events that will involve hefting stones that weigh 28 and 56 pounds. (See SCOTTISH p. 2)

City Council

Budget reduction fails

By LEE CAHILL

Staff writer

An attempt to reduce expenditures in the proposed 1980-81 Operating Budget for Virginia Beach by $5.2 million failed by a 6-4 vote of City Council Monday afternoon.

Councilman Donald Merrick proposed in his motion to reduce expenses by $5.2 million and to transfer that amount to the reserve. This would leave the total budget at $202.9 million but would increase the reserve to $10 million.

His reasons were that the economy was declining; that Federal school impact funds may be reduced or eliminated by Congress; and that the City's revenue may not be as great as anticipated.

He stipulated that the decrease would not affect the proposed increase of 20 police officers, 30 new firefighters and the wage increase for all city employees.

Councilman J. Curtis Payne said he would rather wait until after the

King's Grant PTA meets

The King's Grant Elementary School PTA will meet at the school on Monday, April 21 at 7:30 p.m. for election of officers, a physical education demonstration by students, and a book fair.

Under the direction of Mrs. Carmen Childress, physical education instructor, children from grades one through seven will present class exercise activities typical for each grade level. Students will also perform dances which they themselves have choreographed.

Seashore State Park

Museum to open in June

BY GREG GOLDFARB

Sun editor

Seashore State Park's $49,000 environmental education building, now under construction, is due to open by June 1, according to park supervisor Jim Barton.

"Construction began on the facility in January, 1980," Barton said, "and the expected completion date was March 13."

"But bad weather and snow has put us behind schedule, and we now hope to have the building built by May 1, and filled with exhibits for the public to view by June 1. The old museum will be used for demonstrations and lectures."

1,024 square feet

The new 1,024 square foot building is being funded through a bond issue, enacted in 1977 by the Virginia General Assembly, Barton said, and features mobile nature and wildlife exhibits built by the State.

"Our old museum contains about 14 exhibits," Barton said, "ranging in scope from flying birds, to animals that crawl on the ocean's bottom."

"The new museum will have free-standing cubical column modular exhibits which will be traded between other local parks, such as False Cape, York River, and Westmoreland."

"They will be built in Richmond, and transported to our awaiting museum."

National landmark

Located on U.S. 60 at Cape Henry, 4 1/2 miles east of the junction of U.S. 60 and U.S. 13, Seashore State Park became a national landmark in 1965, according to Danette McAduo, chief ranger interpreter.

"Here at Seashore," she explained, "Virginia Beach residents, and tourists, will find this a truly remarkable sand dune region, abounding with life."

"For this reason, the U.S. Department of the Interior designated Seashore a national landmark in 1965. This natural area covers approximately 2,770 acres."

Fee covers much

The park is open year round, and charges only a parking fee which entitles the park visitor to various privileges.

"The parking fee, which is applicable Memorial Day weekend to Labor Day weekend," McAduo said, "entitles park visitors to free use of boat ramps, fishing, hiking, nature observation, picnicking, bicycling, sightseeing, water fountains, restrooms, free nature trail publications, interpretive programs, and a visitor center."

Interpretive talks

McAduo explained that the "interpretive programs" apply to the 27 miles of walking trails which wind through the park.

"The majority of Seashore's 2,770 acres is preserved as a natural area to observe some unique forms of

In Virginia Beach

Several new Virginia Beach Red Cross volunteers received pins designating their positions in an awards ceremony recently held at the Naval Regional Medical Center Branch Clinic, Naval Air Station Oceana. Captain D. J. Michaels, NAS Oceana Commanding Officer, was guest speaker for the occasion.

Present for the ceremony were several Tidewater American Red Cross Leaders including Mrs. Berdelle Dubois, Mrs. Harold Springer and Mrs. Diana Cressy.

Also in attendance were Captain Clyde Jeffrey, Captain John Johnson, Lieutenant Commander JoAnn Craemer, Lieutenant Alan Bennett and Lieutenant (junior grade) Robert McLester as members of the Naval Regional Medical Center Branch Clinic staff.

Lieutenant Commander Joe Findley of Fighter Wing One and Mrs. Paule Ann Ceci were instrumental in coordinating the awards program.

To become a Red Cross volunteer, one must attend an orientation course to be familiarized with the Red Cross organization and the role of a volunteer. Following the orientation, the volunteer must work 15 hours in an assigned position to be eligible for the Red Cross pin.

Obtaining pins were: Janet Adams, Olive Andies, Marlys Austin, Judy Baumstark, Nancy Bower, retail supervisor for Foote Bro's & Co., joined the Jaycees in July of 1979 and immediately started working on the East Coast Surfing championship.

Also, he was involved with the 1st annual porkfest, christmas tree sales, and chaired the Easter Seal Dance-A-Thon. He was elected to the Beach Jaycee's Board of Directors in December of 1979. Mr. Kinard is a native of Virginia Beach and a 1971 graduate of Kempsville High School.

The "Outstanding Jaycee of the Year" Award presented to Mr.

Larry Bell was given for his participation in various projects and his work as a director in the community involvement area of the chapter.

Bell joined the Jaycees in March, 1973 and has held several offices, chairmanships, and appointed positions over the years.

He has received numerous civic and Jaycee related awards and was listed in the 1975 edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America."

Bell is the carpet and oriental rug salesman at Willis Wayside Furniture Store in Virginia Beach and has lived in the city for 12 years.

Campground listing released

In preparation for what is expected to be a banner year for the local and state camping industry, the Virginia Travel Council has released the 1980 edition of Campgrounds in Virginia, a guide to major campgrounds in the state.

More than 85 campgrounds are featured in the Virginia Travel Council publication with information keyed to a state map showing the location of each. All of the publicly owned campgrounds also are described and smaller privately owned camps are listed.

Other useful information included in the publication are a list of major Virginia attractions and data on toll facilities in Virginia. The design of the map-guide permits it to be used in travel folder racks or to be used as a self-mailer.

More than 100 thousand copies of the map-guide are being distributed throughout the eastern United States and Virginia. Chambers of Commerce and travel attractions throughout the state, the Virginia State Travel Service information centers in Virginia, Washington, D.C. and

New York, travel shows and missions, travel offices and private information centers and campground members feature the publication in their distribution systems.

In addition, copies are available by sending 25 cents for postage and handling to the Virginia Travel Council, 2309 East Broad Street, Richmond 23223, or by visiting the VT council Office.

All of these games will be open by age groups to any participants willing to try, after experts have first demonstrated the techniques.

The ever-popular tug-of-war competition will be open to any six-man team wishing to enter and make a try for the games' trophy. Team spokesmen may contact Captain Jim McCaig at phone number 464-4990 for information.

Because of the park's vast covered area the festival will be held rain or shine, Mrs. Unger said. It will start both days at 9 a.m. Sunday will feature an outdoor church service to be conducted by the Reverend Donald Edmonds of Calvin Presbyterian Church.

Daily admission to the festival will be $3.00 for adults, $1.50 for children under 12. Parking will be free. For further information write Tidewater Scottish Festival, Box 2000, Virginia Beach, Va. 23452.

Miles of runway

Oceana once swampland

Air operations is the heart beat of a vital and dynamic Virginia Beach Master Jet Base called Naval Air Station Oceana. Its pulse rate is one take-off or landing every two minutes, 11,000 times per month.

There are over seven miles of runway. The latest equipment is utilized to serve the military air traffic of the East Coast. The only way to really appreciate Oceana's tremendous growth and importance, however, is to look back into the past.

Oceana was originally carved out of 328 acres of swampland in 1940 as an auxiliary airfield. Wartime growth pushed its status to Naval Auxiliary Air Station in 1943 and by war's end the number of men and aircraft aboard had tripled.

In 1952 Oceana was designated a Naval Air Station and the Master Jet Base concept was taking shape. By 1954 Oceana was an all-weather air station, and by 1957 it was officially designated a Master Jet Base.

The longest runways in Tidewater and its location within the city limits of Virginia Beach, Virginia, near the warming currents of the Atlantic Gulf Stream, enable Oceana to operate when other East Coast fields cannot.

Over the past 35 years Oceana has grown to more than 16 times its original size so that today it is a complex of over 5,000 acres, it is now "home for about 9,000 personnel and some 11,000 of their dependents.

Virginia Beach "Gifted"

Students attend college

Approximately 50 eighth graders from Virginia Beach junior high schools have been studying poetry, philosophy, and Russian history and culture in college this semester at a local college.

The students have been attending one of three classes each Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at Virginia Wesleyan College. Sessions taught by three members of the Wesleyan faculty. The joint effort is an extension of the regular program for gifted and talented students of the Virginia Beach Public School system. That program includes students through grade seven.

The enrichment program in the humanities for the selected eighth graders began on Jan. 19 and ends in April.

"This is the second time we have offered such a program at Virginia Wesleyan for eighth grade students," says Dr. K. Edwin Brown, Virginia Beach coordinator for programs for the gifted and talented.

"We have been pleased with the way these students have responded to the courses and to the teaching of college professors."

The students were invited to participate in the program based upon their academic work in junior high school.

Three courses

The three courses being offered are: "Stalking the Wild Simile—Poetry and Poetic Technique," taught by Dr. Gordon Magnuson; "From Icons to Rockets: An Introduction to Russian History and Culture," taught by Dr. Daniel Graf; and "The Art of Wondering—An Introduction to Philosophy," taught by Dr. Lawrence Hultgren.

Beach residents love lobster

"The lobster is luscious," said Valle's Restaurant manager, and Virginia Beach resident Ron Cunningham regarding the "Downeast Lobster Festival," featured at the restaurant located at 4616 Virginia Beach Boulevard, near Pembroke Mall.

"I, along with assistant manager Ed Aboud, and dining room manager Terri Huerta, will be happy to serve local residents."

Valle's is open Sunday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.; and Friday and Saturday, 11 a.m. to 12 midnight. (It is also open on holidays.)

Field Representative, Social Security Administration, Virginia Beach Area

Why a retirement test? It may pay to work to augment benefits

The fact that there is a limit on the amount of earnings a person can have and still receive social security checks continues to be one of the most controversial aspects of the social security system.

The so-called "retirement test" applies not only to retirees, but to people receiving social security benefits as dependents of retired or disabled workers and to survivors of deceased workers.

Under present law, the amount of money you can make and still get social security depends on how old you are. People 65 and over can earn $5,000 in 1980; people under 65 can make $3,720. Earnings over the limit generally reduce the social security check $1.00 for each $2.00 of excess earnings. At age 72 (age 70 beginning in 1982) the earnings test does not apply.

Money saver

The retirement test plays an important role in the effective functioning of the social security system. Essentially it saves money by enabling the targeting of social security benefits to people who are in fact retired or who were dependent upon the earnings of a retired, disabled or deceased person. The amount of earnings a person has is an indication of retirement.

It is estimated that it would cost from $6 to $7 billion to eliminate the retirement test. And the people most likely to benefit from the change are those who already have substantial income.

An estimated 10 percent of retired social security beneficiaries currently have their checks reduced or stopped because they earn more than the annual exempt amount. Although there is no indication of how many people would actually work if there were no earnings limit, many still would not because of health and physical reasons, even if they could find jobs in the current tight job market.

The amount that people can earn and still receive all of their benefits will increase in the future. The law provides for automatic raises of $300 a year in the amount of money people 65 and over can make until the annual amount reaches $6,000 in 1982. For people under 65, the amount increases automatically with increases in general wage levels, as it will for people 65 and over after 1982.

Better to work

As a result, most people are better off working than not working, and are able to augment their social security income substantially. For example, a person who is 65 years old and is eligible for the maximum social security benefit of $533 a month—$6,396 annually—could have $5,000 in earnings for a total of $11,396 in income. He or she could earn $18,272 before all of the social security benefits for the year are withheld.

Likewise a 62-year-old worker receiving a social security benefit of $402.80 could earn an additional $3,720 for a total of $8,573 annually without affecting his social security checks. He or she could earn $13,426 before all of the benefits would be withheld for the year.

It is important for people planning to retire to check with their social security office about the rules affecting earnings. During the first year of retirement, for example, a monthly test is generally applied. Benefits can be paid for months a person does little or no work, regardless of total earnings for that year. To find out how the test could affect you, it's best to discuss your plans with us beforehand.

For more information contact, any social security office. The Norfolk office is located at 200 Granby Mall in the new Federal Building. The phone number is 441-3401.

nature," McAdoo said.

"The visitor's center, or old museum, contains many wildlife and plant exhibits native to the unusual environment found here; it is also a spring board to a system of walking trails totaling approximately 27 miles.

"The most popular trail is the Bald Cypress Trail, one mile long and crossing dunes and ponds, are regularly traveled by seasonal interpreters who give regular tours. A guide book of the trail, to accompany my talk, is also available at the visitor center.

"Additional interpretive park activities include: Evening programs in the park amphitheatre with exhibits of the forest and wildlife in the park; nature hikes conducted daily; and Sunday morning interdenominational worship services."

Bicycles welcome

McAdoo said bicycles are welcome at the park, but only in the appropriate places.

"Bicycles are permitted only on regular park roads and on the mail trail in the nature area," she said.

"They are not permitted on adjoining campsites or on other trails."

She said picnic areas are open to the public, but swimming is not allowed.

"The picnic area is free for public use," she said.

"The area is equipped with drinking water; fire grills and fireplaces; refuse disposal; tables; and toilet facilities.

"Swimming is not available and only registered overnight guests are permitted on the north side of Route 60 to swim."

Camping

Outdoor camping is another feature of Seashore State Park which lures visitors from all over the Country to Virginia Beach.

"People who come here to camp usually love it," McAdoo said.

"In addition to the nature and bike trails, they may also enjoy swimming in the ocean; fishing; hook-ups for trailers; a general store; provisions for pets; picnicing; fires; laundry sinks; dumping stations; and housekeeping cabins."

Seashore State Park's natural area is unique, according to McAdoo, in that tropical and semi-tropical plants thrive here along with temperate plants.

"As visitors walk along the trails, they notice explanations of the various trees they see," she said, "and further notice how different they are from those only a few feet away."

Local tropics

McAdoo said the following plants may be seen in the park:

Dogwood (Cornus Florida):

Dogwood, the official flower of Virginia, is the best known and loved tree in the state.

This small tree, which grows abundantly throughout the woodlands, is not a tree of a season, but a tree that holds charm and fascination the year round.

Its bark is reddish-brown with alligator checking, and its beautiful white flowers appear in the early spring. In autumn the leaves turn to a dazzling scarlet, and orange-red berries in clusters persist after the leaves have fallen. Some mammals and birds feed on these.

Water Oak (Quercus Nigra):

The water oak is a forest tree found usually in swamps or along river banks. The shapely trunk is covered with scaly, light brown bark, tinged with red.

Its leaves are mostly oblong with from 1 to 3 blunt lobes at the end. Its light brown acorn is borne on a thin, saucer-shaped cup. Its heavy, hard, light brown wood is used for fuel more than lumber.

This tree holds its leaves for an unusually long time, and young water oaks in the woods are often green at Christmas time.

Partridge Berry (Mitchella Repens):

From its small white flowers, born in clusters of two, comes a red berry-like fruit which is much sought as an invigorating meal by ground-animals and birds.

Well into the winter the berries last, which with the evergreen, symmetrical little leaves, are cheerful things to look upon as the woods gradually become bare. The partridge berry is often put in a closed glass bowl with mosses and lichens and used as an ornament.

Loblolly Pine (Pinus Taeda):

The loblolly pine is a large, fast-growing tree of the coastal plain. This tree, also known as old field pine, grows up, as this name implies, in old fields and clearings.

This tree bears its bright needles in groups of three. The fruit is a cone which ripens in the autumn, and during fall and early autumn sheds many winged seeds which are widely distributed by the wind. The coarse grained wood is used for building material, piling, and fuel.

White Oak (Quercus Alba):

The white oak is a fine, large, spreading tree which occurs in most of our states. It may stand as a solitary, towering tree, a stately sentinel for many years, or in numbers together forming vast and valuable forests.

The tree's thin, light, ashy gray and scaly bark is one of its distinctive features. Its leaves are bright green with 5 to 9 finger-like lobes. The fruit is a small acorn which is relished by hogs, other livestock, and wildlife.

Black Oak (Quercus Velutina):

The black oak, sometimes called yellow oak or yellow-barked oak further north, is found throughout Virginia, from the mountains to the coastal plain.

It is a large tree with an irregularly shaped crown and large leaves with shallow or deep lobes. When mature, the leaves are dark green and shiny on the upper surface, pale on the lower, and have a spiny projection at the point of each lobe.

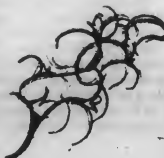

The bark on the very young trunks is dark brown and smooth but becomes black and deeply furrowed with age.

Spanish Moss (Tillandsia):

Spanish moss, the long, silvery-gray festoons that you see, drape these forest trees. This mossy growth give one the feeling that he is entering a great cathedral.

Spanish moss is not a parasite, as is commonly believed, but an epiphyte, which derives neither water nor food from the trees upon which it grows. Having no root system, it merely hangs on the limbs and is seldom, if ever, harmful to the tree.

It is not a moss, but a member of the pineapple family having very tiny yellow flowers which form seeds with sails. We know that its soft, spongy covering absorbs and holds its water supply, but just how it collects and stores its food supply is still a mystery. This is the most northern outpost of this truly semi-tropical plant.

The small, brown, three-sided nuts are almost as well known as chestnuts. One is tempted to arrange these in interesting patterns and shapes.

Sweet-Scented White Water Lily (Castalia Odorata):

If Virginia Beach residents look carefully you will see several tiny white islands. These islands are not really islands, but large clusters of water lilies.

The round, floating leaves are green and shining above, and purple beneath. The handsome flowers rest as gracefully as swans on the surface of the water, which reflects their beauty. The blossoms are white around the outside with a glossy yellow center.

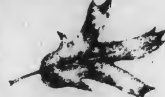

Southern Red Oak (Quercus Falcata):

The southern red oak, often referred to as Spanish oak, is a large and very common tree found in Virginia from the low mountains to the coastal plain.

Its large spreading branches form a broad, round, open top. Its bark is light gray on the young branches and dark gray on the older branches, with slight ridges.

The leaves are either pear-shaped or irregular-shaped lobes. They are lustrous green above and downy beneath.

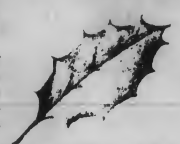

Holly (Ilex Opaca):

We associate holly with cold, snowy nights sleigh bells jingling, Blitzen, Vixen, Prancer and Dancer charging to the roof, blazing log fires, large bowls of spicy punch, tables loaded with good food, stockings filled with toys, and parties all the while.

The traditional use of holly at Christmas comes to us from England just as the evergreen ornament-hung tree custom stems from Germany.

Often thoughtless person strip holly trees for decorations—help us protect these in the park, keep the unspoiled as enduring Christmas decoration in the forest.

Beech (Fagus Grandifolia):

The beech, a beautiful tree in either winter or summer, is very abundant throughout Virginia.

With young lovers and all owners to jackknives, the beech is extremely popular.

Its coarse, pointed, deep green and leathery leaves, which are from three to four inches long, produce a dense shade under which young and old folks are happy to sit.

Michigan to Beach 750 mile trip

By GREG GOLDFARB
Sun editor

On the south side of U.S. 60, cold grey webs of Spanish Moss drip from the trees growing along the trails and in the marshy ponds.

Across the highway, however, evergreen trees and white Virginia Beach sand take the spotlight, bringing visitors from as far away as Deerborne, Michigan to camp on our fair shores.

"This place is really beautiful," said Michigan resident and carpenter, Jason Bogard, 19.

"I've been camping before, but never have I had little furry creatures and wildfowl visit me at the campsite."

Michigan students

Bogard, along with his friends Bob Grul, 19, and Kevin Holeywinski, 19, (both students at Henry Fold Community College), traveled approximately 15 hours, or 750 miles, through thunderstorms, to spend five days at Seashore.

Why did they choose to come here?

"It's not as far as Florida," Grul said, "and it's a really nice drive to get here."

"Also, the people living down here don't have as fast a lifestyle as the residents up North. Plus, the weather here this time of year is unbelievably nice."

Holeywinski added, "It's just really good to get away from home. It's not as natural, and boring. It's also more fun to buy beer here at 18 years of age than having to be 21 in Michigan."

Cost $100 each

The three campers estimate it cost them $100 each for food, lodging, and travel expenses for five days.

"We brought some canned goods and meats," Bogard said, "and I don't think we'll have to buy any additional food while we're here."

The campers said this is their first visit to the Beach, and like it because: "It's so cold in Michigan."

"We have never been here before," Bogard said, "but we have friends who have told us it's really nice."

"It poured rain, and thundered, all the way down here. But sitting under this warm sky, in this wilderness paradise makes the trip all worthwhile."

200 artist/members compete

Nearly 200 artist-members of the Virginia Beach Arts Center took part in the 27th annual Members Show, held recently at the Dome.

The juror, Michael Walls of the Anderson Gallery in Richmond, picked the following pieces for awards of excellence, which also, for the first time, carry cash prizes.

Cash prizes

The first prize went to an oil by H. Jack Spencer "Building North Plaza Trail." Wil Payne, an award winner last year, took second prize with his "Carrying Bowl" and Rio Alden's color photograph "Potrero Hill #2" won third.

A pastel by Kenneth Crowder, "Florida West Coast," was given fourth prize. Three honorable mentions were also awarded: Judy Vermillion, for "In My Father's House," Beatrice Ferguson, for "Half-Empty, Half-Full," and Charlotte Goldman, for "Interior #1."

Merit awards

Awards of merit were given to: Larry Blevins, Edith Franklin, Harriet

Kronick, Nancy Gaechter, Rose McCarthy, C. A. Pauley, W. K. Johnson, Betty Wolf, Dave Bruner, and Mike McMahon.

The judge's informal critique during the opening reception stressed the honesty and poetry of the winning works and the importance of such shows in a community.

"Milk Wood" scheduled

The Performing Arts Unit of Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation has announced its production of Dylan Thomas' play, "Under Milk Wood," at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center/Kempsville Theatre on April 16, 17, 18 and 19 at 8 p.m. on April 20 at 3 p.m.

Welsh setting

The play is an account of a Welsh seacoast village on one uproarious Spring day. Opening with dreams and ghosts before dawn, the show moves through the day filled with hilarious characters and closes as the "rain of dusk brings on the bawdy night."

"Under Milk Wood," always considered to be Thomas' masterpiece, was completed just before his death in 1945. It's first public performance was in New York with Dylan Thomas directing and playing several parts.

It received a prolonged standing ovation, even though the poet himself didn't consider the work to be finished. The BBC broadcast the play in its final version just two months after Dylan Thomas' untimely death.

It was his last bawdy, beautiful work. The script has been staged often and was produced as a movie starring Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor.

No admission fee

There is no admission fee for these performances, but reservations are required and may be made by calling 499-1283.

Budget hearing scheduled for April

Public Hearing on the Budget on April 30.

Of the impact funds, Councilman Clarence A. Holland said that they would probably not be cut all at once and that the government would probably phase them out.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing said that whenever there's an unappropriated surplus, it always seems to be appropriated. He said that if the budget is cut by $5.2 million, he would rather have it put in a tax reduction.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said that people should be shown where they are losing services with the cuts.

Holland said that he'd have a hard time supporting the cut. "I don't see areas that can be cut. We can do it through the year."

Merrick pointed out that if the city runs short later in the year the extra money would have to be made up over a shorter period of times in bigger amounts.

Voting against the motion were Councilmen John A. Baum, Holland, J. Curtis Payne Jr., R. L. Riggs and Mayor Patrick L. Standing. Voting for the reduction were Councilwomen Meyera Oberndorf, Barbara Henley and Councilmen Merrick and Reid Ervin. Councilman George R. Ferrell was absent.

Council has scheduled one work session following the Public Hearing at 6 p.m. on May 2.

Coastline

line Management Ordinance is proving to be less than effective in protecting the primary dunes along the beach at Croatan.

The construction of five houses will be permitted on 20 lots on the ocean front although both the Planning Commission and the city's Planning Department maintained that the construction will result in more than minimal dune disturbance allowed in the ordinance.

City Council Monday afternoon approved a conditional use permit for construction of the homes according to a site plan the fifth-presented by the applicant. The Planning Department, which agreed that the plan was the best possible for the construction of five units, maintained that to allow more than two units is highly detrimental to the dune.

City Council, apparently was looking toward a possible law suit which could develop on denial of the application.

Councilman Reid Ervin said that he would like to stop alal development along the dunes, but I don't feel we're ready to face the law suits. I think we are as far as we can go.

Councilman John A. Baum said the city was hampered by the State which refused to back the city with State legislation.

The only alternative to development is the city's acquisition of beachfront property, which has been supported consistently by city manager George L. Hanbury.

Area residents, who originally opposed the permit application, apparently prefer construction of the five single family homes to acquisition of the property by the city.

Tom Aiken, representing the Croatan Property Owners Association and the South Rudee Shores Civic League, said both organizations voted to support the new plan. "Members felt the alternative (city acquisition of the property) was less acceptable" and "the most influential factor in the vote."

Aiken said, "City ownership seems to offer no advantage to the dunes or public cost...Property will be removed from the tax rolls...there is no insurance that the dunes will be preserved." He said the city is disturbing an adjacent dune and is not enforcing an ordinance banning vehicles from driving over the dunes.

He said the newest plan presented by the applicant has a minimum setback from Atlantic Avenue and will improve the dune line. The houses will be two to four feet higher than originally planned and the deck facing the ocean will be 10 to 12 feet higher—"well above the dune."

Aiken called for Council's clarification of intent and a clear definition of dune disturbance.

Jack Whitney, planner in the Planning Department who helped prepare the ordinance, said that although the plan presented the best way to arrange the five units, he still felt they were not acceptable and did not constitute minimal disturbance allowed in the ordinance.

He said the city can only recommend two units on lots 4 and 9. He said he did not think the wording (See OUR p. 7)

For children ages two through five, the year-round course is now being taught by gymnastics teacher Becky Bundy.

"This course is different than others," Bundy said, "because we teach the parents to spot the children so they can help them practice."

"Tumbling is good for the child in that it helps their co-ordination; and it gets their lives off to a good healthy and physically fit start."

It's topsy-turvy for young Rebecca Wible, as Bundy shows her how to do a head stand.

Four Virginia Beach students have been presented good citizen award's medals by the Princess Anne County, daughters of the American Revolution.

The four students were awarded the D.A.R. Good Citizen Award's medal by Joan Eaton Forinash, chairman of the D.A.R. Good Citizen Award.

Receiving awards were:

Karen Baker, the representative of Cape Henry Collegiate is the daughter of Mrs. Shirley Baker. Katherine Whelahan, is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. R. J. Whelahan and attends Frank Cox High School. John Aguirre, is the son of Mr. & Mrs. Michael Rathburn and attends Green Run High School. Curtis Smith, is the son of Mr. & Mrs.

Clarence Smith and will graduate from First Colonial. Another medal was presented by the chapter to Nancy Rosenberg of Kellam High School, the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. John Rosenberg, but Nancy was unable to be at the meeting. "The medals are presented" a spokesman said, by the chapter to outstanding high school seniors from each high school.

"They are chosen by the faculty and guidance department of the schools on the basis of their leadership, scholastic ability, activities, service to the community and others."

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Herman Hall in Chelsea. Mrs. Peggy Smith is the Regent of the Chapter.

Virginia Beach's Oceana

Sailor of the quarter: Barnes

The supply department's pre-X (pre-expanded) parts shop in the aircraft intermediate maintenance department (AIMD) is a study in miniaturization when compared to the huge jet engines sitting side by side in the power plants shop which it serves.

There amidst the nuts and bolts is Naval Air Station Oceana's new Sailor of the Quarter, Aviation Storekeeper Second Class (AK2) Margaret E. Barnes.

Stationed at supply for the past nine months, Barnes said she was "really surprised" when she was notified of her selection. Although she was Supply Department's Sailor of the Month last year, this is her first station-wide award.

N.Y native

The daughter of Edward and Barbara McWilliams, of Smithtown New York, Margaret graduated from Smithtown High School East in 1974.

Barnes is presently the supervisor in the pre-X department, where she orders and maintains stock on consumable items normally used in the maintenance of jet engines. Besides her job, she enjoys attending classes at St. Leo's College in Norfolk, and is planning to receive her baccalaureate in Business Administration Management this May.

Husband John

Margaret and her husband John presently reside in Virginia Beach.

During an awards ceremony held April 8, AK2 Barnes was presented with a letter of congratulations by Captain D. J. Michaels, Commanding Officer of Naval Air Station Oceana, a $25 Savings Bond from the Bank of Virginia Beach, and a steak dinner for two

On some Beach farms

Crop rotation important

Virginia Beach farmers should consider their crop rotations and the needs of each field when preparing to plow.

Two Virginia Tech extension specialists noted that tillage needs vary with crops, crop pests, soils and climatic conditions.

Easley S. Smith, extension agricultural engineer, and Daniel C. Brann, extension agronomist, said moldboard plowing is needed in some fields; others should be chisel plowed, and some fields should be no-tilled for erosion control and long-term higher yields.

The pair observed that the wet fall and spring have been a mixed blessing because most producers are "behind" in their tillage, therefore, less soil has been washed away by the heavy rains.

The two College of Agriculture and Life Sciences faculty members observed that leaving crop residue on the soil surface reduced erosion from 18.3 tons per acre where soybean land was moldboard plowed in the fall to six tons per acre where stubble was left on the surface.

Leaving corn stalks on the surface or light fall disking reduced soil losses to 1.1 tons per acre compared to 9.8 tons per acre when the land was moldboard plowed.

They asked Virginia farmers to consider carefully their alternatives before spending long hours on a tractor when the weather breaks.

Even small amounts of residue greatly reduce runoff and soil loss. One ton of residue per acre corn crop produces approximately 3.5, 1.5 and 2.5 tons of residue per acre, respectively.

The pair said all compacted fields must be tilled. Extremely weedy fields or those with John-songrass should be moldboard plowed. Other fields, such as those being readied for peanuts, should be moldboard plowed for disease control.

However, they said, the chisel plow or heavy disk may be satisfactory in many cases for tillage and pest control.

General Hospital

400 receive screening

At General Hospital of Virginia Beach, the Coronary Risk Factor Screening Clinic screened over 400 persons recently, with participants arriving at the hospital by 7:30 a.m. and continuing until closing time at 1:30 p.m.

Blood pressures, heights and weights were recorded, and a bicycle fitness test offered. A film on the coronary risk factors was shown to all participants.

Those who had fasted for 12 hours were also able to participate in tests for triglycerides, blood sugar, and cholesterol levels.

Results of the test program were sent to both the participants and their physicians by mid-March.

Debbie Henderson, coordinator of the program, reported that special thanks should go to the American Heart Association, Norfolk State College, Emergency Medical Services, and the Cardiology Department for their assistance with the program.

Vet convention slated

By SKIP HENDRIX

Special to the Sun
 "Going to take a sentimental journey, going to set my heart at ease."
 "Going to take a sentimental journey, to renew old memories."

These beloved lyrics from the World War II ballad "Sentimental Journey" will undoubtedly "renew old memories" for the thousands of American veterans expected to attend the Virginia Beach Innkeeper's first "Sentimental Journey" convention in April 1981.

Innkeepers

The "Sentimental Journey" project, which the Innkeepers are sponsoring in cooperation with the Virginia Beach Convention Bureau, is designed to honor this country's war veterans. The first meeting will specifically honor those of World War II.

Theme for the 1981 gathering will be "Sights and Sounds of the '40s Era," according to Innkeepers President Skip Hendrix.

"Our opening event will be a dance featuring a big band from the swing era," he said. "And mid-week we plan a big USO show with some of the internationally-known headliners of that day." Dates are April 1-12.

Basically, "Sentimental Journey" will be a reunion of military units from all corners of America.

Patriotism

"With this new upsurge in patriotism," Hendrix said, "we feel it's time to get people involved in giving recognition to the servicemen, especially the veterans in our country."

With five military installations within its boundaries, it was logical that Virginia Beach should be the home of the "Sentimental Journey" gatherings. But it is expected, as Hendrix pointed out, that the numerous military bases in the Tidewater area will also be involved.

The base commanders thus far contacted have been most enthusiastic, Hendrix said. There are already preliminary plans underway for military-related events, such as open houses, air shows, etc.

Timing for the first "Sentimental Journey" is quite appropriate; 1981 will be the 40th anniversary of the beginning of World War II. Also, the dates selected coincide with a confirmed convention of the American Legion's honor group, "The 40 & 8".

"And with our long involvement with the military," Hendrix said "it is quite appropriate that Virginia Beach host the reunion of America's veterans, this year and in years to come."

Veterans organizations desiring to attend the 1981 "Sentimental Journey" are requested to contact the Virginia Beach Convention Bureau, P. O. Box 136, Virginia Beach, Va. 23458 or call 804-422-1776.

A group of 27 women, enough to field two teams, is participating in the spring lacrosse program which includes eight matches.

The season concludes with the state tournament, April 19 through 20, at William and Mary College in Williamsburg.

Denman, a sophomore at Randolph-Macon, also participates in the Gold Key Club.

The program featured group discussions, films, analysis of individual smoking patterns and behavior modification techniques.

Stickney selected as gifted

Carolyn Gay Stickney, a student at Green Run High School, has received word from the State Department of Education that she has been selected to attend and participate in the eighth annual Governor's School for the Gifted.

Her selection brings to 24 the number of Virginia Beach high school juniors and seniors chosen. Stickney had been an alternate in the initial selection process, but was notified on April 7 that an appointee had been unable to attend and that her name was then chosen to fill the vacancy.

She will now be one of 140 students attending the school at Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg from Jun 15 to July 12; at state expense. Two other Virginia colleges will also hold sessions at the same time, bringing the total number of students selected statewide to 420.

of the ordinance was ambiguous and that construction, under the ordinance should be permitted only west of the dune crest.

Heleen L. Foss received the permit for dune disturbing activity on a 2.5 acre parcel at the southeast intersection of South Atlantic Avenue and Maryland Avenue.

The matter was deferred for 30 days on Feb. 25 and for three weeks on March 24. Of the 20 lots on the plat, some are on the sandy beach and the rest are at least in part on the seaward face of the dune. The city recommended that only two houses be built on two small breeches in the dune.

City manager George I. Hanbury maintained that anything more would deny the dunes full access to windblown sand, deny the dunes direct unobstructed access to wave action which fosters beach replenishment, and deny the dunes full benefit of vegetative cover in order to stabilize over time.

Under the approved plan, five houses will be built on the Atlantic Avenue lots, which are divided from another row of lots to the east by a paper lane. Each of the houses will have four lots, two street side and two ocean side.

Frank Butler, attorney for Mrs. Foss, said that the dwellings will be close to the street and that flexible walks will be placed over the dunes. Dunes which are removed will be reconstructed seaward.

Robert Smith, Chesapeake Beach resident, opposed the application.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley questioned whether the city's Federal Flood Insurance rating would be jeopardized by allowing continued construction in fragile areas.

The permit was approved by a vote of 9-2 with Councilwoman Meyers Oberndorf and Henley voting against approval.

Parking spaces

Remember those 85 parking spaces on Atlantic Avenue in the Beach Borough which City Council took away last year?

Well, they're going back in this year by order of City Council Monday afternoon.

Businessmen agitating for reinstatement of parking along the four block area from 17th Street to 21st Streets finally have their way with some help from Councilman W. L. "Buddy" Riggs.

The businessmen have complained all along that the no-parking had hurt their businesses and maintained that traffic flow hasn't been improved by the ban.

One of the spokesmen for the businessmen, Joe Hausa, said "We know it's not working. Besides, the tourists like the crowds on Atlantic Avenue."

City manager George Hanbury said that he could not OK reinstating the parking on the street. In fact, he was about to recommend further parking bans on Atlantic Avenue.

He said the city was spending $60,000 to $70,000 to synchronize the lights at 20th and 21st Street, and that the signals at 17th Street and Atlantic and Pacific Avenues are being replaced to coordinate. He asked that the changes be given a chance to work.

Councilman Donald Merrick said he didn't think the left hand turns were "doing what we think they're doing." The left turn lanes were installed when parking was banned.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing said the final solution is one-way streets on Atlantic and Pacific.

Hausa and Lee Forbes, the other spokesman, said that the way loading zones are placed forces trucks to back onto Atlantic Avenue across a pedestrian crosswalk.

Hanbury said that the vendors are the greatest violators of double parking.

Councilman John A. Baum said that if the city made more room more people would go to the Beach, and it would still be crowded.

Hanbury said that he was concerned about the 2 1/2 million tourists.

Hausa said, "We're behind you 100 percent," but the "people com to the beach for the crowds."

Baum suggested a four-week delay to give the synchronization of lights a chance to work. His motion was denied by a vote of 7-4 with Baum, Riggs and Mayor Standing voting for deferral. A motion to reinstate parking succeeded by a vote of 9-2 with Baum and Ferrell dissenting.

"Our Own"

The controversial "gay" publication, Our Own will be kept out of all Virginia Beach public libraries until City Council finds out what its legal prerogatives are.

The Library Board, a Council-appointed policymaking body, recently decided to stop distribution of the publication from the city's libraries, but to keep it in reference departments. Some groups in opposition, including two Council members, find the newspaper offensive even in the reference sections.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing told Council at an informal session Monday afternoon that since the Library Board decision last week, the "correspondence which I have been receiving and the phone calls lead me to believe I am not prepared with adequate information on the library affair."

The complaining councilmen, Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. and R. L. "Buddy" Riggs, had sought complete removal of the papers from the city's libraries.

Publishers of the newspaper apparently have been sending copies to Council members. Councilman John A. Baum asked city clerk Ruth Smith to ask the publishers not to send him a copy any longer. "Some of us don't have secretaries," he said. "We have so many trying to keep us well-informed."

Councilman Reid Ervin said he wanted to be informed and to have the newspaper delivery continued.

Riggs and Councilman George R. Ferrell said they didn't want the publication delivered either.

Standing instructed city attorney Dale Bimson to prepare information to help members determine what statements could be made legally, what authority the Council has, and what other cities do in relation to Council's control over reference materials.

He said he needed "insight as to what our decisions can and cannot be...I get the distinct impression, and I have been as silent as I could be...I feel as though I'm going to be sued and when I am I go to win."

To do this, he said he needs the information and until the information is in the publications should not be in the library stands. Although he said he has reservations about whether the city has authority to do that.

Ervin said that the Supreme Court decision on pornography do not include libraries. Some articles in the gay publication are especially explicit.

McCoy said that the standards of the community predominate. He suggested placing a time limit on the information and Bimson agreed to have it within 30 days.

McCoy, addressing Standing, said, "You didn't have the courtesy to tell me you were going to do this today."

"I'm not at all bashful about making the statement," Standing replied. He said others say things without informing him.

Ervin agreed with Standing that "Anything we do will lead to a law suit...most prefer it will go away..."

Riggs said taking it out of the library is the main thing.

When a reference was made to the upcoming councilmanic election, Standing said, his main point had nothing to do with the election. "My concern is we are acting hastily and that we meet the requirements of law."

City manager George L. Hanbury said the publication has not been in the libraries since the furor started and will not be there until Council makes a decision.

Ervin said still open is whether Council will sit in judgment over the Library Board.

Baum said, "We're going to set a terrible precedent," if the decision of the Library Board is overruled. He said the Board's feeling is that "If you're going to do this work, do it. You don't need us!"

TAA sponsored

Neal to visit Busch Gardens

Princess Anne Elementary student Lisa Neal has been selected to go on all-expense paid trip to Busch Gardens on May 10. According to the Tidewater Automobile Association.

These patrols were selected from over 120 candidates who were nominated by adult crossing guards, school bus drivers, school administrators and teachers.

Each patrol nominated was interviewed and patrols did individual safety posters or wrote essays on what benefit they derived from being a school patrol.

or heavy disk can be used, it will leave more residue on the surface, reducing erosion.

Virginia research has shown that better water use efficiency is one of the big advantages of no-tillage. Much of this efficiency is due to crop residue retained on the surface, decreasing water runoff, surface evaporation and serious soil erosion.

The Extension specialists warned Virginia farmers not "to disk the land death" after primary tillage. The disk is a good compactor and can increase erosion.

They cited tests on a 3 percent slope which was moldboard plowed and disked seven times. The soil loss was 13.5 tons per acre while comparable land which was moldboard plowed and disked once only had a loss of six tons per acre. The field which only was plowed, had 1.5 tons of soil runoff.

"To conserve fuel and reduce erosion, disk only enough to prepare a seedbed which will provide good seed-to-soil contact. Those fields with a lot of clods will need more than one disking, but all will not," they said.

Additional information can be obtained at a local Extension office.

Viking Construction Corporation, A Virginia Corporation, and Sweetbriar Development Corporation, A Virginia Corporation, Plaintiffs, vs.

Eastwood D. Herbert, Trustee, and Walter E. Smith and Eleanor E. Smith, and their heirs, successors, devisees, assigns and surviving consort, if any, and Noteholders or Holders, referred to below as person or persons unknown, and Person or Persons Unknown.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

THIS DAY, came the Petitioners, Viking Construction Corporation and Sweetbriar Development Corporation, Virginia Corporations and upon the Affidavit of one of the officers of Viking Construction Corporation and the Petition Previously filed herein, and

IT APPEARING to the Court that the Petitioners, Viking Construction Corporation and Sweetbriar Development Corporation are the owners of record of certain real property located in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, known as Parcels E and F, as shown on the plat entitled "Plat of Property of Lynn Construction Company", which said plat is dated October 11, 1963, and recorded in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, in Map Book 59 at page 48; Parcels E and F appear to be part of the same property conveyed to George T. McLean and William E. Witt, by deed of Walter E. and Eleanor E. Smith, dated May 16, 1960, by instrument recorded in the aforesaid Clerk's Office in Deed Book 635 at page 94; the said George T. McLean and William E. Witt having granted a certain deed of trust to Eastwood D. Herbert as trustee by instrument dated May 16, 1960, and recorded in the aforesaid Clerk's Office in Deed Book 635 at page 97, securing a certain promissory note payable to the order of Walter E. and Eleanor E. Smith, in the original principal sum of $35,000.00; that due diligence has been used by the Petitioners to attempt to locate the said Walter E. and Eleanor E. Smith, without success, and that there may be heirs, devisees, assigns or successors in interest to Walter E. or Eleanor E. Smith, as well as persons who are the holders of the aforesaid promissory note secured by the aforesaid deed of trust as subsequent transferees or assignees thereof; and that the identity of such persons is unknown to the Petitioners, and

IT FURTHER APPEARING, that the object of the Petition filed herein and this cause is to obtain a release by this Court of that encumbrance and deed of trust which exists of record on the aforesaid real property by virtue of that certain deed of trust granted by George T. McLean and William E. Witt, to Eastwood D. Herbert, Trustee, by instrument dated May 16, 1960, and recorded in the aforesaid Clerk's Office in Deed Book 635 at page 97, securing a certain promissory note in the original principal sum of $35,000.00, payable to the order of Walter E. and Eleanor E. Smith, which said release is requested upon the Petitioner's belief that the aforesaid promissory note has been paid in full and that the security interest in the aforesaid real property by the holders thereof should be extinguished. It is therefore

ADJUDGED, ORDERED AND DECREED that if any of the above-named defendants, including person or persons unknown and the transferees, if any, of that certain promissory note referenced above, desire to assert any objection or defense, or to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear and determine this cause, he shall file his answer or a responsive pleading, specifying his interest therein, and the grounds for any objection or defense, or to the jurisdiction of this Court to hear and determine the case, on or before the 7th day of May, 1980, and it is further ORDERED that a copy of the Order shall be published in the Virginia Beach Sun, once a week for four successive weeks, and posted at the front door of this Courthouse in accordance with Section 8.01-317 of the Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended.

JROTC at Oceana

Spring tour group visit

The spring touring season is in full swing at Naval Air Station Oceana in Virginia Beach for visiting Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps (JROTC) cadets.

Naval Air Station Oceana inaugurated its 1980 season with recent visits by Navy JROTC units from high schools in Indiana, New Jersey and North Carolina.

High school student members of Navy, Army and Air Force JROTC units will visit NAS Oceana at a weekly clip until school lets out in June. The groups will be exposed to Oceana based fighter and medium attack squadrons and other station departments and activities.

Inspect fighters

On a routine visit, cadets are afforded an opportunity to inspect Navy jet fighters and medium attack bombers close up, look inside the jet's cockpit, and receive briefings on the mission of the squadron and capabilities of the aircraft by professional Navy pilots and Naval Flight Officers who fly and navigate the planes.

Movies and slide presentations are also shown to acquaint the cadets with the world of Naval aviation.

Visiting JROTC units also tour other major Tidewater Naval installations when they are in the area.

Booked up

Between now and the end of May, Oceana is "booked solid" with JROTC groups from North Carolina, Tennessee, New Jersey, New York, Kentucky, and Maryland. Additionally, two Virginia high school groups are slated for visits: Newport News and Danville.

NAS Oceana plays an integral part in Tidewater's JROTC tour program. Assigned squadrons demonstrate the importance of Naval aviation to cadets who will become future jet pilots and mechanics.

Two escort officers from Attack Squadron 176 (far right end) hosted the students' tour of their squadron. On Eastern Shore

Flounder biting well

Virginia Beach Sun Outdoor Writer

As predicted, the Eastern Shore's seaside channels are already producing fine catches of flounder. On Monday, I talked with Virginia State Game Warden Mickey Esham of Accomac county. He told me that charter boats out of Chincoteague, Quimby and Wachapreague are coming back with as many as 50 fish per boat. Mickey did tell me that the flounder being taken are small but, with a couple more weeks of warm weather, I think we will notice an increase in size.

Mickey also told me that net fishermen are catching plenty of grey trout near Hungers Creek on the Bayside. So it shouldn't be long before the sports fisherman start picking up on this action also.

Bluefish tactic: on move

The bluefish are up to their usual tactics. One day you'll catch them at one location, and the next day they'll come ashore several miles up the beach. Although they are catching them as far north as Virginia Beach, you would probably have your best luck around Oregon Inlet this weekend.

I plan on heading down that way on Friday with hopes of fishing at south Nags Head near the Inlet unless I receive some better advice from Damen Tatem at Tatem's Bait and Tackle Shop at Nags Head.

Damen delivers bait to most of the piers and keeps abreast of what is going on down there as far as the fish are concerned. So if you should go down that way, you might want to stop in and see him and find out where the fish were caught the previous day. His shop is located at the 12 mile post (across from the high sand dune). He would be more than glad to help you out.

Freshwater action good, too

On the freshwater scene, the action is really looking good. Otis Nelson, down at the Northwest River Campgrounds, told me that this past week had been one of the best he had had this season. There seem to be plenty of bass, crappie, pike and catfish just waiting for some lucky angler to dangle a shiner in front of them.

Otis had the following names and catches for me, and it looks like everybody caught fish.

On Tuesday, April 8, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. McMillan of Norfolk went out on the river to try their luck. I don't know what their total catch was, but I do know that they did bring back a 7 3/4 pound catfish.

On Thursday, Junior Gray came back with 15 crappie and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Phillips of Chesapeake caught 16 crappie.

G. R. Weber, of the USS America, also went out on Thursday and caught five catfish which averaged 2 lbs. each. Rowland "River Rat" Marshall, caught 13 crappie, one bass and one bream.

On Friday, Junior Gray went out on the river again. This time he took along his wife, Louise. The two of them brought back 20 nice crappie. On the same day Slim Mizell kept the average by boating 10 crappie.

Johnny and Butch Hartman and Melvin Hobbs of Chesapeake tried their luck on Saturday morning and luck is what they had. The trio caught 27 bass keeping the 24 largest. The largest fish in their string was 5 pounds and that is a real nice bass.

Big Saturday catches

Other action on Saturday included: three bass for Walter Gregory of Chesapeake, 18 crappie for Pat O'Farrell of Chesapeake, 14 crappie for Bill and Teddy Dean; six bluegill, six crappie, six pike and one catfish was taken by C. R. Walters and Jim Ellis of Chesapeake; W. E. Forny and Mike Jameson caught 15 bream, two catfish and 10 white perch.

"River Rat" Marshall showed off his skill once again on Saturday by catching three nice catfish. Two of the fish weighed in at 4 lbs. each and the third catfish was a nice 10 lb. citation.

On Sunday Pat O'Farrell teamed up with Johnny Hartman and it seems as though they came up with the right combination. The two anglers caught 52 nice crappie and 9 bass. That is a real nice days worth of fishing.

On the same day, Don Allen and Midge Carmine of Virginia Beach caught 17 crappie, one bream, one catfish, and two pike. Pat Myers and Frenchy Giroux caught four pike, seven cats, two bass and eight bluegill, and Bill and Teddy Dean came back with a nice 8 lb. 4 oz. catfish.

Areas close for new anglers

On Monday, Robbie Robinson, from over at Lake Smith and B. Gaskill caught 16 crappie, 15 bream and 1 catfish. On the same day Rowland Marshall and Slim Mizell of Chesapeake caught 2 pike (3 lbs. apiece) three catfish, two bass and 30 crappie. The pair had one real nice crappie that went 1 lb. 7 oz.

If you are new to the area or just new to the fishing world and feel like you want to go fishing, don't let the far off names I mention in my column scare you off. The Eastern Shore is only a one hour drive away and it offers some of the best salt water fishing in the world as does the Outer Banks of N. C. which is only 1 1/2 hours away. On the Eastern Shore you can find very reasonable charter boat rates if you don't own your own boat. As for the Outer Banks of N. C., you don't need a boat. You can fish the surf, and it is a real treat.

If you are interested in freshwater fishing, Otis Nelson down at the Northwest River Campgrounds rents boats at a reasonable daily rate as do many of the other area hotspots.

So don't sit at home and just read about what everybody else is catching. Get out and catch your own. Fishing is a sport that the whole family can enjoy.

Corvette concours at Cavalier

Six Beach residents win

By GREG GOLDFARB

Sun editor

Sponsored by the Virginia Beach Corvette Club, Neptune's Trident IV Corvette Concours of cars and owners was held recently on the front grounds of the Cavalier Hotel.

Six Virginia Beach residents won awards at the event, out of a total of 30 awards presented. Fifty-one cars participated this year, compared to 72 last year.

Gas prices hurt concours

Concours (show) director Lyle Pope explains the decline.

"This year's number of cars is very low," he said, "probably because of two reasons."

"First of all, the obvious gasoline situation. High fuel prices forced many exhibitors from traveling to the concours. Some of the vehicles used to drive to the Beach this year, and trailer a car, only get about 10 or 11 miles per gallon.

"This year alone, it will cost me $900 to travel to the Corvette concours already scheduled this year by the Southern Confederacy of Corvette Clubs (SCCC).

"Secondly, last year's figure was higher because last year's figure was higher because last year the Beach club held the East Coast Corvette convention. This year it will be held in Fayetteville, N.C."

Local VBCC

The Virginia Beach Corvette Club is a member of the SCCC, and boasts a roster of 42 members, the largest club in the SCCC, according to Pope.

The non-profit organization raises money to pay for concours awards by washing cars, sponsoring bake sales, and charging entry fees for concours, and auto-crosses (races).

This year, however, pope said the concours lost money.

"We lost about $180 this year," Pope said, "because of at least two reasons."

"There wasn't a high number of entries which cut the number of dollars we raised in registrations; and this concours was the very first one of the year."

Corvette judging

Judging for the concours is done in three categories, by a total of eight judges.

Stock cars and Touring cars are judged by six judges, two judging the interior; two the exterior; and two the engine.

Custom cars and Race Prepared cars are judged by two judges, who each judge the entire car.

"We do it this way," Pope explains, "to make the scoring even out more closely than if just one or two judges judged. We want to eliminate any bias."

Pope explained the difference between stock and touring car classes.

"Stock," she said, "means that the car is primarily

(See STOCK p. 5)

Between five and 10 thousand people were on hand to see the Corvettes on display over the two day, Virginia Beach Corvette Club sponsored, Neptune's Trident IV concours and auto-cross.

Recreation activities for handicapped set -May 9

Mainstreaming handicapped children into recreation activities with non-handicapped children will be the topic of a workshop to be held Friday, May 9, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center, 800 Monmouth Lane.

The workshop is one of four being held throughout the state as part of a grant awarded to Virginia Tech's recreation program area by the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"We will provide tips on planning activities appropriate for both handicapped and non-handicapped people," explained Gene Hayes, associate professor of recreation at Virginia Tech. "Also, we will encourage community agencies to work together in planning, publicizing and implementing these programs."

According to Hayes, people in many communities are uncertain how to meet the needs of the handicapped. Public Law 94-142, which mandates equal educational opportunities for handicapped students, also applies to community recreation services, he said.

Local leaders

Workshop leaders include Hayes, a specialist in therapeutic recreation and recreation activities for the retarded; Skip Wilkins, a Virginia Beach resident and U.S. wheelchair athlete; John Dattilo, inservice training coordinator for Southeastern Virginia Training Center in Chesapeake; Paul Heine, from old Dominion University's department of recreation; and Gerald Hitzhusen, a therapeutic recreation specialist from the University of Missouri at Columbia.

A workshop fee of $10 covers a notebook of materials for each participant. To register, contact Tracy Perez at Virginia Tech's Donaldson Brown Center for Continuing Education, (703) 961-5182.

Josef Dacanay

Philippino businessman comfortable at Beach

By GREG GOLDFARB
Sun editor

He and his wife come from a small group of islands in the western Pacific Ocean: The Philippines.

Josef Dacanay, 35, is a certified public accountant and real estate broker turned businessman; his wife, Elizabeth, a doctor at Fort Lee Army Hospital.

Together, they came to American in 1969, settling temporarily in Los Angeles, California; later moving to Canada; and have now settled in Virginia Beach. And he couldn't be happier.

"This is the best place I've ever lived," Dacanay said from his specialty food store "Nuts and Barrel" in the Great Neck Square Shopping Center.

"The Beach is like L.A."

"The Beach is like Los Angeles 10 years ago. I drive down the street and see construction to my left and to my right. I think the city is very progressive here."

Dacanay feels the tourists in Virginia will support two other specialty stores at the Beach; one in the Cavalier Hotel, the other in The Inlet House, Rudee Inlet. Both should be open by May 1, according to Dacanay.

But Dacanay had to come a long way before becoming a Virginia Beach businessman.

Son of an attorney

He is the son of Alfred Dacanay, a lawyer; and Felicidad, a school teacher.

Educated in the Philippines, he attended St. Louis Elementary School in Baguio City; and La Union High School in the La Union Province.

He attained his bachelor of commerce degree from the Far Eastern University in 1967, of which he said, "I gave up the extra-curricular activities and devoted more attention to my studies."

School systems alike

He said the American and Philippine school systems are very similar.

"There is hardly any difference between the schools," he said, "because we are heavily under American influence, politically and academically, even though we have been independent since 1946. We read text books written in English."

Upon college graduation, Dacanay, now a public accountant, worked for John Deere Philippines, the tractor company, as a general accountant.

He worked that job for two years before he and his new wife moved to America. He took a cost accounting job then for a Los Angeles pharmaceutical firm.

Dacanay sells many wares out of barrels

"But we had to move to Toronto Canada," Dacanay explained, "so my wife could finish her medical training."

"In Canada, Dacanay worked for Ottawa based construction/engineering firm for three years. It was after that, that he decided to go into business."

"I decided to change careers," he said, "and I wanted to become a businessman, an entrepreneur."

Next he distributed Philippine movies, for a Canadian film company.

"I was banking on nostalgia," he said.

"I thought that there were so many Philipinos in Toronto, they would like films about the homeland, and past events."

Back into accounting

But Dacanay went back to accounting, because being on the road with the films, "was too much of a strain on my marriage."

He became an accountant for the Mount Sinai Hospital in Toronto for 18 months, but "we decided to come back to the U. S. again," he said, "because I thought she and I would both have better job opportunities here."

"We initially went to New York for a few months. She applied for some jobs in the Army. They called her and offered her a job at Fort Lee, about 30 miles from Richmond."

"I bought a house in Virginia Beach in early 1979, and I see Elizabeth every other day."

Dacanay says real estate is "not his thing," and opened his first business in August of last year.

"There's no stores like mine in Tidewater," Dacanay said.

"I tried to get in a mall, and they said I could not 'sell enough' fruits, preserves, nuts, and specialties to pay the rent."

"I have been to various cities all over the world, and I see food stores in all the malls; but in Virginia it is not acceptable; it is very conservative."

In Canada you see 5,000 square foot food stores in malls.

"Dried foods is something new. If it works in Canada, it should work here."

Like to travel a lot

Dacanay said he and his wife have little spare time but when they do, "we travel a lot," he said.

"We'll go to Daytona, Orlando, or Las Vegas. But I stay here a lot because I love the beach."

"I'm not a Virginia Beach resident, likewise most of the people I meet. That's why I feel comfortable."

The agenda of the evening will include: appreciation for volunteer parents that have given such tremendous support to the school throughout this year, the donation of gifts acquired for the school by our PTA funds, and two detective skits put on by our students in Mrs. Lloyds drama class.

Call 497-0163 for more information.

AAWB holds luncheon

The Awards Luncheon of the Virginia Chapter of the American Association of Workers for the Blind (AAWB) was held recently at the Holiday Inn Ocean Beach at Virginia Beach.

Gerard J. Arsenault, awards committee chairman presided at the luncheon where seven awards were made and one special citation was given. Mary P. Wollenberg of Richmond, made the Luncheon arrangements.

Art students exhibit

The art students and art teachers of Virginia Beach City Secondary Schools will present their annual art show at Pembroke Mall, April 24-May 3.

On Saturday, May 3, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., students will demonstrate art techniques in the Mall, offering passersby an opportunity to "get involved."

Judges for this year's show will be Teresa

Annas, art critic and writer for the Ledger-Star and a former Virginia Beach art student, and Diane Porzel, a professor of art and education at Old Dominion University.

Nine cash awards have been donated by the Hermitage Foundation in Norfolk. Merit and Honorable Mention award recipients will also be selected by the judges.

Jazz ensemble performs

The Virginia Chapter of Young Audiences and the Virginia Beach Recreation Center will sponsor a performance by the American Jazz Ensemble at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center theatre at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 24.

The performance is free and open to the general public.

Lighted candles are a beautiful sight. They give a soft glowing light that electric lights cannot duplicate.

Christians are like candles. They give a golden glow that illuminates their every act. The Bible says if you are a Christian "You are the light of the world. Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father who is in heaven." Matthew 5:13-16

Let others see what a difference Christ has made in your life. Light a candle in the darkness.

Virginia Beach Little Theatre

"The Best Man" — April 11

By LOUISE HALL

Special to the Sun

Gore Vidal's political melodrama "The Best Man" raised a few eyebrows when it opened on Broadway 20 years ago because of its behind-the-scenes political intrigue. A few more eyebrows will probably be raised here in Tidewater when the play is presented by the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach.

With Sam Hakim directing, and Fran Petersen assisting him, the controversial show will not only have Vidal's own twice-updated conversations but further contemporizing to make the plot even more topical—does "Ronnie Reagan really do his hair?" Mrs. Gamage, the party's committeewoman, knows!

Political plot

"The Best Man" revolves around two candidates who are attempting to get their party's presidential nomination, the crusty ex-president whose endorsement each needs and the trials (or maneuvers) of the two wives, who hope to see their husband become president.

The cast boasts some of the area's most talented performers. Stephen Brown, retired from the U.S. Army and American Express, portrays the "good" candidate, a role he played a number of years ago in Massachusetts, and whose theatrical expertise has found outlets also in Georgia, Indiana, Vermont and Canada.

The "Bad" candidate is enacted by Walter Doyle, and English-drama professor at Tidewater Community College whose off-campus efforts have been seen at Norfolk Little Theatre, Tidewater Dinner Theatre, Norfolk Theatre Center and other local companies.

Phil Uhler

Phil Uhler brings to life the crusty old ex-president whose influence each of the men relish. He recently returned to the area after a lengthy sojourn aboard his Chinese junk. Uhler's stage experience is broad and lengthy but he is probably best remembered locally as Willie Loman in "Death of a Salesman" and the king in "The King and I", the show that opened the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach's new theatre in 1971.

Terry Worrel

Mrs. Gamage is portrayed by the popular Terry Worrel, a stalwart in both amateur and dinner theatres throughout the area, who has won audience acclaim in such musicals as "Mame," "South Pacific" and "Man of La Mancha."

Rumble, Dewberry

The two wives are Bernice Rumble and Jane C. Dewberry. Mrs. Rumble, an admiral's wife, gave up a promising theatrical career in favor of motherhood and the Navy life, but not before she achieved an impressive list of credits, especially in the Washington, D.C. area.

It has been a number of years since she last appeared locally, but she hasn't "lost her touch." Ms. Dewberry, on the other hand, has been so prominent in local theatre her credits are too lengthy to list. A school teacher and talented performer, her work has run the gamut from performances in musicals such as "Anything Goes" to dramas such as "Rain."

She has costumed such challenging productions as "Twelfth Night" and "George M" and has also worked as stage manager, assistant director and other jobs.

Aides to the two candidates are John Hendriksen and Wayne Price. Hendriksen, a resident manager of an oceanfront hotel, has been seen most recently in "Witness for the Prosecution" and "Ah, Wilderness." Price, an attorney, appeared in Norfolk in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," "The Children's Hour" and other productions.

Others in the cast are Jim English, former president of the LTVB under whose guidance the group founded its building at 24th Street and Barberton Drive; Paul Isel, Terry Elliott, Paul Berryman, Kenna Fraser, Lee Tapman, Brad Doddridge and Kim Newsom.

Performance dates are April 11-12, 18-20, 25-26. Reservations may be made by calling 428-9523.

Beach residents learn

"I Do! I Do!" cast announced

Patrick Tovatt, Virginia Stage Company producing director has announced to Beach residents the cast of the Premiere Season 1980 production of Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt's musical comedy, "I Do! I Do!"

Rosalind Harris and Michael Hartman are cast as She and He in this warm and tender musical written by the authors of "The Fantasticks." "I Do! I Do!" is based on Jan de Hartog's "The Fourposter" and starred Mary Martin and Robert Preston on Broadway. Complete with a barefooted softshoe routine,

Harris and Hartman sing such memorable tunes as "My Cup Runneth Over With Love" and "I Love My Wife."

Harris is most noted for her Broadway and Film role of Tzeitel in "Fiddler On The Roof." She has performed On and Off Broadway, in the television commercials and the daytime drama "One Life To Live." Her regional theatre appearances include the Arena Stage in Washington D.C. and the Barter Theatre in Abington, Virginia.

Hartman has just completed the successful Off Broadway musical production of "The Housewives Cantata" and was recently seen in the Equity Library Theatre production of "All the Way Home."

He appeared on and off Broadway, in regional and stock theatre, in television and film and has done over fifty national and regional television commercials.

"I Do! I Do!" plays at the Virginia Stage Company Wells Theatre, located at Tazewell and Monticello in downtown Norfolk, May 1 through May 18. For details, phone 627-1234. Student, group and service discounts are available.

Children perform

The Star of the Sea Church Children's Choir will present Hal Hopson's musical "Moses and His Freedom Fanatics" on April 27, at 6:30 p.m.

The performance will be in the church (1404 Pacific Avenue).

The cantata focuses on the troubles Moses had with the Israelites and Egyptians during his flight to the promised land.

Your number's up

By HARVEY RIDINGER
Field Representative, Social Security Administration, Virginia Beach Area

Almost 785,000 students between the ages 18 and 22 receive monthly social security checks because of the death, disability or retirement of a parent (or, under certain conditions, a grandparent) who worked long enough under social security.

If you attend college but have not completed the requirements for a bachelor's degree, your checks can continue until the end of the semester or quarter in which you become 22. If you attend a trade or vocational school, your checks can continue until you complete your course or for 2 months after the month you reach 22, whichever comes first.

Your checks will stop earlier if you marry, stop attending school, or reduce your attendance below full time.

Who is full-time student?

Under the social security law, you're a full-time student if you attend a university, college, or junior college in the United States and the college considers you to be in full-time attendance according to its standards for day students.

If you attend high school or trade or vocational school, you're a full-time student if:

You're considered in full-time attendance by the school; enrolled in a course of study lasting at least 13 weeks, and enrolled for at least 20 hours a week.

You're not eligible for student benefits if you're paid by an employer to attend school because he or she asked or required you to do so.

Schools that qualify

You can get student benefits if you attend any of the following kinds of institutions:

A high school supported or operated by a State or local government, or the Federal Government; vocational or trade school supported or operated by a State or local government, or by the Federal Government; State college or university or a community college; private school or college approved by a State or accredited by a State-recognized or nationally recognized accrediting agency, or unaccredited private school or college, provided that at least three accredited schools or colleges accept its credits on transfer on the same basis as credits transferred from an accredited school.

Schools outside the United States may qualify under certain circumstances. For information about a particular school, get in touch with your social security office.

Check during vacations

Your checks can continue during a vacation period of not more than 4 months if you were a full-time student before the vacation period started and you intend to return to full-time attendance after the vacation ends.

If your checks stop because you decide not to return to school full time, but you change your mind before the end of the 4-month period, you can get back payments.

Earning can affect checks

Your earnings from a job or self-employment may affect your social security checks. Earnings for the entire year must be counted. This includes months both before and after your benefits begin, as well as months after your benefits end. Here's how it works:

In 1980, if you earn $3,720 or less, you'll get all your social security payments for the year.

If you earn more than $3,720, we will withhold $1 in benefits for each $2 you earn above that amount.

The earnings of your parent on whose record you get social security checks may also affect your checks. For instance, if your parent didn't get a check for one or more months because of his or her earnings above the annual limit, then you won't get a check for those months either, even if you didn't work.

When student benefits start

If you are under 18 and receiving social security checks, we will send you a notice a few months before your 18th birthday. It will explain what you must do if you want to continue getting benefits as a full-time student.

But you will need to apply for benefits if you are a student who becomes eligible after you turn 18. You may become eligible at the time one of your parents becomes entitled to retirement or disability benefits or dies. Or you may have been over 18 and not attending school when your parent started getting checks or died. In these cases, your checks can start when you begin attending school full time.

If you are eligible for benefits but apply late, you can get back payments for up to 12 months.

We can pay checks directly to a student or, on his or her behalf, to a parent or some other person who is responsible. You can get more information about this at any social security office.

How to apply

You (or your parent or guardian) can apply for checks at any social security office. When you apply, you should be prepared to give information about your school attendance, such as:

Name and address of the school; dates of attendance for the past year if you are eligible for back checks; your student identification number, if any; number of credit hours you carry if you attend a college, a junior college or a university; number of actual hours you are scheduled to attend each week if you go to a high school or vocational school, and, of course, if it's near the end of a school year, whether you intend to return to school full time after vacation and the date you will return.

Please take your social security card with you if you have one.

Must things to report

If you receive student benefits, you must notify any social security office if you: marry; stop attending school full time, or expect to earn over the annual exempt amount ($3,720 for 1980).

Also twice a year you will be asked to complete a form about your full-time enrollment and have the information verified by a school official. It is important that these forms be completed and returned promptly; if they are not, your benefits could be stopped.

As of December 1978 social security statistical records show the following information about students who receive social security benefits and reside in the cities serviced by the Norfolk office.

City	Number of Student Beneficiaries	Total Monthly Benefits
Norfolk	1105	$175,041.00
Virginia Beach	735	140,031.00
Chesapeake	419	68,062.00
Total	2259	$383,134.00

Information a call away

The people at the social security office will be glad to answer any questions you have about student benefits or any other part of social security. The telephone number can be found in your telephone directory under "Social Security Administration." The Norfolk number is 441-3401. The office in Norfolk is located at 200 Granby Mall, Room 600, New Federal Building.

Seventy-five captains and team members from Chesapeake, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach attended a luncheon recently to kick off the spring emphasis for the 1980 "Friends of Virginia Wesleyan College" annual fund campaign.

General chairman William B. Cloe, Jr. of Portsmouth presided over the meeting and college president Lambuth M. Clarke addressed the group at the luncheon in Birdsong Lounge.

The goal for this fiscal year ending June 30 is $200,000 for annual operating support. College officials report that just over $100,000 has been received thus far.

Kontopanos

A special citation was presented to James G. Kontopanos of Virginia Beach who has worked for seven years as a captain or team member in the "Friends" program.

Chairmen in the four Tidewater area cities include: Ernest M. Lendman, chairman of the board of Lendman Associates, Ltd., Virginia Beach.

Allen J. Taylor

Virginia Beach hunter wins national honor

Allen J. Taylor of Virginia Beach has been honored by the nation's most prestigious hunting awards program.

Taylor was awarded First Award for his Alaska brown bear by the North American Big Game Awards Program, jointly administered by the Boone and Crockett Club and the National Rifle Association.

Every three years, the finest North American big game trophies taken during the three-year awards period are assembled for a display and awards banquet.

This year's display is being held in conjunction with the 109th NRA Annual Meetings at Kansas City, Missouri.

The trophies are judged by a complicated set of criteria regarding size and quality. All trophies must be taken under NABGAP standards of fair chase—not spotted from the air, herded with vehicles or rounded up with radios.

Taylor's trophy scored 29-11/16 points. The current world record Alaska brown bear scored 30-12/16.

Local observance

Volunteers recognized

The City of Virginia Beach is celebrating National Volunteer Recognition Week (April 20-26).

During this week the City will pay tribute to over 5,000 people who work for the City as volunteers.

"Volunteers range from fire fighters and auxiliary police to therapeutic recreation workers and mental health crisis phone volunteers," a city spokesman said. It is estimated that volunteers save the City from $10-$12 million annually.

"Without volunteers the City would be unable to provide the level of service it currently provides. Volunteer Recognition Week gives the City the opportunity to thank its volunteers for giving their time and talents to the residents of the City."

Russian

Carter

Fahey's 1980-1981 term will be his third as president of the educational association. He served as president of the state chapter in 1971-72 and 1972-73.

According to Fahey the early years of the 70's represented the heyday of Russian language education in the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Russian was offered in secondary schools in Alexandria, Annandale, Arlington, Chesapeake, Fairfax, Norfolk, Richmond, Roanoke, and Virginia Beach.

Despite excellent job opportunities for young adults who are proficient in Russian, most high schools have abandoned Russian language programs because of a lack of strong enrollments.

During his tenure as president Fahey intends to work to reverse the negative trend. "The critical shortage of graduates with a language proficiency," Fahey said, "has led to the introduction of several bills in Congress to provide supplementary financial support for foreign language teaching in sec-

President Carter's Commission of Foreign Languages and International Studies in its report to the President last November described Americans' incompetence in foreign languages to be nothing short of scandalous and becoming even worse. Fahey added, "In direct negotiations with the Soviets in Eastern Europe in the 1960's I found that a lack of accurate Russian interpretations by Americans could easily have led to World War III."

"An in-depth knowledge of Russian culture was also another essential requirement for concluding successful negotiations in the interests of the United States. It is with a sense of urgency that I ask Virginians to press their Representatives in Congress to support a bill being introduced by Representative Paul Simon to implement the recommendations of the Commission."

Russian is no longer offered in the curricula of the Chesapeake, Norfolk, and Virginia Beach public schools.

To ensure Virginia Beach tourist

City Council may spend $1 million on advertising

Merrick, Ervin lash back at Standing; Inn-Keepers and merchants argue about parking; Limit on sailboats.

By LEE CAHILL
Sun staff writer

The City of Virginia Beach may be spending more on advertising than is necessary, according to councilman F. Reid Ervin.

A total of $1,057,777 has been proposed for advertising for Fiscal Year 1980-81. Ervin in a statement released to Council Monday afternoon, said that this could be cut in half without impairing the city's tourist income.

He based his conclusion on advertising budgets of other cities broken down into the tourist dollars generated by each advertising dollar spent.

In 1979 the city spent $973,902 on advertising which generated approximately $160 million or $164.29 per dollar.

This is the second lowest return of the 17 cities included in the Ervin's presentation although comparable figures were not available in five cases.

For example, Hot Springs, which spent $400,000 had a return of $512.50 generated per advertising dollar while San Diego, which also spent $400,000 had a return of $2,247.50.

In terms of dollars generated Ervin concludes that the city's advertising is relatively ineffective or, what is more likely, that the city is spending more than is necessary.

The advertising budget is determined by a formula that Ervin said "has no rational basis and I am surprised that we continue with it year after year and never question it."

The formula includes percentages of the restaurant-lodging tax revenues, amusement tax revenues, media price increases and building permits issued for motel units.

Ervin didn't ask that any action be taken this year but that some consideration to the advertising budget be given before the 1981-82 budget is prepared.

Ervin pointed to the advertising budget as one way of reducing the budget.

His statement supported a proposal by Councilman Donald Merrick to increase the unappropriated surplus in the 1980-81 budget by approximately $5 million. He said that his suggestion would have transferred approximately 2 1/2 percent of the city's proposed expenditures to surplus until the economy had a chance to prove itself.

Equalization of assessments for commercial and other income-producing properties could lead to a substantial increase in revenues, he said, and pointed out that he had recommended a study.

Ervin said that the Erosion Commission budget could be reduced. The Commission, he said, continues to request funding for beach nourishment using both hydraulic dredging and truck haul.

Another cost-saving measure would be the reduction in the use of city vehicles. He said there is still widespread use of city vehicles by employees who are not on a 24-hour emergency call and that there are probably many routine trips that could be curtailed during working hours.

He said that Merrick's suggestion, which failed to receive support last week, should be considered again.

Ervin also included a statement of policy to promote the employment of local architects, consulting engineer or surveyors by the city.

Ervin's recommendations were not discussed by Council Monday.

Mayor receives criticism

Councilmen Donald Merrick and F. Reid Ervin lashed back at criticism from Mayor Patrick L. Standing with a joint statement released at a special press conference Monday afternoon.

At his own press conference on Friday, Mayor Standing said that he would support neither Merrick nor Ervin for mayor. He also said that he would not run for another two-year term when his present term is up June 30.

The statement declared that Standing's remarks were "in poor taste and unbecoming to his office...also ludicrous...because...neither of us has sought the support of any member of City Council for the Mayorship or the vice-mayorship and we can assure the public that we have not sought the support of each other for those positions."

The statement reasserted their support for a direct election of the mayor by popular vote "and if one needs any proof of the wisdom of that concept they need look no further than to Mr. Standing's recent term in office."

They continued that "what we seek is not some ceremonial office that is given as a prize to the best fence straddler but rather a new direction for our city and we want to be a part of a voting majority that will make it happen."

They charged that the city has suffered from poor leadership and the refusal of council to establish a clear-cut policy for the city manager.

They listed issues on which they and Mayor Standing differed. They opposed the purchase of Kempsville and County Utilities as too extravagant, opposed the plan-County improvements to Virginia Beach Boulevard because they were too costly and disruptive to business interests and other roads which could use the money more, they supported a cut in the proposed budget which would not have affected taxes or proposed salary scales.

They also noted that a recent resignation by "one of our best young men" probably resulted from the city manager's failure to promote a highly qualified person from within the ranks."

They also criticized a midnight meeting of several councilmen including Standing and J. Curtis Payne Jr. at a local developer's office to discuss a police investigation.

They concluded that the "mayor is obviously trying to select his successor and to perpetuate the type of Council majority that has served this city without distinction for the past 17 years."

Students exhibit art

Kempsville High School sophomores (l to r) Rudy Bojo, Greg Womack, and Anne Whitley will be three of the Virginia Beach Public Schools students participating in the annual secondary art show at Pembroke Mall April 28 through May 3. The show's finale, "Artists in Action," will feature live demonstrations by student artists on Saturday, May 3. Rudy will draw caricatures with India ink, Greg will demonstrate painting with acrylics, and Anne will draw portraits with pencils. Selected student art work will be on display at the mall throughout the week.

Virginia Beach resident Edith Sheets, a member of the "Virginia Beach Sandwitcher's" fishing club recently caught a pound and a half croaker at Cape Hatteras.

"This is the first fish of the season to be taken by a member of the distaff fishers group," Sheets said, "whose club is well known in fishing tournaments."

Locke completes training

Kathleen Locke, a 26-year-old Beach resident, has returned home after completing training to join the staff of Campus Crusade for Christ International.

Locke was among 110 persons to become staff members of the interdenominational Christian organization during its winter new-staff training held in San Bernardino. The organization currently has some 11,500 regular and associate staff of many nationalities working in 114 countries and protectorates around the world.

Miss Locke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Locke of 725 Great Neck Rd. in Virginia Beach, was an honor graduate at Frank W. Cox High School, then earned a Bachelor of Science degree in management housing and family development at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in 1975.

She attends Virginia Beach Community Chapel.

When asked about the decision to become a staff member Miss Locke replied, "I joined Campus Crusade for Christ because I've seen, through previous employment in fields relating to people, that most people are not fulfilled."

"Social programs are

not the solution for meeting the needs of people. I believe Jesus Christ is the solution and working with Campus Crusade for Christ gives me the opportunity to apply the solution," she added.

"I'm excited about my assignment and the opportunity to serve God through working with Campus Crusade for Christ because I want my life to be used by God to help people find a personal relationship with Him."

"People are God's most important creation," she added.

While in the Virginia Beach area, Miss Locke is available to speak with church and civic groups about her work with Campus Crusade. She can be reached at the home of her parents at 725 Great Neck Rd. in Virginia Beach, or by calling 481-6813.

In Bay, off Cape Blues arrive

Sun Staff writer

Those big blues that usually mark the beginning of the saltwater fishing season have finally arrived in full force. Anglers trolling for bluefish (choppers) in the area of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel and off Cape Henry were rewarded with large catches this weekend.

Erving Wyatt of Cape Charles, Va., loaded up with the large choppers on Saturday and Sunday. Erving also tried fishing for black drum on Sunday but didn't have any luck in that area.

Erving, who is one of the Eastern Shores' noted fishing authorities, told me that you won't see many black drum caught until the water temperature reaches 55-60 degrees and the dogwood trees are in bloom. So I guess we have a week or so to go before drumfishing will be in full swing.

May 1 for Cape Charles drum

Emmet Bailey, who runs Bailey's Bait and Tackle Shop at Cape Charles, agreed with Erving. He said that he had weighed in two red drum (channel bass) and one black drum this weekend. The fish were caught in the area of S-10th Island and the two reds were caught while casting with plugs. Emmet also figures that it will be somewhere around May 1 before it will be worthwhile for Chesapeake and Virginia Beach anglers to make the trip to Cape Charles for drum.

I made the trip down to the Outer Banks this weekend, and I couldn't have wished for any better weather. I was fishing with Ron Lewis of Charlottesville, Va., Bill Borum of Pocomoke, Md. and Larry Wright of Chesapeake. All four of us are related and grew up together on the Eastern Shore. This weekend was a real treat for us to fish together again.

Large blues at Oregon Inlet

The action seemed to be the heaviest on the north point at Oregon Inlet. Large blues were taken by the cooler full all day on Saturday. Casting with Hopkins lures seemed to be the best method but I did fish some with a fireball rig baited with cut mullet.

Jennette's Pier at Nags Head held its own on Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday, the blues started hitting around 9:30 a.m. and didn't let up until late afternoon. I saw several caught that went 14 lbs each and had reports of some even larger.

I left at Jennette's 12 noon on Sunday and the blues had just started hitting on the Hopkins lures. While in the parking lot at the pier, a truck pulled up that had just come from Oregon Inlet. It's driver had about 20 nice blues in the back. So I guess they came ashore a little earlier down there.

Campgrounds catches listed

On the freshwater Northwest River is keeping up with its reputation as one of the area's hotspots. Otis Nelson, down at the Northwest River Campgrounds, had the following report for me.

On April 16, Rowland Marshall caught six crappie, two catfish and 1 bream. On April 17, Marshall and W. N. Dean of Chesapeake caught 13 crappie, eight bream, two bass and one catfish, and Junior Gray and Ray Hill of Chesapeake caught nine bream.

Also, on Thursday, Don Fretwell of the USS America caught three bass and a whopping 40 bream.

On Friday, April 18, Doug Owens and Richard Thomas of Chesapeake caught 24 crappie and one bass. Junior Gray and Rowland "River Rat" Marshall caught 36 bream and three catfish. Two of the cats were citation fish, one weighed 11 lbs. 4 oz. and the other was 10 lbs.

On the same day, Frenchie Grouis boated two catfish, two bass, three pike and one raccoon perch, and A. L. Ward of Chesapeake caught 10 crappie and 10 warmouth. On Saturday, Slim Mizel caught 12 crappie and three bass, and W. E. McCarthy of Norfolk caught five bass and 12 bream while fishing with a fly rod.

Frank Smith Jr., of Chesapeake caught himself a nice catfish on Saturday. It weighed in a 8½ lbs. Maybe the next time he will find one with that extra 1½ lbs. so he can get a citation.

Also, on April 19, Pat O'Ferrell caught two bass and 23 crappie while Marshall once again boated 12 bream. W. N. Dean of Chesapeake decided to take his wife, Teddy, fishing with him on Saturday, and it doesn't appear that she hurt his luck. The couple boated 16 crappie and one nice size pike.

On Sunday, W. A. McCarthy of Chesapeake loaded his creel with five bass and 11 bream, and Glen Hutchingson of Norfolk caught seven crappie and one bluegill.

E. J. Brown and Junior Gray of Chesapeake had the week's largest catch. The two anglers caught 50 bream and two catfish. Two of the bream caught by Junior were citations and weighed 1 lb. 1 oz. each.

W. N. and Teddy Dean returned again on Sunday, and the couple again showed their skill by landing 14 crappie and three pike.

"Notre Dame" visits Oceana

While it wasn't the famous football team from the well known mid-western university, nevertheless, "Notre Dame" recently visited Naval Air Station Oceana in Virginia Beach.

This Notre Dame group was comprised of Navy Junior ROTC cadets from a high school by that name in Utica, New York.

Hangar 122

While at the air station, the students visited Attack Squadron 176, whose aircraft are housed in Hangar 122, and they also sampled "Navy chow" by eating lunch in Oceana's Enlisted Dining Facility.

Two bombardier-navigators, Lieutenants (junior grade) Tome Frey and Marc Tripp, along with LTJG Jim Daigneau, a Navy pilot, hosted the cadets' tour of VA-176.

The New York group's leader, more adequately referred to as a Naval Science Instructor, is Captain Charles K. Schmidt. Captain Schmidt is a retired Naval officer.

April 24

Founder's Day celebration set by Beta Sigma Phi

On Thursday, April 24, the Tidewater City Council of Beta Sigma Phi is planning to celebrate its 49th annual Founder's Day at the Hilton Inn, oceanfront at eighth street, at 6:30 p.m.

At this banquet, Girls of the Year from the individual chapters who have performed outstandingly in sorority this past year will be honored and the Chapter that has excelled in its service, social and cultural programs will be selected as the Chapter of the Year.

History

Beta Sigma Phi was founded in 1931. Life, learning and friendship are the bywords of Beta Sigma Phi. Begun in the midst of the Depression by Walter W. Ross, Beta Sigma Phi was originally designed to provide an outlet for women who, in those hard financial times, could not attend college and were obliged to remain home and support their families.

From the first chapter of seven women in Abilene, Kansas, Beta Sigma Phi has grown into an international sorority of over 250,000 members in 31 countries. Internationally, the members have donated over a million dollars to health research groups, homes for underprivileged children and many other causes.

275 members

Locally, there are 20 active chapters in the Norfolk, Virginia Beach and Chesapeake areas representing more than 275 members.

Each year Tidewater City Council sells flowers at the Oyster Bowl game and donates all proceeds to the Shriners' Crippled Children Hospitals and also sponsors a handicapped party for all handicapped and mentally retarded children and adults in the Tidewater area the first Saturday in June at the Botanical Gardens in Norfolk.

The individuals chapters also have their own service projects such as sponsoring a community craft show in which proceeds from the show are donated to various causes, sponsoring dances for the handicapped, giving parties and visiting the nursing homes and the aged, adopting foster children and grandparents during the year, donating their time and effort to many telethons and walkathons, as well as many other service projects.

For further information, call 622-6533.

Council approves City ordinance on sailboats

Innkeeper Association

The 59-member Innkeepers Association is working with beach merchants and restaurateurs to form one organization to promote their common interests.

But at present, the Innkeepers seem to be a loggerheads, as one councilman put it, with the merchants.

The issue is parking on Atlantic Avenue.

George Leary, operator of the Triton Towers Motel at 35th Street and the Oceanfront, Monday afternoon criticized Council for voting to reinstate parking on Atlantic Avenue in areas between 15th Street and 24th Streets. He said the Innkeepers were not advised that the subject would come up.

He said that the parking ban and the left-turn stacking lanes have helped to keep the traffic moving and "I can't see why the city would take one step forward with stacking lanes and two steps back."

He said that removal of the meters (between 15th and 18th Streets and between 20th and 23rd Streets) which would be replaced with last week's action, were a "Godsend," because of the greater safety of egress from the unmetered areas. With the removal of the meters, loading zones were established on side streets.

Leigh Forbes and Joseph Hawa, merchants along the area, petitioned Council, for the change back to meters and parking.

Leary said the Innkeepers would sooner eliminate parking from all of Atlantic Avenue than to have any parking reinstated.

The traffic situation has caused complaints and check-outs at motels, Leary said, and families with children are not remaining.

City manager George L. Hanbury said that he was ready to recommend further parking bans on Atlantic before Council reinstated parking last week. He said that he would have background information when the matter is reconsidered next week.

The Innkeepers represent 110 different properties at the beach with 80 percent of the rooms.

He added that 90 to 95 percent of the merchants' business comes from guests of the motels and hotels. With traffic congestion scaring guests away, the merchants would suffer, he said.

The Innkeepers, he said, will back the elimination of all parking on Atlantic but requested that arrangements remain as they are at this time.

In 1974 Leary served on the city's Pampas Committee which studied ways to improve Atlantic and Pacific Avenues. He said that no action should have been taken last week because all factions were not heard.

Melvin Koch, operator of the Cuttsark Motel, pointed out that every time someone opens a store, "they get a variance for parking" because they claim they have a walk-in trade. If this is so, he asked, why do they need parking on Atlantic?

Councilman J. Curtis Payne Jr., on the prevailing side of last week's vote, moved to reconsider the action and was supported by a vote of 9-1 with Councilman Donald Merrick dissenting. Mayor Patrick L. Standing was absent.

Councilman Reid Ervin said that it "looks like the innkeepers and the merchants are at loggerheads."

Leary said that the innkeepers, merchants and restaurateurs are trying to form one organization to handle their problems in view of the weakened condition of the Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber at present is without an executive director.

The enormity of congestion of Atlantic is unbelievable, Leary said. Parking meters encourage the parking of vans where drinking and rowdy behavior take place, he said, hardly the environment for family-oriented tourists.

327 sailboats maximum

An ordinance approved by Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon permits a maximum of 327 sailboats on the public beach between 42nd Street and Fort Story.

But they will have to have permits which cost $30 for residents and $60 for non-residents with limitations placed on the number of boats which can be stationed on each block.

Members of the city administrative staff and representatives of Hobbie Fleet 32 and the Norfolk Beach City League developed the regulations which limit four sailboats per block between 42nd and 57th Streets, seven per block between 57th Street and 77th Streets, and 12 sailboats per block between 77th Street and Fort Story. The permits will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis which may leave some latercomers a spot on a more distant block than they would like or with no spot at all.

Gary Bobbitt, of the Hobbie Cat Sailing Group, said that 190 are located on the stretch of beach.

The regulations are an outgrowth of complaints from Beach residents about the concentration of boats in particular areas of the beach.

Robert Barefield said that while the ordinance may solve the problem in North Virginia Beach, it "will pop out somewhere else." The number of sailboats will not decrease but will go to different areas.

Councilman Clarence Holland agreed that boats will probably take their boats to the bayside. He said that he was not aware that hobbie cats had become such a problem and that the ordinance was an example of the government getting a little too involved with people's rights.

Mrs. Grover Hill of the North Beach Civic League, said that a voluntary program was tried in 1968-69 but did not work. At one time, she said, there were 32 boats parked on the beach in front of her home.

The ordinance was approved by a vote of 9-1 with Holland dissenting. Mayor Patrick L. Standing was absent.

Also approved by unanimous vote was an ordinance requiring the boats to operate a sound device on launching and landing.

Complaints have centered around the danger of the boats to swimmers.

Permits will be issued by the city manager.

Future roads impossible?

Getting a road built in Virginia Beach has never been easy, but recent developments make future road building in the city seem almost impossible.

Although the city has footed the bill for much of its roads, it has received considerable assistance from the State and from developers.

But the State has cut back assistance putting in jeopardy such urgent projects as Kempville Road and Virginia Beach Boulevard.

At the same time recent Supreme Court rulings outlaw beach practices of requiring developers to pave, or place in escrow the cost of the paving, roads abutting their projects.

Since so much of the city's Comprehensive Highway plan is predicated on these two forms of assistance, some council members think that the Plan should be changed.

Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Monday afternoon at an informal session said that the plan had to be changed before Council is "inundated" with zoning requests through areas where the plan projects highway improvements. Requests for higher density zoning through these areas would tax the present roads and without developer participation in improvements, the city would be left with the full road costs.

City manager George L. Hanbury said the General Assembly could resolve the problem by giving localities enabling legislation to require participation. He maintained, "What we are doing is morally right" (although it may not be legally right), because "developers have responsibilities."

Councilman Reid Ervin asked why the Plan should be changed.

McCoy said because it was predicated on the belief that the roads would be built.

Ervin insisted that the Plan would still stand "if we've made accurate projections."

The Virginia Beach Circuit Court ruled last week in a case against the Beach that the city had no right to require the developer to participate in the construction of abutting road as a condition of a rezoning.

Hanbury said the contention of the developer's attorney Grover Wright was that the city had been planning to build the road. He said that the number of lanes could be reduced in the Plan. It said it may be poor planning but implied that the city would stand a better chance in court this way.

Planning director Robert Scott said that he would report back with recommendations in a few weeks.

Hanbury said, of course, the developer could voluntarily agree to build part of the road, but Wright made a zero sign with his hand.

Wright at the formal session later requested Council to remove the requirement imposed on R-6 Residential, Construction Techniques, Inc., to improve Harris Road, abutting Middle Planation in the Little Neck Road area.

Wright said that his client was willing to dedicate the right of way beyond the property but was not willing to construct Harris Road beyond the entrance.

Hanbury said that the road improvement was a condition of the rezoning and that the applicant had no objection at the time his application was considered.

The matter was deferred for two weeks to give Council time to read the original transcript of the rezoning hearing.

In two other zoning applications, Council waived right of way improvements.

Frederick Heitmann Jr. and Shirley S. Heitman were granted a change of zoning from R-6 Residential District to B-2 Community Business District on a .26 acre parcel at the southwest corner of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Mayo Road.

A condition that the cost of improvements for a standard city street along Virginia Beach Boulevard be placed in the project account was eliminated. The State doesn't know when it will start the project. The applicants were permitted to substitute a letter of credit for the pavement widening, curb and gutter and sidewalks on Mayo Road.

Marvin B. and Ruby M. Perry were granted a change of zoning from R-6 Residential District to B-2 Community-Business on a .20 acre parcel on the south side of Virginia Beach Boulevard, west of Mayo Road.

Virginia Beach Boulevard improvements were also waived as disproportionate to the project.

Beach residents learn

Start learning today to save money on next year's income taxes

If you are a Virginia Beach resident who earned more than $25,000 last year, your tax bill was probably the biggest bill you paid all year. If you want to lower this year's tax bill, now is the time to start planning for it.

Tax planning is impossible without well-defined personal financial goals: knowing exactly how much you earn and spend, and having a clear idea of how you plan to use your money in the future. The Virginia Society of CPAs advises you to keep up to date on your finances because a good deal of your spending has tax ramifications.

Bills, receipts, appraisals, and cancelled checks should be kept in a simple, handy and orderly system. Set up a record book with current totals broken down into the categories on your federal income tax return. If you stay organized throughout the year, CPAs say, it won't be such a chore to prepare your 1980 federal income tax return.

Begin now by filling out a Form 1040 with your 1980 anticipated income, deductions, exemptions and credits. Tax rates for 1980 will probably be unchanged, so figure out what your tax bill is likely to be.

Reduce taxes

To reduce your taxes you can lump every available deduction into this year, or you can defer as much of your income as possible until future years—or you can do both this year. That might make next year's tax bill correct-pensively higher, but you will have had the use of the money in the meantime.

For instance, if you lump deductions into alternate years, you might be able to get, say, $4,000 of deductions in odd years and $2,000 in even years. This way, you itemize deductions in the odd years and deduct the zero bracket amount ($3,400 for a joint return) in even years. Otherwise, you would have $3,000 of deductions in each year and would never get any tax benefit from them.

Think about deductions first. If you will need a car in the future, buy it in the year when that substantial sales tax deduction will do the most good. To add to the usual medical deductions, perhaps you can prepay 1981 medical expenses for an elderly parent in a nursing home.

In planning deductible contributions, remember that a $1,000 contribution lowers your tax burden by $500 if you are in the 50% marginal tax bracket. If you donate appreciated property, your contribution may cost even less, so ask your tax advisor whether it is better to sell the property and contribute the proceeds to charity, or to give the property itself.

The "points" paid on a secured mortgage or home improvement loan are deductible in the year paid, so if you plan to buy a home this year, you may want to pay this amount by separate check—rather than having the bank withhold it from the loan proceeds.

If you pay estimated state income taxes, you may want to pay the final installment in December instead of January, so it will be deductible on your 1980 federal income tax return. This can also apply to accelerated payment of accrued property taxes, although you cannot deduct tax payments made to a mortgage company and held in escrow (until they are paid to the taxing authority).

Deductions

There may be deductions to consider in all plans you make during the year, CPAs say. Can you possibly combine a vacation with a tax-deductible business or home-hunting trip? Will you change jobs this year? Do you plan to support a foreign student in your home? (You may be able to claim expenses of up to $50 a month as a charitable contribution.) If deductions will not be substantial this year, consider postponing payment of some bills, until next year when the deductions will mean bigger tax savings.

Now take a look at exemptions for the coming year. Are you supporting a parent who does not qualify as a dependent because he earns more than $1,000 from interest or dividends? Perhaps that parent will consider transferring his funds into tax-exempt bonds, so that you can claim him as a dependent. If you have a multiple support agreement with other members of your family and you alternate the exemption for a parent each year, plan with them ahead of time as to who would most benefit by the exemption this year.

What about credits for child care, energy-saving home improvements and political contributions? Like deductions, credits can be ganged up—and remember, credits are subtracted directly from your tax bill while deductions reduce your total income before the tax is figured. Thus, credits mean more money in your pocket.

If your year is likely to be limited in deductions, credits or exemptions, plan to reduce your tax bill by deferring some of your income. The most obvious way, if you qualify, is to invest some of your income in an Individual Retirement Account or Keogh Plan.

Interest on municipal bonds is tax-exempt so you may want to invest money there, depending upon your marginal tax bracket. Ask your tax advisor about gifts, trusts, and interest-free loans to family members, and see if you can transfer the tax burden to their lower income tax bracket.

It's been estimated that three out of four families pay more federal income tax than necessary, so it pays to plan ahead for your tax bill. Always keep your current financial situation in mind, CPAs say, and keep abreast of constantly changing tax regulations, so that you'll know how to make decisions and choices that will affect your tax picture—in your favor.

Beach residents wonder

Invest or not to invest in fluctuating markets

To invest or not to invest is a dilemma facing many Virginia Beach residents today who are wary of the recent sharp fluctuations in the investment markets.

Some optimists say that now is a great time to buy various investment instruments, while other investment pundits wouldn't touch them with a ten foot tucker tape. However, all serious investors agree on one basic principle—don't invest money at any risk level that you can't afford to lose.

Considerations

The intent of this article is not to tell you what investments to make, but what considerations you should think about before you invest at all. Such political and economic concerns as the rising level of inflation, the possibility of wage and price controls, or the weakness of the dollar in international currency markets may be governing your feelings about investment opportunities.

The overriding factor regarding your market selections, however, must be closely tied to your personal needs and objectives, whether they be a desire for a rising income level during retirement years or a plan to help defray current federal and state income taxes.

There are four concepts to consider while developing your investment portfolio and they are: Preservation of principal, liquidity, risk vs. reward, and diversification.

• Preservation of principal refers to the need to protect your original dollar investment against inflation.

• Liquidity refers to how readily you can convert your investment dollars into cash.

• Risk vs. reward refers to your ability to assume risk. How much of your principal can you afford to lose compared with the rate of return you expect from the investment. Simply stated, the greater the expected return, the greater the risk.

• Diversification is the opposite of putting all your eggs in one basket. You should strive to have several different types of investments...considering stocks, bonds, real estate, etc. If your portfolio consists of a significant proportion of common stocks, the selections should be from different sectors of our economy, such as petroleum, capital goods, or consumer discretionary.

With the four concepts in mind, look at two of the major investment alternatives.

• Bonds offer you a fixed income return through a stated rate of interest until the maturity of the bond. At maturity your original investment in the bond is repaid to you. Although you get a fixed income during the period of your investment, the level of income will not be increasing. During periods of stable interest rates, bond prices do not fluctuate as much as stock prices; therefore, bonds tend to increase the stability of your portfolio. However, even at 5% rate of inflation (which now seems only a fond memory), a $10,000 bond purchased today would be worth only $7,000 in purchasing power in five years.

Inflation

Inflation and interest rates change, and these fluctuations impact bond prices. As interest rates rise, existing bond prices fall, and the converse is true as well...falling interest rates cause existing bond prices to rise.

Recently we have witnessed unstable interest rates and bond prices have been quite volatile relative to historical relationships. To lock in a certain level of fixed income over a given period of time, bonds definitely have appeal. But they should not be judged as protection against inflation.

Some different types of bonds include government, corporate, and municipal. All these bonds offer various coupon rates at diverse maturity dates. Government bonds are deemed the highest quality but historically they do not offer as high an income or coupon return as corporate bonds.

Municipal bonds have a much lower coupon level than corporates or governments. Their chief benefit is that you do not pay federal—and in some cases state—income taxes on the income from these bonds. These bonds are particularly attractive to people of all ages and stages in life whose marginal tax bracket is very high. (The marginal tax rate is the percent of income tax paid on the last dollar you earn. This rate is higher than your overall tax rate.) Municipals should be considered at the 48-50% marginal tax area and above.

Common stocks

Common stocks are an alternative for your investment portfolio. They typically offer higher liquidity and total return, but at a higher risk than many other investments. (Total return refers to the stock price movement plus dividend yield.) When considering common stock as a hedge against inflation, investors concentrate on the growth in the dividend level to provide inflation protection.

Have you ever wondered what affects the price of your common stocks? Studies indicate that 50% of a stock's movement is influenced by the general economy and the stock market, 30% is due to factors affecting the industry in which the company operates, and only 20% of the movement is due to factors affecting the company itself.

So with the above information in mind, you should have a basic knowledge of our economy, realize which industries will benefit from particular economic trends, and select companies which will be most attractive to achieve your investment objectives.

When building investment portfolios, attempt to reduce the risk of loss by diversifying your selections among stocks in industry groups that are not affected by the same economic factors. For example, if you buy food, retail, and cosmetic stocks, then you are only exposed to the consumer sector of the economy. Consider using petroleum or high technology stocks as well as cyclical industries (cyclical industries are those that fluctuate with the current business cycle, such as chemicals or automobiles.)

How many stocks should you consider? Of course the answer will vary depending upon your finances, but as many as 15 different stocks will give you exposure to numerous areas of our economy and help to diversify the economic and market risk of any one stock on your overall performance.

General tips

Some general tips before plunging into the world of common stocks are:

1. Get information everywhere—library, newspaper, magazines, etc.
2. Write companies for annual reports.
3. Determine how long you are going to hold the stock, and at what price you'll sell it.
4. Be objective—not emotional.

Remember...that stock certificate doesn't know you own it. Investments don't have to be limited to bonds or stocks. Smart money is also going into real estate, antiques, art, fast food franchises, etc. These choices are very specialized, yet most can give you aesthetic enjoyment while your investment dollars are at work.

Once you have determined which investment alternatives are right for you, you need to consider the mix of assets that is best suited to meet your objectives. The investment mix refers to the percentages you invest in common stocks, bonds, real estate, etc. Each individual's portfolio will vary, of course, depending upon his or her personal objectives. A retired person may feel that a high level of current income is a primary objective; a couple building an estate for young children may focus upon maximum growth over a long term.

Just from these two examples, you can see how important it is to set your objectives before you select your investments. But realize that something could happen to change your objectives such as retirement...change in income level...any number of things. The key is management flexibility. As an investor your primary responsibility is to understand and have full knowledge of your personal financial picture.

Then, should you employ the services of a portfolio or investment manager, you should analyze the following six areas to identify your constraints and objectives before building your portfolio.

1. Principal—preservation of the principal in light of inflation.
2. Income—your need for current income and income growth.
3. Taxability—is the investment taxable in whole or in part, or is it tax free?
4. Temperament—refers to how you react to market changes—how emotional are you?
5. Expertise of Manager—refers to his or her breadth of knowledge of stocks, bonds, real estate, etc.

6. Marketability—consider only investments that trade frequently enough to meet your need for liquidity.

Once you have studied the above points, you can then establish your portfolio objectives and can construct your portfolio considering mix of investments, maturities, quality, and diversification. Finally, you should determine a policy for reviewing your investments to see what changes should be made in light of changing investment opportunities or differences in your financial goals.

Remember Ben Franklin's challenge—"Money makes money, and the money that money makes makes more money!" Franklin had learned the investment secret which is to make money work hard for you. Good luck!

SOMETHING ABOUT VIRGINIA'S BEACHES
ATTRACTS VISITORS IN WAVES.

They stretch north and south to a golden infinity, over a hundred and twenty miles of some of the most beautiful beaches in America.

Here are resort beaches, secluded beaches, tiny islands, and seaside gardens. And here's Virginia Beach, longest resort beach in the world, with a summertime art show along the boardwalk, nightclubs and fine restaurants, and the place where the earliest permanent settlers touched the shores of the New World.

When you visit Virginia's beaches this summer, getting there is half the fun. You can stop off on the way at Kings Dominion for exciting rides and shows. You can cross magnificent mountains of Southwest Virginia, like the Indians of centuries past. You can linger awhile in Colonial Williamsburg or Old Town Alexandria, and get to know the fascinating world of the eighteenth century.

Wherever you begin, whatever you visit in Virginia, you will always be drawn to the sea. Back to the beaches where visitors have been coming for almost four hundred years. And where, like the ocean waves, they keep returning again and again.

Virginia is for lovers ♥

The City of Virginia Beach Development Authority, Plaintiff,

taxpayers, property owners and citizens of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, including non-residents owning property or subject to taxation therein, and all other persons interested in or affected in any way by the issuance by the City of Virginia Beach Development Authority of up to $1,000,000 Industrial Development Revenue Bonds, Defendants.

MOTION FOR JUDGMENT

Plaintiff, the City of Virginia Beach Development Authority, a political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia (the "Authority"), seeks judicial determination pursuant to Article 6, Chapter 5, Title 15.1, Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended, of the validity of up to $1,000,000 of its industrial development revenue bonds (the "Bonds"), to be issued to pay the costs of the acquisition of land and the construction, equipping and furnishing of a building containing office space, warehouse space and retail facilities in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia (the "Project"), to be leased or sold to Reliable Stores Corporation, a Delaware corporation (the "Company"), and states as follows:

1. The Authority was duly created pursuant to Chapter 643 of the Virginia Acts of Assembly of 1964, as amended (the "Act"), and is a political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

2. At a meeting duly called and held on March 7, 1980 the Authority adopted a resolution agreeing to undertake the issuance of the Bonds in an amount not to exceed $1,000,000 upon terms and conditions mutually agreeable to the Authority and the Company, with the project to be leased or sold to the Company upon terms designed to assure payment of the Bonds. The proceeds of the Bonds when issued, will be used to finance the costs of the acquisition of land, construction, equipping and furnishing of the Project and the issuance of the Bonds.

3. When issued, the Bonds will be valid, legal and binding legal obligations of the Authority, payable solely from the revenues and receipts received from the lease or sale of the Project to the Company and other security, if any, pledged therefor. The Bonds will not constitute a debt or a pledge of the faith and credit of the Commonwealth of Virginia or any political subdivision thereof, including the Authority and the City of Virginia Beach; no taxing power of any political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia will be

TWELVE GOOD REASONS WHY I SHOULD TRADE IN VIRGINIA BEACH

1. Because Virginia Beach is the place I make money and Virginia Beach is the place to spend it.
2. Because my interests are here.
3. Because I believe in transacting business with my friends.
4. Because the community that is good enough to live in is good enough to buy in.
5. Because I want to see the merchandise.
6. Because I want to get what I pay for.
7. Because dollars I spend in Virginia Beach stay at home and work for the development of my city.
8. Because the Virginia Beach merchant I buy from stands behind his goods and services.
9. Because I sell what I produce, here at home.
10. Because the merchant I buy from pays his part of Virginia Beach taxes.
11. Because the Virginia Beach merchant I buy from helps support my school, my church, my lodge and my home.
12. Virginia Beach is where I live and Virginia Beach is where I buy.

Malinda is a member of the Virginia Beach United Methodist Church and sings as guest soloist with the choir. She is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Juan W. Spann of Virginia Beach.

Between 16th and 40th Streets

202,500 tons of sand dumped

By GREG GOLDFARB
Sun editor

Fillsand isn't cheap. If Virginia Beach had to buy sand for its annual beach replenishment project, it would cost approximately between $525,000 and $720,000, according to local contractors, just for the sand.

But in buying the Birdneck Road borrow pit, the pit where this year's new sand comes from, it is expected the City will not have to buy additional sand for at least eight more years.

150,000 cubic yards

Presently, almost a score of workers are working six days a week, dumping 150,000 cubic yards of sand between 16th and 40th Streets at the beach, the area "which needs it the most," according to E. V. Williams Construction Company Inc. foreman, Darrell Saunders, Chesapeake.

"We add sand to the beach every year," Saunders said.

"Right now, we're making about 25 dumps an hour, or about 375 to 400 dumps a day. We expect to finish by Memorial Day."

Saunders said "nothing is easy" about laying new sand.

"It's never an easy job to disperse this much sand," he explained.

"We find ourselves continually checking and rechecking our grading of the sand, and the distance

It is spread.

"Plus, it is a big job just to make sure the process of trucking the sand from the borrow pit near the Seatack recreation park goes smoothly."

More Beach for visitors

According to Saunders, the added sand will increase the size of the beach in the following ways:

"Whereas some areas of the beach have washed away almost to the boardwalk," he said, "the new sand will allow for approximately 60 feet of sand between the boardwalk and the ocean."

"Erosion is worst from the 17th Street fishing pier, north; 40th Street is especially bad."

"I expect that after the project is completed, we will have increased the height of the sand above sea level about three or four feet."

"Right now, the boardwalk is at 12 feet above sea level and the sand is at about nine feet."

"Before we began adding sand, the sand was only about five or six feet above sea level."

As the sand is applied to the beach, its color is brown to dark brown.

"This is because it was brought from within the Earth, and was originally covered with mud, clay, dirt or all three," Saunders said.

"After a few days in the sun, however, it will bleach out white, as normal."

Construction foreman Darrell Saunders keeps a watchful eye over the loads of sand being deposited at Virginia Beach.

Sand attracts tourists

Saunders said the need for the constant sand replenishment is simple.

"If this work wasn't done each year," he said, "there would be no beach for the visiting tourists to walk on."

Virginia Beach erosion control superintendent Kenneth Nelson echoes Saunders comment.

"Tourism is the biggest tax base in the City," he explained.

"Without a proper beach to attract tourists to our local businesses, the City and its merchants could lose large amounts of revenue annually."

Erosion commission

Nelson said the erosion commission was formed in 1950; and in 1952 one million cubic yards of beach, and in 1952 one million cubic yards of beach.

"The commission is responsible for the beach from Rudee Inlet to 49th Street," he said.

"We are to provide continuous (sand) nourishment."

"Initially we placed one million yards of sand at the beach, but the number has been decreasing over the years.

"We decided to buy our own borrow pit, last year, at $308,850 which we expect will supply us with sand annually for eight more years."

"Our pit is located near the Seatack Park, which we keep pumped clear of water, and will be used in the future as a recreational pool after its sand supply is depleted."

"We accepted bids from local contractors last January to clear the land the pit is located on, and haul sand. The E. V. Williams company won the bid."

Sand cost

Contractors charge for sand depending on how much is bought, where it will go, and how many stoplights there are in between.

"A 10 wheel dump truck costs 40¢ a minute to operate," a local contractor said.

"So we have to determine the length of the route the truck has to cover, plus its payload, before we fix the rate."

"But in general, fillsand costs between $3.50 and $5.00 a cubic yard."

"If it cost $4.80 a yard, as some contractors charge, it would cost the City (just for the sand) $720,000."

"If it cost $3.50, which could be the price if a large enough quantity of it is bought, it would cost $325,000."

"As it is now, with the city owning the sand pit, all they pay for is the trucking and labor expenses of moving it and grading it."

Virginia Beach residents Sherri Smith and Laura Crews, are the recipients of the first annual scholarship awards, presented by the Princess Anne Business College.

Both seniors at Green Run High School, Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Smith and Crews, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy L. Crews.

$4,000 in services

They have decided to enter the accounting program at the business college next fall, and will receive free instruction, tuition and books for the nine month course. Regular cost for this program would run about $4,000 a student, according to Jane Braithwaite, director of admissions.

Competition

in the Virginia Beach public schools.

"All students taking business classes were asked to take a test," Crews said, "Five finalists were selected for personal interviews, and two award winners chosen from that."

Smith added, "I was surprised and didn't expect to win."

"I think we both took the test thinking, what the heck? Why not?"

"Neither of us really had plans for a four year college next year."

Smith and Crews are both 17.

Friends of Library meeting

Guy Friddell discusses books vs. television

By GREG GOLDFARB
Sun editor

"Rather than sitting home and watching television," suggests local newspaper columnist Guy Friddell, "why not go out to a P.T.A. meeting? Even if it's not your own go ahead anyway, and start an argument!"

Discussing the theme of "Books versus Television," Friddell was the guest speaker at last Weekend's regular business meeting of the Virginia Beach Friends of the Library. The meeting was held at the Oceanfront branch.

Friddell, after a few plugs for his 1979 book, "Colgate Darden's Conversations with Guy Friddell," published by University Press of Virginia, $12.95, began a 40 minute consideration of reading books over watching television.

Not entirely adverse to T.V.

"I'm not entirely adverse to television," he said to the predominantly female audience.

"I do recognize some of its blessings: Like for people in old folks' home, and in hospitals. It gives them relief."

"And I think if it hadn't been for television, we might have been in Viet Nam longer than we were. I also think television hastened passage of civil rights laws."

Friddell says he enjoys viewing "The Muppets" for their comedy and zip, and "Barney Miller," for its humanity.

Friddell maintains that "It's better live (yourself) than watch others live. Living should be taken literally."

Television and children

should be stuffed.

He does criticize shows that depict conflicts between married couples, and those not married.

"Children don't understand arrangements non-married are in," he said.

He thinks the character "Edith" in "All in the Family" is good because she stood for women's rights; but can't believe some of the things "Archie" says in his latest series.

Books require more thinking

Friddell accuses television of "thinking for us."

"Most of the stuff they put on television is pre-chewed and pre-digested," he said.

"It's like baby food that has to be spoon fed to children."

"But with books, there is no middle man. No screens, no filters."

Friddell said Virginia Beach residents need to compete with television for their children's intellectual growth.

"Most of you here are a book crowd," he said, "and to save your children from television, you need to read to them at a very young age."

"You must teach them a love for books. You must compete with television..."

"...to get my children to read, instead of watching television, I'd give them a dollar. I'm not above bribing them, it's for a good cause. And by teaching them to read well, they automatically become good writers."

In closing, Friddell urged Virginia Beach residents to support local schools and libraries; and other public education concerns.

He ended his discussion, before retiring to a wine and cheese reception, on a soft, inspirational literary note, by reminding the still crowd: "The world is an open book."

Letter to the editor

Study the candidates

Editor:
Each of us should make a self-examination new and then in an effort to determine where we are heading, particularly with respect to what we are doing for our fellow man.

The average person perplexed by current issues, large and small, frequently finds it difficult to develop sound, individual opinions in the face of gloomy pronouncements by politicians or doomday and peevish assertions by radio and television political commercials.

It would be admirable if we could adopt the independence of the hardy person who has the nerve to say, despite a popular flurry of the moment, "I don't agree." Such thinking, and individualism, is needed!

How well I remember my childhood in Germany. I have memories that recall both sides of a battlefield; bombs, tanks, and destruction. Yes, you may say the Germans did it all, but do you think politicians can do anything if people are not willing? During a recent documentary, I learned for the first time that 12 million Germans elected Hitler! It made me think of my past 33 years on American soil. The freedom I have valued and practiced more than many of my American born friend. Why? Because I do not want a repeat of past history. Politics is an adult pursuit. As it affected me as a child so will it affect my children and grandchildren tomorrow.

Tuesday May 6 is City Council Election Day! While election day is fast approaching there is still time for you to study the candidates thoroughly. Make it an informed vote instead of a foolish vote! Those that forget past history are bound to relive it through voter apathy!

Azalea Fest. Beach residents involved

Virginia Beach residents were not to be left out in last week's Azalea Festival, sponsored by the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce.

In fact, several of them were officers on the festival committee, and attended a press reception for the Princess, Monique Hamilius.

Admiring the work of artist Don Fortunato, (l), are Virginia Beach businessman Harold Decker and Princess Hamilius.

Beach volunteers needed

Virginia Beach residents are invited to attend a free training course for Crisis Center volunteers, beginning Monday, June 2 at Maryview Hospital, Portsmouth.

The course will be held two evenings a week for four weeks.

Call 399-6393 for more information.

Skate-athon slated

Virginia Beach 4-H youth, adult volunteers, extension agents, and friends of 4-H will be roller-skating for 4-H, Monday, May 5, from 5 to 10 p.m. at the College Park Skating Center.

People are asked to invest in youth and support 4-H by calling the 4-H Office at 427-4617 to pledge money for each hour skated by an Official 4-H Skater (maximum 5 hours).

Proceeds are to build the Virginia Beach Exhibition/Recreation Building at the Southeast 4-H Educational Center.

Youth ages 9-19 and adults interested in helping to skate for 4-H can also call the 4-H Office.

At Dam Neck

Ten Beach men promoted

Captain Frederic H. M. Kinley, Commanding Officer, Fleet Combat Training Center, Atlantic, promoted a total of 10 Virginia Beach men to limited duty Officer and Chief Warrant Officer, a record for the command.

CWO3 Larry J. Guthrie and CWO3 David S. Diaz were promoted to Lieutenant (junior grade) on 1 April.

In a larger ceremony on

2 April, eight men were commissioned; four to Ensign, four to Chief Warrant Officer. RMC D. M. Dement, OSCS D. L. Diehl, FTGC H. D. Love, and OSI T. J. Mattingly were commissioned Ensign, and OSC G. A. Hickman, FTCS T. F. McCormick, OSC R. M. Pagano, and STGCS G. J. Schmitt, Chief Warrant Officer.

The Commanding Officer noted in his comments at the 2 April ceremony that ten men from one command was certainly a precedent, reflecting the quality and motivation of the personnel at Fleet Combat Training Center, Atlantic. Four of the men, Diehl, Hickman, Pagano, and Schmitt were from one department, Combat Direction Systems.

Children five years old

Kindergarten registration set

Registration of those children who will be attending kindergarten in Virginia Beach public schools next fall will be held on Thursday, May 15.

An orientation program for parents and children who will attend kindergarten classes during the 1980-1981 school year will be presented at each elementary school.

With the exception of Kemps Landing and B. F. Williams, all elementary schools in the city have kindergarten classes, and parents are asked to attend the program at the school the child will attend.

Programs

During the program, the youngsters have the opportunity to visit a classroom and to try out a seat on a school bus. All programs will begin promptly at 9:30 a.m.

Under Virginia law, attendance in school is compulsory for children reaching the age of five by November 1, except where extenuating circumstances exist.

Attendance in kindergarten is optional for children reaching the age of five after November 1 and before January 1, 1981. Counseling on the advisability of those child-

Career night scheduled -May 1

The annual city-wide Career Night for junior and senior high school students will be held Thursday, May 1, at the Virginia Beach Civic Center (Dome) from 6 to 9 p.m.

The event is co-sponsored by the guidance departments of the city's junior and senior highs and the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce. Career Night is held each year in the spring to give the students and their parents an opportunity to learn about career options and to encourage the

About 150 career fields will be represented, including local businesses, military, national companies, and vocational schools.

Frances Hudgins, guidance supervisor for Virginia Beach Public Schools, said there will be a strong emphasis this year on the vocational opportunities available through Virginia Beach schools. She said representatives of the Vocational-Technical school, the Career Development Center, and the Adult Education Center will also be on hand to answer student questions.

So that students can benefit as much as possible from career night, Hudgins suggests that they visit their career resource center in the guidance department of their respective school before May 1.

Beach extension home matters number 170 in membership

By ANNIE P. GILMER
Special to the Sun

"Extension Homemakers Club-It is an organization where I found warm, kind friends...A continuous educational experience I wouldn't miss." These are among the reasons that 170 individuals from Virginia Beach are members of the Virginia Extension Homemakers Clubs.

Home, family and community are three areas that bring together the members of Extension Homemakers clubs across the nation.

Extension homemakers, as leaders, have a keen interest in the well-being of all families in their communities. All 24,000 Extension Homemakers in the state are celebrating National Extension Homemakers week Sunday through Saturday, May 4-10.

May 2 will be a special day as Extension homemakers join the Women's Committee of the Virginia Farm Bureau to receive an official Associated Country Women of the World Day proclamation from Governor John N. Dalton. Both organizations are part of the Country Women of the World, which is celebrating its Golden Jubilee this year.

Although Extension homemakers has global affiliations and is organized at the national and state levels, its major value is in its local work.

Being an Extension homemaker means an opportunity to keep up on all things in homemaking. It gives me a change for fellowship and exchanging ideas with friends-neighbors-and strangers, who hopefully will become friends. Members take the initiative in helping others help themselves to greater satisfaction in everyday living in their home and communities.

The Extension Homemakers Club is a neighborhood organization which usually meets once a month, becoming part of the community. It carries on a continuous educational program and works with other organizations for community betterment.

All Extension Homemakers clubs focus their activities on nine educational programs which are coordinated by the national organization. They are: citizenship, cultural arts, family life, health, international programs, public relations, safety, housing and family resource management.

Extension Homemakers clubs are open to all people regardless of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, handicap or political affiliation. For additional information, contact the Virginia Beach Extension Office.

Harvey

Harvey assigned to DLA

Mary Ellen Harvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harvey of Holly Road in Virginia Beach, has been assigned a post with the Defense Logistics Agency in Alexandria.

In her new position as Chief, Logistics Programs Division in the Supply Operations Directorate at Headquarters, Harvey will share responsibility for the Defense Logistics Agency's worldwide materiel distribution system.

The Agency provides supply and logistics support to all the Military Services, administers Defense contracts after they are awarded, and manages other Defense-wide support services.

Born in Waltham, Massachusetts and raised in Jacksonville, Florida, Harvey received a bachelor's degree from Immaculate College in Pennsylvania and a master's degree in National Resource Management from George Washington University in Washington, D. C. She also attended the Industrial College of the Armed Forces and the Federal Executive Institute.

Harvey entered the Federal Government in 1963 as an inventory management specialist under a Department of the Army Supply Management Intern program, and advanced progressively into the super-graded Senior Executive Service.

Harvey spent more than five years overseas in France, Germany, and Vietnam.

Before taking up her new post, Ms. Harvey was Assistant for Logistics Plans and Programs in the Office of Assistant Secretary of the Army for Installations and Logistics.

She was selected to head the Secretary of the Army's Task Force on the Utilization of Women and later was a participant in the Presidential Reorganization project to develop a single national Supply System for the Federal Government.

Eudy attends EAC meet

Becky Eudy, a chairman of Virginia Beach's Employer Advisory Committee (EAC) was among 27 representatives who last week attended a state EAC meeting held at the Virginia Employment Commission's central office in Richmond.

Eudy works for the Virginia Beach Navy Federal Credit Union.

During the recent meeting, VEC administrators reported on 1980 General Assembly legislation affecting Unemployment Insurance in Virginia.

Ed Gilroy of the Department of Labor's Region III office and Dan Matthews, EAC's Chesapeake local chairman, reported on National Employment Service plans for the coming fiscal year. Members also toured VEC's central office and met agency officials.

Committee members elected Dan L. Matthews, III, of the State Farm Insurance affiliated Dan Matthews Insurance Agency, Chesapeake, state chairman for 1980. Al Folden, of the Eaton Corporation, Salem, was elected vice chairman.

Virginia Beach public libraries sponsor summer job exchange

The Virginia Beach Public Library System will sponsor a "Summer Job Exchange" for persons 10 years of age or older. The program is designed to help residents of Virginia Beach find young people who are interested in doing odd jobs to earn summer income.

The libraries are responsible only for providing the file of information and assisting in it's use. The library is not responsible for scheduling, determination of salaries, quality of work performed or for any injuries resulting from the work.

The job exchange will be continued throughout the summer. It may be continued into the school year if there is sufficient demand.

For further information on the summer job exchange, contact John Stewart at 427-4321.

Registration

Registration for young people desiring to be listed in the Job Exchange will begin Monday, May 5 at each of the five branch libraries and the bookmobile in Virginia Beach. Registration must be done in person, and persons under 16 years of age, must have the permission of their parent.

Each participant in the job exchange may register all the skills or jobs they are interested in performing. All participants must have a Virginia Beach Public Librarycard. Cards can be acquired at each branch library and on the bookmobile.

The job files will be opened to the public on Monday, June 2. Members of the community may come into the libraries and check for available help for work such as ironing, pet sitting, lawn mowing, baby sitting or anything else for which the young people feel qualified.

At the Dome

Children's concert set

The Virginia Sunday Pops Orchestra, Virginia Beach resident Walter Noona conducting, will present a children's concert on Tuesday, May 27, at 7 p.m. in the Dome in Virginia Beach.

The concert is sponsored by the Virginia Beach Arts & Humanities Commission, and admission is free.

Mrs. John Musick, chairman of the commission, said, "The purpose of this concert is to expose the children, as a potential adult audience, to the glories of a full orchestra—to open their minds to this experience." Noona will narrate during the hour-long concert, which will open with a performance of Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant Overture," to be followed by Bartok's "Rumanian Folk Dances," Saint-Saens' "Carnival of the Animals," Bach's Little Fugue in G Minor, the theme from TV's "Angie," and Herb Alpert's "Rise."

Hope Mihalap, journalist and music lecturer, will narrate specially for "Carnival of the Animals."

Loyalty Day set—May 1

By Claude Humphrey
Special to the Sun

May 1 is Loyalty Day. Loyalty Day was established by an Act of Congress and each year Loyalty Day is proclaimed by presidential proclamation. Loyalty Day is observed each year as a reminder to every American that loyalty to one's country is vital to the existence of a free people.

Loyalty is an intangible thing but it causes people to form a government, to obey its laws and rules and to willingly defend their country against its enemies.

Observance

This Loyalty Day, May 1, 1980, the Veteran's of Foreign Wars, Post 392 and the Ladies Auxiliary will hold a short program to enable American citizens to reaffirm their complete loyalty to America. This program will be held at the Post Parkway and will start at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 1.

The public is cordially invited to join with Post and Auxiliary members for the reaffirmation of loyalty to the United States of America and for the recognition of the Heritage of American freedom.

Guest Speakers will be H. L. "Buddy" Riggs and Captain Richard Dietz, United States Navy. (See REGISTER p. 4)

Officer's wives meet

The Retired Officer's Wives Society of Tidewater will hold a luncheon and installation of new officers on Thursday, May 8, at the Commodore Country Club.

405,000,000 pounds of new sand at the beach

Paddlewheels are indispensable in dispersing the sand.

Paddlewheels, used to grade and distribute the sand, and bulldozers are used in tandem to combat the destructive forces of wild ocean waves.

How much sand is that?

In other words, 150,000 cubic yards of sand weighs 202,500 tons; or 405,000,000 pounds; or, it is enough sand to equal the weight of 2,700,000 people weighing 150 pounds each. Also, it is enough sand to cover 10 football fields, 300 by 160 feet, with sand eight feet deep.

Photos by Erling Filters

It's "Man against the Sea," in its purest form as workers struggle year after year to hold back the pounding, erosive waves from the Virginia Beach shores.

"From the fishing pier north are the most eroded areas of the beach," experts say, and new sand is being placed to help the situation.

Between 350 and 400 truckloads of sand are being dumped along the Virginia Beach boardwalk.

National Business Education Week

Beach schools will participate

This is National Business Education Week, and Virginia Beach public high schools have all undertaken special projects to call attention to the business education departments.

Bayside High School's business students have prepared a library display showing the various business education subjects, and they will man a display table at the evening meeting of the Bayside PTA Thursday evening, April 17. At Cox, the business students will host an open house for teachers, students, and administration, and a number of posters showing the various facets of business education have been placed throughout the school.

First Colonial High

The business students at First Colonial High School have been promoting the business education supervisor. Selected office machines are also on display in the First Colonial library, and 90 business students will be wearing "Super Secretary" T-shirts on National Secretary's Day during the week.

A business education day was held at Green Run High, during which students demonstrated office equipment at a display in the cafeteria foyer; (See BUSINESS p. 10)

Public pension offset could affect some government employees

Are you a Federal worker or a State or local government employee whose job is not covered by Social Security? And have you been counting on receiving a dependent's benefit on your spouse's social security record in addition to a pension from your public agency?

If you answer "yes" to both questions, then you may be affected by a provision in the social security law called "public pension offset." Many government workers nearing retirement have been asking about this. The public pension offset will not affect most people until December, 1982 and later. However, it's something you should know about now so you can plan your financial future.

How it works

Here's how the offset works: The amount of your social security benefit as a dependent or survivor is reduced—dollar for dollar—by the amount of your public pension. For example, if your potential social security benefit as a wife is $250 a month and your public pension is $220, your actual wife's benefit would be $30. The offset will not apply if your Federal, State, or local government job is covered by social security on the last day you work.

The offset applies only to social security spouse's and surviving spouse's benefits. You can still receive retirement or disability payments on your own social security record without reduction if you have worked long enough under social security.

There's an exception to the offset if you now receive a public pension or will soon be eligible for one. But it will apply only if both of these conditions are met:

- (1) You must either receive or be eligible to receive your government pension before December 1982; whether or not you actually apply; and
- (2) You must meet all requirements for social security dependent or survivor benefits as they existed and were interpreted in January 1977. More specifically:

Special divorce rules

If you are a divorced woman, your marriage must have lasted at least 20 years, rather than 10 years under present law. If you are a man, your wife must have provided at least one-half of your support; you can't qualify if you were divorced from your wife.

The purpose of the law is to eliminate a windfall payment of dependent's and survivors' benefits to retired government personnel who have their own pensions. The offset of public pensions under the new law extends to government pensions the same principle that has always applied to Social Security benefits.

If you are planning your retirement and intend to file for Social Security in the future, you should keep any papers or notices showing that you were eligible for a government pension before December 1, 1982. Although it is not absolutely necessary that you furnish such proof, it will speed the processing of your claim if you do have it—especially if you will be retiring after 1982.

For more information on this matter contact your nearest Social Security Office. The Norfolk office is at 200 Granby Mall - Room 600. Phone: 441-3401.

VWC students sponsor plant sale

Virginia Wesleyan College botany students will sponsor their fourth annual plant sale at the College greenhouse next month, according to Dr. Dennis N. Govoni, assistant professor of biology at the College.

The sale, to be held May 7, 8, and 9, will feature plants that the students have grown in the greenhouse during this semester as part of their studies. Money raised from the sale will be used to provide new plants and seeds for the horticulture class next year.

The sale will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

Boost yields on Virginia Beach farms

Virginia Beach farmers advised to rotate crops

"Rotate your crops."

Often that's the advice given Virginia Beach farmers by specialists as an answer to insect, weed and disease problems. Although most growers in the United States do practice rotation, there are times when continuous corn is the best choice.

Continuous corn is most common in the Corn Belt. Of the 13.5 million acres of corn grown in Iowa in 1977, 1978 and 1979, for instance, nearly half was continuous. About five million acres of that corn had been continuous for more than two years. Dr. Bob Ruppel, Michigan State University entomologist, estimates that 50 percent of Michigan's corn is grown consecutively for three years or longer.

Boost yields

Studies at the University of Illinois show crop rotation can boost corn yields. Based on a 10-year average, corn following corn produced 124.3 bushels per acre, while corn following soybeans produced 133.2 bushels per acre the first year and 131.2 bushels the second year. Dr. D. F. Wilken, an economist at the University of Illinois, explains that the decreased in yield may be due to the buildup of diseases and insects, as well as problems with planting and harvesting large quantities at the same time.

However, based on some growers' experiences, corn following corn can be profitable when conditions are favorable and good management practices are followed.

Lenuel Chamberlain of Yadkinville, North Carolina has a 25-acre field in which corn has been growing continuously for the past 10 years. In 1979, that field yielded 215 1/2 bushels per acre, making Chamberlain the state high yield champion recognized by the N.C. Corn Growers Association.

Chamberlain suggests his success is due to good weather conditions. But when he talks with pride about his calculated management practices, it's clear that's what made the difference. For example, take his weed control program. Chamberlain has found that Sutan is an effective preplant herbicide, but proper incorporation is what really makes the difference in adequate control of weeds. Additionally, switching from 38" width rows to 30" rows helps shade out weeds, especially with early planting.

Fertilization

Proper fertilization and insecticide application are important too. In the past Chamberlain rotated his crops, but with continuous corn, he observes, "yields are higher every year. I think the decaying stalks help form humus that is good for the crop."

In deciding whether to plant continuous corn or rotate with soybeans, farmers must consider several factors. Dr. Paul Robbins, an economist at Purdue University, outlines some of them.

Yield relationships are affected by several variables. Some growers seem to do a better job with one crop than another. Often soil type dictates what crop can be grown profitably. If a grower's soybean yield is less than 30% of corn yield then, he should consider continuous corn. If his soybean yields are more than one-third of corn yields, he should consider increasing soybean acreage.

Timing is a critical factor affecting yields. If a Corn Belt grower is able to plant the crop before May 10, usually corn is his best bet. If the crop will not be planted until after May 20, soybeans will often be more profitable.

Livestock needs for grain should be taken into consideration. If a grower can use all the corn he produces for feed, then it's usually best to grow his own and avoid selling beans to buy corn.

Storage and drying capacity may determine which crop should be planted. If they are limited, more soybeans should be grown, since three acres of soybeans can be stored in the space it takes for one acre of corn. Stored crops can make more money at sales later in the year, when the crop is not so abundant. For example, on given days in 1978-79 in Indiana, corn sold for $1.97 in the fall and $2.36 in spring, while soybeans increased from $6.29 to $7.25, respectively.

Cash flow must be adequate for growing corn, since variable costs are about $50 per acre higher for corn than for soybeans.

Weed problems

Weed problems may be handled more easily in corn than in soybeans because of the more powerful herbicides available in corn.

Crop prices are especially important for cash crop growers who buy and sell on the futures market, so regular price comparison is essential. Dr. Robbins recommends, "If the price of soybeans is more than 2.7 times the price of corn, then it is often profitable to grow more soybeans. If the soybean price is less than

2.4 times the price of corn, corn becomes more profitable on the average."

Insect problems

Some insect problems increase in corn following corn. Growers may experience larger populations of European corn borer, black cutworm and other insects, but the main pest is the corn rootworm.

Dr. Don Kuhlman, entomologist at the University of Illinois, identifies the corn rootworm as the most troublesome pest in continuous corn. He recommends crop rotation as the best method of control, but if a grower is committed to continuous corn, chances are that he will have to rely on a soil insecticide such as Dyfonate, Counter, Furadan, Lorsban, Thimet or Mocap (or Amaze if labeled).

To determine whether an insecticide will be needed, John Lofgren, entomologist at the University of Minnesota, recommends that growers scout fields thoroughly from the end of July to Mid-August. "If infestations are high enough—one beetle or more per plant—then plan to use one of the insecticides recommended by the state, extension service," he says.

It has been found that a class of insecticides will sometimes fail after several years of successful use. In this case, Dr. Kuhlman recommends changing from a carbamate, if one is being used, to an organophosphate such as Dyfonate Counter, Thimet, Lorsban or Mocap. "If a soil insecticide gave good control this year," he says, "chances are that it will do a good job the following year. If the product gave unsatisfactory control this year, then it's time to switch."

Weeds

In terms of weed control, Dr. Bill Meggitt, Michigan State University agronomist, suggests that a combination of cultivation and chemical control is the answer. Early chemical and mechanical control, combined with narrow row spacing, helps form a crop canopy that prevents sunlight from reaching emerging weeds later in the season. Good weed control affects good insect control, too. There tend to be fewer armyworms in crops that have less quackgrass, for example.

Heavily infested fields may require an intense chemical control program. Atrazine provides good control of broadleaf weeds and can be used in continuous corn at higher rates with less worry about carryover. However, after a few years of a monoculture, a shift in weed species—from broadleaf weeds to grasses—necessitates the use of Sutan, Lasso or Dual in combination with atrazine for broad spectrum weed control.

Dr. Dick Behrens, University of Minnesota agronomist, says "we have not seen too much trouble with weeds in continuous corn as long as a farmer rotates herbicides. There is always the threat of developing a tolerant species with the persistent use of a single herbicide such as atrazine."

Dr. Meggitt adds that even if continuous corn is grown and carryover is not a problem, farmers should consider using a three-way tank mix such as Sutan/atrazine/Bladex. The reduced atrazine level gives the grower the option of changing crops if market conditions are favorable.

Disease

Problems due to disease seem to increase slightly in continuous corn, making growers more dependent on disease-resistant hybrids. Dr. Malcolm Shurtleff, extension plant pathologist at the University of Illinois, explains that 90 percent of disease organisms live in old crop debris, so the more trash left on the soil surface after harvest, the more likely there is to be disease.

According to Dr. Robert F. Nyvall, extension plant pathologist at Iowa State University, when minimum tillage is practiced, as is often the case with continuous corn, there can be an increase in plant disease incidence and severity if the right environmental conditions exist. Some plant diseases may be at least partially controlled by plowing.

When the yellow leaf blight and gray leaf spot fungi are buried below the soil, for example, the release of spores into the air is prevented. In the case of Freckles (Goss's or Nebraska wilt), the bacterium does not survive well in the presence of other soil microorganisms, so plowing under debris can help with disease control.

University of Minnesota extension plant pathologist Dr. Herbert G. Johnson says that of the four or five main leaf diseases, the most serious in corn following corn in Minnesota is eyespot. It can be identified by small, circular lesions on the leaves. This fungus disease and others show up most often in corn following corn on minimum tillage.

Locrian

The Locrian Consort specializes in Renaissance music, playing recorders, krum horns, rackets and korholts. People in the audience will hear music much as it was heard by those of all classes of society, with interesting historical facts discussed as a background to the era. Jeff Shepard leads the group.

The Norfolk Brass

Quintet provides an upbeat performance with two trumpets, a trombone, French horn and tuba. Bill Bartolotta heads this ensemble, who discuss their instruments and expression of feelings through music.

$100,000 Budget

budget mark.

Board members and Young Audiences' associates met at the Harbor Club in Norfolk to outline the campaign to raise funds for the arts education organization.

The project is designed to help the chapter meet the demand for programs in local school systems and reach an estimated goal of 600 performances this season.

Young Audiences is a national nonprofit corporation which brings the performing arts to students in professional dialogue presentations.

The Virginia Chapter of Young Audiences has been serving Tidewater for over 25 years with ensembles specializing in dance; opera; mime; jazz; chamber and Renaissance music.

A second meeting is planned for Virginia Beach in the near future. For more information, call 623-5268.

Black Drum begin biting

By ED LEWIS

Post outdoors writer

Anglers from as far away as New Jersey flocked to Cape Charles this past weekend to try their luck on black drum and with very good results. On Monday, I talked to Virginia State Game Warden Sgt. Mike Casson of Northampton Co., and he told me that the drum were really running.

Mike, who on his days off, takes out fishing parties on Capt. Walter Lewis' charter boat, "Nancy Mae," had a pretty good weekend. On Friday, his party caught eight black drum, the largest weighing in at 75 lbs. On Saturday, and Sunday, his parties brought back four each day. Mike said you could also catch all the bluefish you wanted.

New Jersey group drum fishing

Emmet Bailey of Bailey's Bait and Tackle Shop at Cape Charles had just about the same news. Emmet told me that a group of fishermen representing the Hyland Anglers club from Vineland, N. J. came down to do a little drum fishing and had excellent luck. Tony Riccio and Richie Graff, both members of the club, had the most impressive fish for the week. Tony caught a 95 lb. black drum and Richie landed a 40 lb. striped bass (rockfish). Both fish are of citation weight but the Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament doesn't begin until May 1.

Emmet had another fishing tale for me this week. He told me that two Delaware fishermen came down to go flounder fishing at Wachapreague. Not being familiar with the area, however, they passed by Wachapreague and ended up at his tackle shop at Cape Charles. Emmet, begin the good salesman he is, sold them some clams and 9/0 hooks and told them where to catch drum.

The two anglers launched at Cape Charles Harbor and ran down to the 16 buoy and commenced to drum fish with their small flounder rods and reels. One of the anglers, after a two hour fight, landed an 80 lb. black drum on the small fishing rigs. That is some real fine fishing, especially since it was their first time after the large drum fish.

Cape Charles close by

Many fisherman on this side (western shore) of the bay feel that it is too far for them to go to Cape Charles to try for black drum, or they are not sure of what to do once they get there. Well, Cape Charles is only a 50 mile drive from Chesapeake and even a few miles closer from Virginia Beach, so the drive is no excuse.

The majority of the drum during the early season are caught at the north end of the bridge-tunnel and off Kiptopeke Beach (concrete ships). So it is an even shorter run if you launch your boat at Lynnhaven, Little Creek, or Willoughby. But, if you do this, you want to be an experienced boat handler and keep a close eye on the weather. It is an 18 to 24 mile run by boat and it doesn't take the bay long to get rough. For beginners, I suggest you launch at Cape Charles.

For tackle you should use a stiff boat rod with a bait casting reel (a Penn Pier 309). You should use 40 to 50 lb. test line until you become a little more proficient. Then you can go to a smaller line.

Sea clams good bait

You should use a fish finder rig with a 6/0 to 9/0 hook with a 6 to 8 ounce sinker. You should bait this with the Eastern Shore Sandwich (clam and half a crab).

I prefer to use sea-clams by themselves, but they are sometimes hard to find. If you use the clam crab sandwich, you will need some rubber bands to help keep the clam on the hook.

The best areas to catch black drum are easily found

ATTRACTS VISITORS IN WAVES.

They stretch north and south to a golden infinity, over a hundred and twenty miles of some of the most beautiful beaches in America.

Here are resort beaches, secluded beaches, tiny islands, and seaside gardens. And here's Virginia Beach, longest resort beach in the world, with a summertime art show along the boardwalk, nightclubs and fine restaurants, and the place where the earliest permanent settlers touched the shores of the New World.

When you visit Virginia's beaches this summer, getting there is half the fun. You can stop off on the way at Kings Dominion for exciting rides and shows. You can cross magnificent mountains of Southwest Virginia, like the Indians of centuries past. You can linger awhile in Colonial Williamsburg or Old Town Alexandria, and get to know the fascinating world of the eighteenth century.

Wherever you begin, whatever you visit in Virginia, you will always be drawn to the sea. Back to the beaches where visitors have been coming for almost four hundred years. And where, like the ocean waves, they keep returning again and again.

Virginia is for lovers. ♥

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Virginia Beach Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a Public Hearing on Wednesday, May 7, 1980, at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers, Administration Building, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Virginia. Staff briefing at 7:00 p.m. in the City Manager's Conference Room. The following applications will appear on the agenda.

REGULAR AGENDA:

1. Richard E. and Sandra E. Tatterson request a variance of 4 feet to a 6 foot side yard setback instead of 10 feet as required (west property line - fireplace) on lot 1, Block 4, Section 4, Part 1, Windsor Oaks West, 3864 Chancery Lane. KEMPSVILLE BOROUGH.
2. Lance A. Lavenstein requests a variance of 3 feet to 5 foot side yard setbacks instead of 8 feet each as required on the east 40 feet on Lot 22, Block 12, Uhermeer, west of 217 53rd Street. LYNNHAVEN BOROUGH.
3. Wayne A. Oliver requests a variance to allow parking of major recreational equipment in front of a building instead of behind the nearest portion of a building adjacent to a public street on Lot 148, Section A-1, Indian Lakes, 1408 Tallisman Circle. KEMPSVILLE BOROUGH.
4. C. H. Franklin requests a variance of 21 feet to a 14 foot setback from Diane Lee Drive instead of 35 feet as required (greenhouse) on a Parcel, Holland Lakes Shopping Center, 3/8 Holland Road. PRINCESS ANNE BOROUGH.
5. Richard H. Kline requests a variance of 6 free-standing signs to 7 free-standing signs instead of 1 free-standing sign as allowed and of 7 signs to 13 signs instead of 6 signs as previously approved by the Board of Zoning Appeals on a Parcel, 8 1/4 acres, Eureka Park Area, 2661 Virginia Beach Boulevard. LYNNHAVEN BOROUGH.
6. The Southland Corporation by Lyle R. Tatroe requests a variance of 25 feet to a 10 foot front yard setback instead of 35 feet as required (pump island canopy) and to allow a gasoline service station with an accessory use (retail food store) to have a lot width of 120 feet instead of 150 feet of lot frontage as required on Lot 36, 0.91344 acres, London Bridge, 2412 Potters Road. LYNNHAVEN BOROUGH.
7. Vincent and Janet A. Martino request a variance of 4 feet in fence height to an 8 foot fence instead of a 4 foot fence as allowed in a required setback from a street (Meindia Place) on Lot 19, Block 10, Section 2, Princess Anne Plaza, 3505 Maverick Street. LYNNHAVEN BOROUGH.
8. Roland E. Riley requests a variance of 12 percent of lot coverage to 42 percent instead of 30 percent of lot coverage as allowed (additions - bath and garage) on Lot 1 and 10 feet of Lot 3, Block 57, Map 66, Virginia Beach Development company, 2300 Mediterranean Avenue. VIRGINIA BEACH BOROUGH.
9. Harry E. Pitt, Jr. and J. Christie Davenport request a variance of 5 feet to a 5 foot side yard setback instead of 10 feet as required on Lot 7, Block 24, Shadowlawn Heights, Virginia Avenue. VIRGINIA BEACH BOROUGH.
10. Harry E. Pitt, Jr. and J. Christie Davenport request a variance of 5 feet to a 5 foot side yard setback instead of 10 feet as required on Lot 9, Block 24, Shadowlawn Heights, Virginia Avenue. VIRGINIA BEACH BOROUGH.
11. Joseph E. and Wanda G. Ange request a variance of 5 feet to a 5 foot rear yard setback instead of 10 feet as required and of 6 feet to a 4 foot side yard setback instead of 10 feet as required (accessory building) on Lot 1, Macdonald Park, 3457 Macdonald Road, KEMPSVILLE BOROUGH.
12. Valerie Lhullier requests a variance of 2 feet in fence height to a 6 foot fence instead of a 4 foot fence as allowed in a required side yard adjacent to a street (Rueger Street) on Lot 11, Block E, Section 5, Brandon, 5735 Simon Street. KEMPSVILLE BOROUGH.
13. John and Carolyn Sutton request a variance of 19 feet to an 11 foot front yard setback instead of 30 feet as required on Lots 582 and 583, Cape Story, Poinciana Drive. LYNNHAVEN BOROUGH.
14. O.M.C. Partnership requests a variance of 1 foot to a 7 foot side yard setback instead of 8 feet as required (south property line) on Lots 9A and 9B, Owl Court, 1219 Owl Court. KEMPSVILLE BOROUGH.
15. John E. Ritter requests a variance of 5 feet to a 5 foot rear yard setback instead of 10 feet as required (accessory building) on Lot 4, Turk, Section 3, Carolan Farm, 5401 Count Turf. KEMPSVILLE BOROUGH.
16. William H. Hardison requests a variance of 10 feet to a 20 foot setback from Whitehurst Landing Road instead of 30 feet as required (through lot) on Lot 12, Section 1, Fairfield Forest, 805 Niland Court. KEMPSVILLE BOROUGH.
17. John Alva Bondurant requests a variance of 5 feet to a 5 foot rear yard setback instead of 10 feet as required and of 13 feet to a 5 foot side yard setback adjacent to a street (Ocean Shore Drive) instead of 18 feet as required (accessory building) on Lot 7, Block 2, Section G, Cape Henry Syndicate, 2315 Walke Street. LYNNHAVEN BOROUGH.
18. Timothy J. and Marie F. Emrick request a variance of 8 feet to a 22 foot front yard setback instead of 30 feet as required (swimming pool) on Lot 110, Section 3, Whiteluck Landing, 5072 Holly Farms Drive. BAYSIDE BOROUGH.

DEFERRED AGENDA:

1. Sir Galahad Company requests a variance of 10 feet to a 10 foot rear yard setback instead of 20 feet as required (accessory building) on Lot 1B, Block S, The Lakes, 882 Riverbend Road. PRINCESS ANNE BOROUGH.

VIRGINIA

vs.

Taxpayers, property owners and citizens of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, including Non-residents owning property or subject to taxation therein, and all other persons interested in or affected in any way by the issuance by the City of Virginia Beach Development Authority, of up to $5,000,000 Industrial Development Revenue Bonds, Defendants.

MOTION FOR JUDGMENT

Plaintiff, the City of Virginia Beach Development Authority, a political subdivision of the commonwealth of Virginia (the "Authority"), seeks judicial determination pursuant to Article 6, Section 5, Title 15.1, Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended, of the validity of its industrial development revenue bonds, notes or other obligations, including without limitation, bond anticipation notes, each such issue presently estimated not to exceed $5,000,000 (the "Bonds"), to be issued to pay the costs of the acquisition, construction and equipping of a retail sales facility in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia (the "Project"), to be leased or sold to Best Products Co., Inc., a Virginia Corporation ("Best Products"), and states as follows:

1. The Authority was duly created pursuant to Chapter 643 of the Virginia Acts of Assembly of 1964, as amended (the "Act"), and is a political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

2. At a meeting duly called and held on April 1, 1980, the Authority adopted a resolution agreeing to undertake the issuance of the Bonds each such issue to be in an amount presently estimated not to exceed $5,000,000, upon terms and conditions mutually agreeable to the Authority and Best Products, with the Project to be leased or sold to Best Products upon terms designed to assure payment of the Bonds. The proceeds of the Bonds when issued, will be used to finance the costs of the acquisition, construction and equipping of the Project and the issuance of the Bonds.

3. When issued, the Bonds will be valid, legal and binding limited obligations of the Authority, payable solely from the revenues and receipts received from the lease or sale of the Project to Best Products and other security, if any, pledged therefor. The Bonds will not constitute a debt or a pledge of the faith and credit of the Commonwealth of Virginia or any political subdivision thereof, including the Authority and the City of Virginia Beach; no taxing power of any political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia will be pledged to the payment of the Bonds; and the Bonds will not constitute an indebtedness within the meaning of any debt limitation or restriction.

WHEREFORE, the City of Virginia Beach Development Authority, a political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia, prays that the Court grant a prompt hearing and enter a decree with the least possible delay pursuant to Section 15.1-213 et seq., including Section 15.1-217 of the Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended, that (1) all proceedings heretofore taken by the Authority in connection with the authorization or issuance of the Bonds are legal and valid; (2) the Bonds may be issued in one or more series from time to time to finance the Project; (3) the Project constitutes an "authority facility" as defined in the Act; (4) assuming their due authorization, execution and delivery, the Bonds issued for the Project will be valid, legal and binding limited obligations of the Authority; and (5) such additional matters as may be specially requested by the parties or as the Court may deem meet.

VIRGINIA:
The City of Virginia Beach Development Authority, Plaintiff,

v.
taxpayers, property owners and citizens of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, including non-residents owning property or subject to taxation therein, and all other persons interested in or affected in any way by the issuance by the City of Virginia Beach Development Authority of up to $1,000,000 Industrial Development Revenue Bonds, Defendants.

MOTION FOR JUDGMENT

Plaintiff, the City of Virginia Beach Development Authority, a political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia (the "Authority"), seeks judicial determination pursuant to Article 6, Chapter 5, Title 15.1, Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended, of the validity of up to $1,000,000 of its industrial development revenue bonds (the "Bonds"), to be issued to pay the costs of the acquisition of land and the construction, equipping and furnishing of a building containing office space, warehouse space and retail facilities in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia (the "Project"), to be leased or sold to Reliable Stores Corporation, a Delaware corporation (the "Company"), and states as follows:

1. The Authority was duly created pursuant to Chapter 643 the Virginia Acts of Assembly of 1964, as amended (the "Act"), and is a political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

2. At a meeting duly called and held on March 7, 1980 the Authority adopted a resolution agreeing to undertake the issuance of the Bonds in an amount not to exceed $1,000,000 upon terms and conditions mutually agreeable to the Authority and the Company, with the project to be leased or sold to the Company upon terms designed to assure payment of the Bonds. The proceeds of the Bonds when issued, will be used to finance the costs of the acquisition of land, construction, equipping and furnishing of the Project and the issuance of the Bonds.

3. When issued, the Bonds will be valid, legal and binding limited obligations of the Authority, payable solely from the revenues and receipts received from the lease or sale of the Project to the Company and other security, if any, pledged therefor. The Bonds will not constitute a debt or a pledge of the faith and credit of the Commonwealth of Virginia or any political subdivision thereof, including the Authority and the City of Virginia Beach; no taxing power of any political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia will be pledged to the payment of the Bonds; and the Bonds will not constitute an indebtedness within the meaning of any debt limitation or restriction.

WHEREFORE, the City of Virginia Beach Development Authority, political subdivision of the Commonwealth of Virginia, prays that the Court grant a prompt hearing and enter a decree with the least possible delay pursuant to Section 15.1-213 et seq., including Section 15.1-217 of the Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended, that (1) all proceedings heretofore taken by the Authority in connection with the authorization or issuance of the Bonds are legal and valid; (2) the Bonds may be issued to finance the Project; (3) the Project constitutes an "authority facility" as defined in the Act; (4) assuming their due authorization, execution and delivery, the Bonds issued for the Project will be valid, legal and binding limited obligations of the Authority; and (5) such additional matters as may be specially requested by the parties or as the Court may deem meet.

Virginia Beach council action

Inkeepers at odds with City Council

By LEE CAHILL

The Inkeepers and merchants-restaurateurs, at odds over parking on Atlantic Avenue, may have reached some sort of compromise. But even before Virginia Beach City Council gets to vote on the compromise, that comes next Monday, Beach interests not privy to the compromise are making other demands.

Enough different opinions were expressed Monday evening to move Councilman Reid Ervin to facetiously ask, "Can we vote under an assumed name or something?" Generally, the Inkeepers, along with the city staff, would like to take parking off of Atlantic Avenue and the merchants and restaurateurs want it on.

George Leary, representing the 59-member Inkeepers Association and Joseph Hawa, representing the merchants-restaurateurs, got together before the meeting and reached a compromise which would keep some of the parking and eliminate some.

Recommended for a year's trial, the compromise suggests:

- Parking on both sides of Atlantic Avenue from Oct. 1 to Good Friday.
- No parking on the east side of Atlantic Avenue from 5th to 25th Street, from Good Friday until Oct. 1.
- No parking on the west side of Atlantic Avenue from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. with meters in effect until 9 p.m.
- Increasing the parking meter fee from 20 to 25 cents an hour with a two-hour limit.
- Limiting one vehicle to a parking space. Leary, who presented the compromise said that often a number of motorcycles crowd into one space.
- Enforcement of present laws to reduce drinking in public and loud and abusive language.
- Permit delivery vehicles to load and unload from 6 a.m. to noon on the east side of Atlantic Ave-by looking for the large number of boats already on location. You should look in the area of the C-10 off Cape Charles or the C-4 just north of Kiptopeke. If you don't find the boats there, they are probably a little further south near the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Even on bad days, I have always found plenty of boats on location.

When drum fishing, you want to have plenty of anchor line aboard because the tide can run pretty strong. I have seen many beginners not be able to fish because they didn't have enough anchor line to hold bottom. You also will need a gaff hook so that you can hold the drum while you remove the hook. It is almost impossible without one.

Tie fish off stern

Once you have gaffed the drum, you will need about a six to eight foot piece of rope to tie your fish off the stern. You tie it securely to one of your stern cleats and run the bitter end through the drums gills and out his mouth. I use one line per fish. I have seen people put 7 to 8 drum on one line and have it slip out of their hands. They lose the whole catch! Seeing 500 lbs. of fish swim away can ruin your whole day, so carry plenty of the pre-cut lines with you.

By hanging the drum over the stern as described, you will eliminate the necessity for a large fish box and the fish will be twice as fresh. Most of the time they will still be alive when you get ready to leave. And you haven't had them in your way all day.

Within the next few weeks, I will tell you how to clean your drum. But if you should catch one before then, give me a call at the paper and I will be glad to advise you. If I am not in, leave your number and I will return your call.

Remember safe boating requires common sense, courtesy and close attention to safety rules and the rules of the road. Have a good fishing trip and don't litter!

Ag Department offers programs

Film Program

On Saturday, May 3, at 11 a.m. the Virginia Beach Great Neck Library will sponsor a film program for children ages 6 through 12.

There is no charge and preregistration is not required for this 45 minute program.

For further information contact C. A. Pauley at 481-6094.

Music Program

On Friday, May 9, the Virginia Beach Oceanfront Library will present a performance by the Locrian Consort. The program, which begins at 4 p.m., is of interest to both children and adults.

During the program musicians use instruments and music of the Renaissance Era, explaining them and involving the audience in the performance.

This free performance is sponsored by the Virginia Chapter of Young Audiences and the Welcome Wagon Club of Virginia Beach. For further information on this program contact Carolyn Caywood, Coordinator of Children's Services at 340-2987.

Gardening

Are you a beginning gardener who needs help with your vegetable gardening? Contact the Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture/Extension Horticulturist and request a copy of a booklet entitled "Beginning Gardener."

This 31 page booklet answers numerous questions and provides ideas to maximize yield. Call 427-4769 to receive a copy.

Mary M. Purdy who is associated with the restaurant, supported her objection to one-way streets.

Russell Champlain, owner of the Kona Kai Motel, said that he represented at least six motels. He said he is not a member of the Inkeepers Association and is not represented by Leary.

He was against parking on Atlantic and said parked cars pose a danger for children crossing to and from the beach. He added that some of the beach frequenters "live (in the parking spaces) smoke pot, drink and cuss all night."

He said people park big campers. "What we've got is one big screaming mess. It looks worse than Bourbon Street."

He also objected to the compromise suggestion on loading be done on the east side where his establishment is located. "Why don't they load on the west side?"

He said he was in favor of taking parking off Atlantic and of more police protection.

Referring to City manager George L. Hanbury, he said "Let George do what he wants." Hanbury has favored taking parking off of Atlantic.

Chaplain charged that the merchants have taken their parking lots and made "put-puts" out of them "and now they want to use our streets."

He said, "you come to Virginia Beach and it looks like a junkyard."

Ervin said that Chaplain was right about delivery trucks and suggested that loading zones might be established on side streets.

Lambert also said that there was a great need to eliminate more parking on northwest corners of side streets that intersect Atlantic for safety which would involve 12 to 18 spaces, and in varying degrees to increase visibility by moving parking back on Atlantic at intersections.

Hanbury said he still favored elimination of parking on Atlantic which "would eliminate a lot of the nuisance problems at night."

Local fishing report

The blues are biting. Virginia Beach fishing pier manager and co-owner Mildred Lachman reports good catches of blues off the pier.

Yesterday, Judge George Wescott, and Lilton Evans, both of Virginia Beach, were catching blues 10 to 16 pounds. Wescott landed the 16 pounder.

Forecast for the weekend is good fishing, and for hopes of good weather.

Dreams Fest

As its part in Dreams

Festival '80, the Virginia Beach Arts Center will exhibit more than twenty boxed dreams and, as of May 25, drawn and painted dreams from Virginia Beach schoolchildren.

DREAMS II, as the exhibition is called, is a follow-up to last year's dream show. Dreams II participants include visual artists, as it did last year; but this year it will also include dreams from craft people, teachers, housewives, and other members of the community.

After a dream workshop with Dr. Henry Reed, they took small black boxes home; each person has put one of his dreams into the box, collage, poem, photograph, or any workable mixture. Illustrating the connection between dreaming and creativity, the boxes have become works of art.

The exhibition will be open to the public from May 2 to June 30; hours are daily except Sunday, from 11 to 4. There is no charge for admission.

Late in May, dreams II will include dreams drawn by children in local schools, under art teachers who have also attended a dreams workshop.

TWELVE GOOD REASONS WHY I SHOULD TRADE IN VIRGINIA BEACH

1. Because Virginia Beach is the place I make money and Virginia Beach is the place to spend it.
2. Because my interests are here.
3. Because I believe in transacting business with my friends.
4. Because the community that is good enough to live in is good enough to buy in.
5. Because I want to see the merchandise.
6. Because I want to get what I pay for.
7. Because dollars I spend in Virginia Beach stay at home and work for the development of my city.
8. Because the Virginia Beach merchant I buy from stands behind his goods and services.
9. Because I sell what I produce, here at home.
10. Because the merchant I buy from pays his part of Virginia Beach taxes.
11. Because the Virginia Beach merchant I buy from helps support my school, my church, my lodge and my home.
12. Virginia Beach is where I live and Virginia Beach is where I buy.
